74TH CONGRESS ADJOURNS DESPITE LONG FILIBUSTER AFTER APPROVING TAX AND SHIP SUBSIDY MEASURES

BALDWIN MAKES BID FOR AMERICA TO ENTER LEAGUE

Prime Minister Takes Stump To Defend Action in Advocating Lifting of British Sanctions Against Italian Nation.

TURN ABOUT FACE DRAWS ATTACK

Government Spokesman Declares Adequate Military Strength Is Needed for Collective Security.

LONDON, June 20. — (AP) — British leaders battled tonight over the questions of sanctions as Prime Minister Baldwin took the stump in Scotland to defend his government's action in advocating their removal from Italy.

The government chief declared military strength was needed for collective security and said: "Let advocates of collective security who are unwilling to provide a single volunteer for our forces or a single shell for aircraft think of that.

"I believe the horrors of another modern war in Europe might lead to a revolt of the peoples against all leaders. You might find Europe in a state of completely barbarous anarchy from end to end.

"Let us not underrate the risks of sanctions and collective security."

Pleads for Support.

Pleading for support of the government's rearmament program, Baldwind said: "If risks have to be taken, if we ever have to fight again, see that our own people at all events have the best there is to fight with in quality and quantity."

The government's about-face on the question of sanctions drew sharp attacks from various quarters, including the labor party, the liberal party and the League of Nations Union.

Before a conservative rally at Dishaw, Scotland, Baldwin explained that an oil embargo against Italy during the Italo-Ethiopian war was impracticable because of the United States attitude.

He suggested it would be well to get the United States and other nonmembers to join the League of Nations in order to prevent aggressions.

Baldwin referred to a socialist charge that sanctions had failed because an oil embargo was not includ-

Prison Farm Fugitive Is Shot Down in Texas

EASTHAM PRISON FARM, Tex., June 20.—(AP)—Jim Barrow, forger, who escaped from Eastham prison farm on a mule yesterday, was shot to death today in a cornfield near Midway, six miles from the farm.

Captain V. B. Monzingo, manager of the farm, said Dog Sergeant Earl Small shot the fugitive. Small was with a posse this morning. The fugitive was on foot, having abandoned his plow mule.

Barrow was serving terms aggregating 67 years on a dozen forgery counts in Tarrant and Denton counties.

State Delegates To Leave For Philadelphia Tonight

Allen Is Urged To Stand for Chairmanship of Georgia Group.

Georgia's delegation to the democratic national convention at Philadelphia will leave tonight for the convention city, with prospects for full accord on all matters to come before the gathering, particularly the first ballot renomination of President Roosevelt.

The party will leave Atlanta at 7:20 o'clock tonight over the Seaboard Air Line, reaching Philadelphia late tomorrow after picking up in Washington Senators Walter F. George and Richard B. Russell Jr., as well as members of the house of representatives who are among the delegates.

A number of the delegates arrived here yesterday to make final preparations for the trip. Of the early arrivals practically all urged Marion H. Allen, of Milledgeville, the President's preconvention state campaign manager, to stand for the chairmanship of the delegation. Thus far Allen, who Harmony and Sound of Hammers Pervades City as Leaders, Delegates Arrive for Opening of Convention Tuesday.

TWO-THIRDS RULE TO BE SOLE FIGHT

Party Chieftains Will Attempt To Scuttle System Giving Balance of Power to the South.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP) Talking harmony and even unanimity, democratic leaders tonight began to fill Philadelphia for next week's national convention—but prospects nevertheless heightened for at least one floor fight and much behind-the-scenes maneuvering. The convention opens Tuesday.

It was disputed by none that the forces of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Nance Garner were in strong control; party chieftains reiterated that theirs would be the only names placed before the convention.

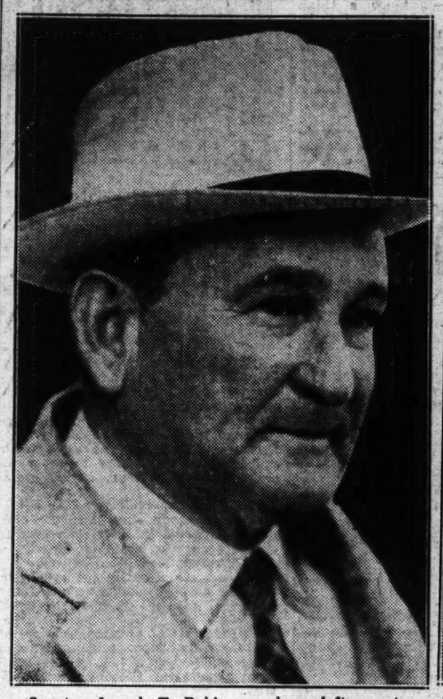

Two-thirds Fight.

Beneath this solid front, however, ran a swelling discussion of how far the struggle over abandoning or retaining the two-thirds vote rule would extend. Few thought the Roosevelt managers could be halted, when the moment comes, in their desire to install a majority rule. There was increasing talk also of platform drafting, and particularly of the shaping of a money plank. Closed-door argument was considered certain.

A strong undercurrent of private

SENATE FINALLY VOTES RESOLUTION TO QUIT, GO HOME

Talking Solons Kill Coal Substitute Bill and Approve 'NRA' for Government Contractors During Last Few Minutes.

END DETERMINED AS HOLT SPEAKS

Young West Virginian Takes Floor To Fight Coal Control Bill and Lashes John L. Lewis.

WASHINGTON, June 21 (Sunday)—(AP)—The 74th congress, which topped off the administration's program yesterday by finally approving the trouble-studded tax bill, adjourned sine die early today after a determined, but listless, filibuster had spent itself.

Just before midnight youthful Senator Holt, democrat, of West Virginia, one of those who had been filibustering against the Guffey-Vinson coal control bill with a sharp attack on John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, gave up and the senate quickly adjourned.

The house, which had been standing by while the senate sought to break the bonds of the filibuster, followed suit at 12:39 a. m. (Atlanta time) and the second Roosevelt congress ground to an end.

Galleries were packed with gay crowds, eager to be present when the big show on Capitol Hill was finally ended. Time and again they had to be warned by presiding officers to restrain themselves.

In the closing rush not only was the Guffey-Vinson bill, designed to replace the outlawed original Guffey coal control act, filibustered to death, but the controversial food and drug bill was killed when the house refused to agree to the conference report.

Production Estimated.

Having turned the tax bill, estimated to produce $800,000,000 in new revenue, over to President Roosevelt in mid-afternoon, the house and senate sat down to hold a wake with the Guffey-Vinson bill, sentenced to death by the filibuster.

One last-minute flurry broke into the unusual calm which hung over the two chambers, ordinarily so turbulent on adjournment night.

It was an attempt by backers of the coal bill, watching it ground under the filibuster, to hold congress in session for a day or so more.

Wearied by the prolonged session, the senate shouted the effort down.

With little to do, the house adopted a resolution for sine die adjournment early in the afternoon, calling

16 ARE ANNOUNCED FOR CITY PRIMARY

Full List for 35 Posts Expected Long Before Deadline on August 1.

Sixteen candidates for the 36 positions for which officials will be nominated in the municipal primary, September 2, had announced yesterday with a prospect that a full list will be in the field long before entries close August 1.

Under a ruling of the city democratic executive committee, headed by James T. Ozburn, entry lists open July 15, but aspirants for various positions yesterday continued to jump the gun and toss their hats into the ring long before they have the opportunity to qualify.

James Leech Wells, former councilman and president of the Sloan Paper Company, already has entered the lists for the mayoralty nomination.

Key Withholds Plans.

Mayor Key is expected to seek renomination, and yesterday asserted "gossips are not running my political fortunes" in answer to reports that he did not intend to offer again and to rumors that Wells will withdraw in Key's favor and to others that Key will keep people guessing to beat down opposition to Wells.

That, however, was the only comment Key had to offer at the moment, but it is regarded as certain that his name will be before the voters in September.

Others also have been mentioned, but none have yet announced their intention to qualify.

Three contests already were assured yesterday if those who have signified their intentions to run qualify.

Roy Callaway, young businessman, has announced as alderman from the new fourth ward, as has Walter L. Richard, who is prominently connected.

Three-Cornered Race.

Ozburn is in the race for one of the two councilmanic posts from the same ward, and C. M. (Mac) Bolen and John T. Marler, present members of council, also are in the ring.

George S. Lowman, school commissioner from the present eighth ward, and W. W. Matthews, who holds the same position from the present fourth ward, will run it out for the one school post from the new fifth ward, composed of the present fourth and eighth wards.

In addition to announcements which

'WELTNER MOVE' RAPPED BY LARSEN

"Purpose of Movement Taken From Sponsors by Politicians," He Says.

Terming the recent "Weltner movement" gathering as an "Athens political rally in Macon," Judge W. W. Larsen, gubernatorial candidate, Saturday scouted the sincerity of its "manipulators," although characterizing the "Weltner movement as a theoretical idea of some splendid Georgians who had the control and real purposes of the move wrenched from them by a group of Athens politicians," Larsen emphatically declared he is "in the race to the finish" and said that the principles upon which he has based his campaign will appeal to Georgians who are genuinely interested in a united democracy.

"The Macon convention resulted from theoretical ideas of some splendid Georgians, but when an Athens newspaperman, by name of Magill, moved into the 'Weltner movement' headquarters in an Atlanta hotel the 'movement' took on the form of a campaign conducted by a small group of Athens politicians," Judge Larsen said. "The control was wrenched from its original leaders, the real purposes blasted on the rocks of selfishness and autocracy took hold. The Athens rally in Macon amounted to nothing more nor less than an effort to tell free Georgians who their governor would be," Larsen continued.

Not Notified.

"Phillip Weltner spent $1,100 in pre-convention plans he told the meeting in Macon and after the hat was passed around a few times that amount is reported to have been contributed. If the group who wrested control of the movement was honest in a campaign to combat 'autocracy in Georgia,' as they loudly proclaimed, it seems they could have spent a three-cent postage stamp to enlighten some of us who might be interested in the same thing. I was an announced candidate for some time prior to the Macon meeting and expect to be, God being my helper, until the last vote is counted.

"I am a candidate of no group, no movement, no faction," Larsen continued, "but I am a candidate before all the people and I believe the men and women of this state can be trusted and are competent to decide who shall be their officeholders and who may or may not be entrusted with Georgia's affairs. When the day and hour comes in this state when holders of public offices shall be hand-picked by anyone and the guarantee of free suffrage shall be thwarted, it will indeed be a return to carpet-bagging and a tragic moment for the democratic party.

Party Principles Enough.

"The broad, sound democratic principles of a party that has placed in the White House one of the great Americans, one of the great humanitarians of all time, are broad enough and sufficiently sound to have brought this wonderful nation from the chasm of ruin and chaos and is rapidly restoring orderly business, better living conditions and greater opportunities for all. I support with all my heart these principles and am thankful for an humble part in the New Deal pro-

PRESIDENT SIGNS GRIST OF BILLS

Sticks to Desk To Help Wind Up Half Year Session of 74th Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP)—Foregoing his customary week-end yachting, President Roosevelt stuck close to the White House tonight to help wind up a half year's session of congress.

He signed several score bills, including the Robinson-Patman proposal which proponents said was intended to give independent merchants an equal price advantage with chain stores and other big buyers in purchases from manufacturers; shook hands with bright-badged members of the California and Arizona delegations to the democratic national convention, and held a long conference with Frank Murphy, American high commissioner to the Philippines.

The President also sent another batch of postmaster nominations to the senate just as that branch was taking final and favorable action on the tax bill estimated to raise $800,000,000.

Ten Days To Act on Measures.

He has 10 days in which to act on last-minute bills, making it unnecessary for him to go to the capitol for this task.

Under the law, he may sign a measure, veto it outright with a special message, or disapprove by refraining from any action. The latter is known as a pocket veto.

There was little likelihood of his rejecting the tax bill, officials agreed, since the two houses gave him virtually all he sought in an effort to get a larger distribution of corporate earnings and mend a battered budget.

Among the measures to which he affixed his signature during the day was one extending through 1937 the

TECHWOOD HOMES OPEN BY AUGUST 1

Announcement Follows Senate Move To Allow 45 Per Cent Rent Slash.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—Public Works Administration housing officials said today they expected to open the $2,750,000 Techwood housing project at Atlanta by August 1.

The announcement came after the senate completed congressional action on legislation to permit PWA to write off 45 per cent of the cost of slum clearance developments in fixing rentals. Previously, a ruling by Comptroller General J. R. McCarl had required that PWA charge enough to repay the entire cost over the 60-year amortization period.

The legislation, which also authorized PWA to make payments to cities in lieu of taxes for municipal services, was offered in the senate by Senator Russell, Georgia, democrat. A slightly different bill was introduced in the house by Representative Healey, democrat, Massachusetts, and senate approval of a conference report today sent the bill to the White House.

The Techwood project is the furthest advanced of the 50 low-cost housing projects approved by PWA. Officials said several thousand applications were on hand and that they would begin to make final selection of tenants as soon as President Roosevelt signs the measure into law.

TECHWOOD PROVISIONS APPROVED BY RAMSPECK

WASHINGTON, June 20.—With the George-Healey bill, which makes it possible for Techwood and similar low-cost housing projects to reimburse the municipalities in which they are located for police, sanitary and other services, in lieu of taxes, now awaiting President Roosevelt's signature, Representative Robert Ramspeck, of

Dr. James Mason, A. M. A. Head, Dies

SEATTLE, June 20.—(AP)—Dr. James Tate Mason, 55, Seattle physician and president of the American Medical Association, died here today after a long illness.

He died in his own hospital, the Virginia Mason, named for his daughter.

Dr. Mason suffered a blood clot of the right leg April 6 and his leg later was amputated.

A native of Lahore, Va., he came to Washington in 1907, two years after his graduation from the University of Virginia. Of Old Dominion state families—he was the son of Claiborne Rice Mason and Mary Moore (Wolfolk) Mason—he brought many young southern doctors here to serve interneships in his hospital.

$4,500,000 Crown Brought to Chicago

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—The crown of the Andes, a 300-year-old mass of Inca gold and emeralds, arrived today and was locked in a hotel vault.

With it came Warren Piper, Chicago jeweler, who told a story of a 21-year campaign to possess the crown which he said was valued at $4,500,000.

Piper said the fate of the crown had not yet been determined. The original intention of the syndicate for which he purchased it was to break it up and market the jewels individually, he said, but because it is too beautiful to be destroyed he hopes to influence the syndicate to hold it intact and exhibit it for the benefit of charities.

LEMKE DISCUSSES CONVENTION PLAN

New Party's Gathering Scheduled for Cleveland During August.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—Representative Lemke, republican, North Dakota, Union party candidate for President, said tonight the new party probably would be launched at a convention of all interested groups in Cleveland some time in August.

"It will be a mass convention," he said, "similar to the one at which Lincoln launched his party."

Lemke, who announced his candidacy on a 15-plank platform yesterday with "economic slavery" as the main issue, said delegates would not be elected to the convention from all the states this year because of the lack of time.

Congressional supporters said Lemke would confer soon with E. H. Everson, St. Charles, S. D., president of the National Farmers' Union, and with Ed Kennedy, of Kankakee, Ill., its secretary.

Attends Conferences.

Struggling with constantly jangling telephones and an increasing pile of telegrams, the North Dakotan paced the floor of his office, firing directions to his secretarial staff and mopping Washington summer heat from his chin and glistening brow. He had attended an almost ceaseless round of secluded conferences.

To insistent newsmen he reiterated, finally with a show of irritation, that he was not ready to disclose the identity of persons with whom he had talked or discussed campaign plans.

"Everything is in a formative state," he declared, "and I do not wish to mislead you.

Young Speed Kings Eagerly Await 1937 All-American Soap-Box Derby

Atlanta youngsters telephoning to demand rules and regulations of the All-American Soap Box Derby, information about the prizes and how they should build their racers, are assured by the prominent businessmen composing the arrangements committee that plans are rapidly drawing to a head and the race on Saturday, July 25, will be the event of events for the city's aspiring young mechanical engineers and racers.

Officials explained yesterday the innovations in this year's race, announced a long list of prizes and urged entrants to send in their applications as soon as possible.

"Warn all contestants that the rules will be followed this year to the letter," committeemen said.

Most important rule of all, committeemen said, is the one stating that no car costing more than $10 will be allowed to race.

"This rule will eliminate the possibility of anyone having a car made by a garage or professional mechanics," they said. "Cars must be made by the boys themselves. We intend the rule to give all boys an opportunity to enter the contest and not, as in the past, become discouraged and stay out when they see a shiny new car made by a professional."

The All-American Soap Box Derby is the "Indianapolis Speedway Contest" of the nation's racing youngsters. It is sponsored annually in Atlanta by The Constitution and the Chevrolet Motor Company, and is keenly anticipated by boys who build shiny, efficient autos and like to pit

Federal Government To Help 'Dry' States

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—A legal definition of a dry state and the protection it shall receive from the federal government was set up today in a measure which received final action from congress.

The measure, on which the house agreed to minor senate amendments, provides that any state which permits sale of liquor containing not more than 4 per cent alcohol by volume (3.2 per cent by weight), may receive federal protection against importations from other states.

The legislation provides a maximum penalty of $1,000 fine and a year's imprisonment for bringing liquor into a dry state in violation of state permit or embargo laws. The state's definition of intoxicating liquor would be used in determining whether there had been a violation.

Wagner Drafts Democratic Planks; Old Platform Roll Call Is Expected

Only Thing Known About Statement Is That It Will Be Brief.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP) Awaiting the arrival of an official New Deal platform draft, democratic leaders tonight confined their discussion of the prospective 1936 party charter to statements that it would be brief and to the point.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, chairman-designate of the resolutions committee, still in Washington, but expected tomorrow, remained the clearing house for platform suggestions from all sources.

Until his tentative draft, prepared as a basis for committee discussion, becomes available, the only thing to be learned here on platform prospects was that it would be brief.

National Chairman James A. Farley said today he expected a document little longer than the 1932 platform adopted at Chicago. That ran about a column and a half in news print and established a modern record for platform brevity and compactness of statement.

That the Wagner draft platform will reach the convention circle stamped with presidential approval was not to be doubted. The New Yorker has been engaged in conferences with party leaders in congress and, presumably, with the White House in preparing it. Under the circumstances, there was a general expectation that resolutions committee changes before the platform is presented to the convention for ratification will have to do more with language than with substance.

Assembles Suggestions.

Senator Wagner's task of piecing together various suggestions for party policy declarations has been aided, it was learned, by preliminary work on certain planks by the national committee organization in Washington. Much work of that nature occupied technical advisers on the committee staff before headquarters were transferred to Philadelphia for the convention.

The only intimation available as to this preliminary platform work was a veiled suggestion that a plank containing a roll call on 1932 party pledges and a record of legislative performance under such pledges might be included. Farley and his aids maintained today such a review would show an extraordinary record of achievement as against the many charges of broken platform pledges.

Another source of suggestions available to Senator Wagner was in the form of notes prepared by the late A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania. Mr. Palmer, attorney general during the last Wilson administration, had a hand in writing platforms at previous democratic conventions, notably at Chicago four years ago.

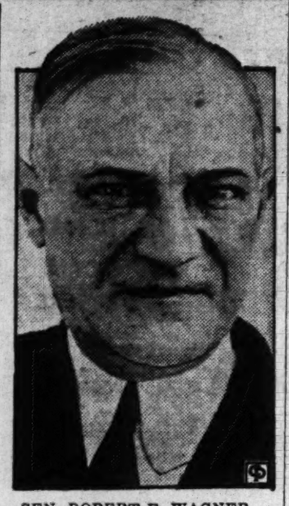

He was informally assigned to preliminary work for this year's platform sometime ago but died before he had done more than assemble notes. These were reported to have been gathered together by Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, and placed in Senator Wagner's hands after the New Yorker was selected to head the resolution committee.

Lemke Move Studied.

Some speculation arose here as to what significance might attach to the timing of the Lemke third-party ticket announcement in its bearing on the platform-making activities in Philadelphia. Farley and other national committee personnel here, however, declined to take the third-party announcement seriously. Whether it will have any influence on the platform remained to be seen.

One other plank about which there was wide speculation—and no authoritative information—was the minimum wage question. Party officials here profess ignorance as to whether any direct advocacy of an amendment to the federal constitution to meet the supreme court's overthrow of the New York state act is to be expected in the Wagner draft.

A notable feature of the Philadelphia pre-convention scene was the absence as yet of any of the organized groups which usually haunt hotel lobbies at this stage, seeking to enlist support for pet platform projects.

SEN. ROBERT F. WAGNER.

DEMOCRATS GATHERING FOR SESSION TUESDAY

talk circled likewise about the newly created "union party" of Representative Lemke, of North Dakota, and the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Detroit, but, publicly at least, the democratic spokesmen either declined to comment or repeated predictions of a Roosevelt sweep. Nevertheless, it was known that in private they were weighing carefully the effects of the Lemke move.

Tempo High.

Little of all this appeared on the surface as the ever increasing democratic legions took over the city. More bunting and flags appeared on the streets. More "Welcome Democrats" signs were displayed. More hammers pounded as last-minute expansions were made. More police sirens shrieked as members of the party high command were escorted about the city. The convention tempo was set high.

Broadly beaming James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee, pronounced to a circle of newspapermen that a $2,000,000 campaign fund would be sufficient to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Garner. Half, or nearly half of it, he said, would be realized from what he described as 5,000 "nominator rallies" gathered when the President delivers his acceptance speech next Saturday night.

Short Platform.

A "short" platform—running around 2,000 words as compared to the 1,600 of 1932 and the 3,000-word republican declaration from Cleveland; no minority report upon it; no names before the convention besides those of Roosevelt and Garner, and victory in November—these were other of Farley's press conference predictions.

"Ours is a unanimous party," said the national chairman and postmaster general, grinning even more broadly.

But even Farley conceded that there was likely to be some "floor debate" over the two-thirds rule. Opposition to abandoning it has been outspoken in the south. Farley would not answer a question as to whether the Roosevelt forces might abandon their drive for a rule-by-majority vote if the fight grew into a slam-bang affair.

One of those close to the party chairman, however, replied to a question as to how long the debate might run by repeating an old political maxim: "When you know you have the strength, ask for a roll call."

Oft-Fought Issue.

The background of the two-thirds rule is a historic one. Its genesis was in the "solid south," where powerful figures first pushed it across so that the northern and western states—far outnumbering them—could not dictate without effective opposition the choice of a presidential and vice presidential candidate.

Under it, just as the name implies, two-thirds of the voting delegates must cast their ballots for one man before he becomes the convention's choice. The rule, adopted anew by each convention after it meets, has led to prolonged democratic convention deadlocks. Implicated, too, has been the question of the unit rule over state delegations. Because of the difficulty in amassing a two-thirds vote, some states under stern political control have passed rules that if a majority of their state delegation votes one way, the entire delegation must be recorded the same way. Thus, at times momentous questions have hinged upon even a half-vote within a delegation.

Farley today declined to say what if any discussion of the unit rule was to be expected, but left no doubt that the press for a nomination-by-majority vote was on. At the democratic convention in Chicago in 1932, the delegates voted that the question of majority versus two-thirds rules should be studied and taken up at the 1936 convention.

Platform Thursday.

As for the platform to be presented—probably on Thursday—Farley today declined to answer a question as to whether it might contain some surprises.

In reply to a remark by one newspaperman that some had been advocating readoption of the 1932 platform, the national chairman shot back:

"It was a good platform. Further, I think it was carried out better than has been any other platform in recent years. Charges of departure from it would be a poor excuse for staying away from the President."

The question of a possible plank advocating a constitutional amendment to legalize specifically state wage and hour legislation also went unanswered by Farley. Some close to him, however, shook their heads in the negative.

It was taken as certain here that the 1932 democratic money plank would be reworded. It was written by Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia.

At Cleveland last week, the republican platform drafters lifted it almost entirely.

Whether Glass, and some of those who believe as he does, will insist upon their views before the resolution committee was a matter of speculation. Only conjecture thus far has surrounded the monetary statement that President Roosevelt himself will insist upon. In any event, it was generally conceded that Mr. Roosevelt's views on the platform probably would prevail before the resolutions committee.

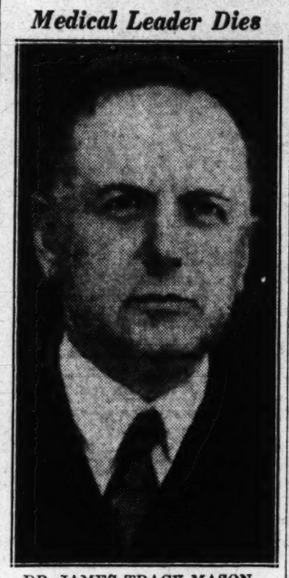

Replies to Metcalf.

Farley, questioned about charges his name has been signed to letters sent to postmasters, asking them to spur the sale of $1 tickets for next Saturday's "nominator rallies." Asked about a statement by Senator Metcalf, republican, Rhode Island, that the postmaster at Providence, R. I., had just received such a letter, and a reiteration by Metcalf that the post-office was being used for political purposes, Farley replied:

"Frankly, I don't know a thing about that letter. I will look into it. Everybody knows that the democratic national committee was responsible for the plan for having 5,000 rallies. It is hard to watch every detail. Naturally some over-zealous fellow may do things that, if we knew about them, we wouldn't permit.

"Personally, I have never approached any man in the postoffice for political assistance, and I never will."

GOLD STAR MOTHERS ORGANIZE ASSOCIATION

Officers Elected at Meeting at Wilson Birthplace in Virginia.

STAUNTON, Va., June 20.—(AP)—The National Association of Gold Star Mothers of North America was organized here today with Mrs. Mathilde Burling, Richmond Hill, N. Y., as president.

The new group was formed at a business session of Gold Star Mothers from eastern states participating in a pilgrimage to the birthplace here of Woodrow Wilson, World War president.

Mrs. J. Frank Clemmer, Staunton, was elected vice president, and Mrs. Alice O'Sullivan, New York, secretary.

Named to the executive committee were Mrs. A. Wendell, New York; Mrs. M. W. Dyson, Tennessee, and Mrs. M. E. Rodman, Maryland. Two other members will be selected later.

First Convention.

The first annual convention will probably be held in Staunton in September, after which the delegates will go to Washington for exercises at the tomb of the unknown soldier.

Governor Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, said in an address to the Mothers at the Wilson birthplace this afternoon "fervently do we pray and earnestly do we work to the end that such another war may never arise."

"No man can say it will not come but I believe we can truthfully say we, in this country, firmly resolve we will never be responsible for the necessity to resort to arms. Rather will we bend our energies to the eradication of the roots of war however obscure and far-reaching they may be.

Faint Realization.

"The war in which our sons lost their lives involved so many nations and so many issues we cannot even yet understand its significance. We are only just beginning to realize the full extent of the loss it inflicted upon the whole world. We cannot even apportion with certitude the blame and responsibility for its origin."

Governor McNutt said in conclusion, "while the way to realize peace may not be clear, while it is apparent many weary years and innumerable dangers lie between the present and a reasonably perfect order, may we never lose sight of the goal toward which Woodrow Wilson labored from birth here to burial in yonder great Cathedral at Washington."

PLAYGROUND OPENED BY WPA AT LAGRANGE

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 20.—The second local WPA playground, fully equipped and landscaped through a donation of an unnamed citizen, was opened to the public yesterday. It is located at the corner of Ferrell drive and Vernon road. Miss Mildred Elrod is the district WPA recreational supervisor.

The WPA will provide a playground director and several NYA boys and girls to supervise activities and the recreational plat is open to children from the surrounding neighborhood between the hours of 9 and 11 a. m. and 3 and 6:30 p. m.

The new playground succeeds by a few weeks the original local WPA playground located adjacent to the municipal swimming pool lot.

Miss Elrod states that the appointment of a WPA recreational committee composed of interested local citizens would be completed in a short time.

FLOYD COUNTY BODY IS TO MEET JUNE 27

ROME, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—Chairman Grover Byars said today the Floyd county democratic committee will meet June 27 to fix rules for the primary.

Besides three members of the house of representatives, one member of the county commission will be elected succeeding the late T. S. Buchanan.

With No Controversies in Sight, Democrats Work On Program

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP) With five days to fill and no extended controversies in sight, democratic leaders worked on their convention program today without deciding upon the final order of all events.

James A. Farley, national chairman, will call the convention to order at noon, eastern daylight saving time, next Tuesday.

President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner will ring down the curtain Saturday night with their acceptance speeches in Franklin Field.

Schedule May Be Changed.

A tentative schedule for events in between may be changed over the week-end, national committee officials said.

The election of Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, as temporary chairman and his keynote speech will be the principal business of Tuesday night's session.

The rules and credentials committee are to report at a session scheduled for Wednesday at noon. The rules committee report will bring up the question of abolishing the rule requiring a two-thirds vote to nominate.

Wednesday night, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, party leader in the senate, is slated for selection as permanent chairman. After his election, he will make a speech.

Whether the platform committee will report Thursday at noon or at the night session had not been determined. Farley said he thought Thursday night.

Nomination Day Uncertain.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt is to be nominated Friday night or Saturday afternoon also was undecided. John E. Mack, of New York, who nominated the President in 1932, is to make the speech again this year. Vice President Garner's nomination is to follow immediately.

The balloting on the vice presidential nomination will bring the convention proper to a close. The delegates then will move from the public auditorium to the near-by athletic field for the acceptance celebration.

Plenty of music and other entertainment throughout the convention was promised by committee officials.

POLICEMEN GUARD HALL AS WORK PROGRESSES

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP) A mixed and noisy symphony floated through this city today as perspiring workers made final preparations for the democratic national convention.

The center of activity was the white, stone municipal auditorium—hard by the University of Pennsylvania.

From the battery of loud speakers—hooked to a radio for testing—squawked feminine words of advice on how to cook a New England boiled dinner, incongruously pouring over overalled toilers and badge-bedecked committeemen.

Rumbling from the sides and ceiling came the deep notes of an organ produced by a lady musician in the basement, frantically trying to tune it to accompany the band. Up in the far reaches of the galleries a sound technician piped — "one-two-three-four testing"—with dreary regularity.

Policemen Guard Wires.

Spotted about the thousands of empty seats were 40 of the city's huskiest policemen—armed with orders from Mayor Wilson to guard, like the downtown mint, the elaborate network of wires which will bear the official convention words to the delegates and the nation.

Walk near one of them and a cop springs into action.

"Hey, you, stand clear there!"

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing, except we got orders. You remember Cleveland when things went blank on Senator Steiwer's speech? Well, Philly ain't taking no chances. See?"

This constabulary vigil is maintained 24 hours a day with the policemen getting more hawk-eyed and nervous as the Tuesday opening nears.

Banners and bunting are out this time—sacrificed for the sake of sound and looks.

Few Hall Ornaments.

About the railing of the gallery is a plain blue background on which are mounted the seals of the states and possessions and between each are three silk flags. These are the only hall ornaments.

Back of the speaker's platform where democratic notables will sit in boxes, red, white and blue decorations are stretched against a back wall. On either side of the great arch over the platform are brackets for the pictures of President Roosevelt and Vice President Garner.

All downtown was a flutter of flags and banners through which move the delegates, alternates, committeemen, visitors and newsmen in a constant stream with every new train, bus, plane and automobile.

Sirens scream from police motorcycles as big black cars bulging with democrats pull up before the hotels. Folks on the sidewalk crane their heads.

"Another big shot." They gasp.

The democratic donkey is crowding all else off the streets.

Sailors' Sweethearts in Brooklyn Are Rounded Up in Police Raids

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Sailors who boast of having a girl in every port will have to add—"except Brooklyn"—if that borough's newly-organized crime prevention bureau has its way.

More than 100 girls were rounded up early today in a series of raids on drinking and dancing resorts in the Brooklyn navy yard district, and the bureau said the raids would be continued.

About half of the girls were released when they identified themselves as Brooklyn residents. The others were held to determine whether they had run away from home.

Director Byrnes McDonald said the crime prevention bureau had received numerous complaints from girls' parents. McDonald expressed a determination to keep the waterfront safe for both seafarers and feminine wayfarers.

No charges were placed against the girls held, and Police Lieutenant Joseph Cone said they were merely being kept in custody until their identities could be established and they could be sent home to the cities from which they came. Names of the girls were withheld.

Lieutenant Cone said that many of them were from Pennsylvania mining towns, and the majority were runaways from their homes who were paid by "bar and grill" proprietors to bring sailors in and "shanghai" their pay.

If the sailors felt shipwrecked on the sea of romance by the raiders' actions, there was no spoken indication today.

SERVICES TO HONOR FULLERE CALLAWAY

Tribute To Be Paid Late LaGrange Mill Magnate on July 12.

LAGRANGE, Ga., June 20.—Memorial services honoring the late Fuller Earle Callaway, founder of Callaway Mills, will be held Sunday, July 12, preceding his birthday anniversary, July 15, at approximately 20 churches in the villages where branches of the mill are located.

Plans were made for individual services to replace the former plan of a united memorial at a meeting of the Fellowship Forum, an organization composed of ministers of the churches in the communities, and an advisory committee to assist in securing speakers for this occasion was named, composed of Harry Pickup, Rev. G. T. Pittman and C. W. Coleman.

ATLANTAN IS ELECTED AT OXFORD CONFERENCE

OXFORD, Ga., June 20.—Joe Ford, of Atlanta, was named president of the young people's group of the North Georgia conference at the session held here this week. Other officers elected include:

Newton Wise, Calhoun, vice president; Mary Louise Dunn, Marietta, secretary; James Witherspoon, Forest Park, treasurer; Ezra Sellers, Young Harris, publicity director.

The sessions here were largely attended by young Methodists from north Georgia.

2 ATLANTA OFFICERS COMPLETING COURSES

Graduates from the Army War College Tuesday will include Major Willard W. Irvine, of Atlanta.

GEORGIA'S CARL VINSON HAS ENVIABLE RECORD

Head of Powerful Naval Body, He Has Won Approval of Every Major Bill.

By GALDSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—To Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the Georgia delegation in the lower house and chairman of the important naval affairs committee, is due the distinction of having pressed through to final passage every piece of legislation reported out by his committee during the turbulent session of congress just ended.

The records of other house committees were unavailable for comparison today but it is doubtful whether the achievement of the Georgia congressman was equalled by any other major committee chairman of either branch of congress.

No Failures.

Not since Representative Vinson took over the chairmanship, after democrats captured control of the house in 1930, has a major piece of legislation reported out by the committee failed of passage. In the aggregate, the numerous measures adopted under his leadership since the beginning of the Roosevelt administration constitute the greatest program of national defense ever put through in the peacetime history of the country.

Foremost of the lot was the Vinson naval construction bill, authorizing an expenditure of $500,000,000 for bringing the American sea defense up to the parity of the London treaty. Other major proposals he has successfully piloted through the house have had to do with the development of naval bases and aircraft, as well as the provision designed to save the government millions of dollars by imposing a limit of 10 per cent on the profits shipbuilders may make on government contracts.

The latter provision will serve to effectively eliminate the conditions which led to widespread criticism during the huge and hurried shipbuilding program incident to American entry into the World War.

Ranked High.

The marked success of the Georgia congressman in his legislative efforts seemingly justifies the reputation he has gained nationally as one of the three or four master legislative and parliamentary strategists of the lower house. Not only does he fortify himself always with the complete facts pertaining to the particular measure proposed, but he takes the added precaution of feeling out the sentiment of the house on the proposition in advance before bringing it to a vote.

Speaker William B. Bankhead and acting Majority Leader John O'Connor are two others given a similar rating. Their reputations for effectiveness are based on thoroughness, plus the added faculty of making friends.

The 13 original states, comprising the United States in 1790, had a total area of 892,135 square miles of which nearly 25,000 square miles was water.

Named Delegation Page

LOUISA ROBERT.

CONVENTION PAGE

Louisa Robert To Accompany Delegation to Philadelphia.

Louisa Robert, Atlanta society girl and swimming star, yesterday was named an official page to the Georgia delegation to the democratic national convention. Miss Robert will accompany the delegation to Philadelphia, leaving Atlanta tonight.

Miss Robert is a daughter of L. W. Robert Jr., former assistant secretary of the treasury and now an assistant treasurer of the democratic national committee.

Announcement of the Atlanta young woman's appointment was made yesterday at Philadelphia by the committee on convention arrangements.

ATLANTANS LEADING IN BRIDGE TOURNEY

R. L. Porter, Mrs. Wagar, Henry Chanin Fighting Defending Champions.

Three pairs in the Georgia Master Points Bridge tournament were running neck and neck early this morning as leaders in the final rounds of qualifying play-off at the Standard Club.

Those in the lead were R. L. Porter, of Atlanta, and Jess Glick, of Cleveland, Ohio; Henry Chanin and Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, both of Atlanta, and the defending champions, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Des Portes, of Columbus, Ga.

Qualifying rounds were played Friday night and yesterday afternoon, with the scores at the end of those rounds as follows, half of these totals being carried over into the play last night:

Porter and Glick, 422; Henry Tomkins, Atlanta, and Fred Levy, Montgomery, 434 1-2; Al Walton and Don Daniel, both of Atlanta, 429; Louis Hamilton and Mrs. Creed Taylor, both of Atlanta, 404; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Des Portes, of Columbus, Ga., defending champions, 401 1-2; Henry Chanin and Mrs. Humphrey Wagar, both of Atlanta, 391 1-2; Mr. and Mrs. Bernard, Atlanta, 375 1-2; J. 635,000 AMERICANS RECEIVE OLD AGE AID

32 States, Not Including Georgia, Reaping Benefits of Federal Grants.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—The Social Security Board said today 635,000 persons in 32 states and the District of Columbia were receiving old-age assistance from grants provided by the federal government to bolster state funds.

Officials estimated that this represented 65 per cent of the needy aged in the country.

In addition to these, plans have been submitted, but not yet approved, for New York, Florida and Hawaii.

Counted among those whose plans have been approved is also Texas, which will not receive any funds until July 1.

The federal quarterly allotment now amounts to $16,788,854, and the total amount spent in the states approved—federal funds plus state funds—during the three-month period is $32,122,678.

Plan of Operation.

Under the plan now in operation, the federal government pays the state a sum equal to half of any amount up to $30 a month, which the state pays to a needy person 65 or over who is not cared for by a public institution. In addition, it pays the state an amount equal to 5 per cent of its assistance grant which may be used either for old-age assistance or administrative expenses.

The amount paid to individual recipients is determined by the state, but if it is more than $30 a month, the state bears the excess, the limit of federal contributions being $15 a month.

To gain approval by the Social Security Board, the plans in the states now receiving grants had to meet the following specifications:

Age Limit Reduction.

The age limit must be reduced to 65 by 1940.

Not more than five years' residence in the state, out of the last nine, may be required, nor more than one year of continuous residence immediately prior to application.

No citizen may be excluded because of the length of time he has been a citizen.

Where assistance is denied, there must be some designated state authority to which the applicant may appeal.

The plan must be of state-wide operation and mandatory upon the counties.

There must be one central agency to administer or supervise it, the state to set up the administrative machinery and select the personnel.

The states whose compliance with these conditions has been approved, along with the number in each receiving aid, and the amount they receive are:

States Complying.

Alabama, 5,000, $8; Arkansas, 15,000, $10; California, 68,575, $25; Colorado, 25,000, $25; Connecticut, 3,000, $19.83; Delaware, 3,593, $10; District of Columbia, 1,500, $30; Idaho, 7,000, $25; Indiana, 36,000, $16; Iowa, 30,000, $14.50; Maine, 1,500, $25; Maryland, 7,800, $18; Massachusetts, 27,974, $25; Michigan, 27,000, $16.50; Minnesota, 22,000, $25; Mississippi, 15,000, $3.50; Missouri, 7,000, $9.50; Montana, 6,909, $22.25; Nebraska, 20,000, $18.33; New Hampshire, 2,900, $20; New Jersey, 16,700, $15.80; New Mexico, 5,205, $10; North Dakota, 5,830, $20; Ohio, 90,000, $15.10; Oklahoma, 34,399, $8; Oregon, 10,000, $25; Rhode Island, 2,991, $18; Utah, 5,550, $30; Vermont, 4,300, $11; Washington, 15,000, $20.58; Wisconsin, 30,000, $20; Wyoming, 2,017, $24.28.

Texas will have 56,250 to receive $20 a month.

Of the remaining states and territories, the latest study showed:

Other States.

Alaska, territory bears all expenses; age limit for men 65, women 60; must show insufficient means of support; men to get $35 a month, women $45, payable quarterly.

Arizona, administration local, supervised by state auditor; state to bear 67 per cent, counties 33 per cent; age limit 70; must have lived in state 35 years; annual income limit, $300; maximum assistance, $30 a month.

Kentucky, law not mandatory; no state administration, left to county commissioners; counties bear all expense; age limit 70; 10 years' residence in state and county; annual income limit, $400; maximum pension, $250 a year.

Nevada, no state supervision, administration by counties; fund provided by counties; age limit 65; 10 years' residence; $390 annual income limit; dollar a day maximum assistance.

Pennsylvania, complete state supervision by department of public welfare; state fund allocated to counties; age limit, 70; 15 years' state residence required; must be indigent; maximum assistance, $30 a month.

No Law in Georgia.

West Virginia, administration by county court; all funds supplied by counties; 65-year age limit; 10 years' residence in state and county required; must have no property or income; dollar a day maximum assistance.

Details of the Florida, New York and Hawaii plans were not available pending their study by the board.

Nor were details available regarding the Illinois and Kansas laws.

No laws exist in Louisiana, Georgia, Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia and South Dakota. All states contribute to the fund.

Scene of 1937 World Fair on Banks of Seine at Paris

Thirty-five nations will participate in the magnificent exposition at Paris next spring, it was announced by Madame Rene Batigne, inset, who recently visited Atlanta as the guest of former Governor and Mrs. John M. Slaton.

Georgians Invited To World Fair By French Envoy During Visit Here

The great World Fair to be held in Paris, France, next spring will be an exposition of all modern human progress in art and science, it was stated by Madame Rene Batigne, pretty American-born representative of the French government, who for several days last week was a visitor in the home of former Governor and Mrs. John M. Slaton.

Masterpieces of art and scientific innovations created in 35 nations will be housed in modernistic museums along the Seine, within several miles of the Eiffel tower.

For the first time in history, laboratories will be provided internationally known artists and scientists, gathered from all corners of the world, for discussion of common problems and theories. Picturesque villages, noted for a craft or a trade, will be strung along the boulevards in a setting colorful as that characteristic of French townships on days of festivity.

Sightseers may go from one museum building to another by boat or on moving sidewalks. Exposition buildings will be lighted with novel electric machinery which will convert colors to harmonize with music.

Thus, in brief, Madame Batigne describes the next international exposition.

She herself is a noted author and artist, who, until she married and went to live in France, was Claire Voight, of Columbia, S. C. She has been decorated twice for her works of art and recently was appointed by the commissaire general to tour this country, arousing America's interest in the World Fair.

Since her arrival week before last on the Normandie, she has met many Americans who have visited her salon on the Rue de la Chaise. On her way here, she stopped at Auburn, Ala., to visit her son, Jean, a student in the engineering school.

Georgians Invited.

Inviting Georgians to the exposition, she was enthusiastic over the possibility of the state having a cotton exhibition there, or displays of other products for which the state is famous.

"The fair grounds will extend along both sides of the Seine for two miles, embracing the Grand Palais, the Cours la Reine, the two modern museums now being built along the Avenue de Tokyo, the Invalides and many other of the most beautiful parts of the city," she said.

"There'll be magnificent exhibitions of art, science, industry, crafts—every step in modern progress," she continued. "As another great fair left the Eiffel tower in Paris, so will the next one leave the beautiful new Trocadero and two museums of modern art which, after the exposition, will receive the modern art works that are now in the Luxembourg museum and Petit Palais museum.

"The sights of Paris, shops, cafes, theaters and monuments will be wonderfully enhanced by the lighting effects, and the illusion will be created of Paris and the exposition as being one great show—a thousand and one nights created with a hundred thousand lights."

War Thoughts Dwindle.

War and hints of war dwindle to a shadow in the face of the exposition, according to France's representative.

"Europe wants peace more than anything else," she said. "Problems we have, indeed, but the great powers are extending hands of friendship. The 35 nations participating in the World Fair certainly do not intend to be at bayonet draw for at least a year, anyway."

France particularly is happy over America's entry in the fair, she declares, and quotes a French commissaire general speaking before the American Club of Paris:

"Now that your congress has voted American participation, I feel that I am speaking to associates of all the 35 nations. Not one can bring us more joy, inspiration and comfort than the United States. We shall meditate over what you bring over. You are teaching us a new scale of values."

Welcome for Artists.

Though Paris is old, it always has opened its heart to artists and liberal minds, Madame Batigne pointed out, and then explained what France and Paris will do for countries entering the exposition.

Each nation will be given a distinct exhibition section, designed by the commissaire general. Pavilions will be placed according to the importance of the country, and will be separated by space for open air exhibits, terraces and gardens. The foreign section will be placed in the very center of the fair grounds.

To Charles Loridans, French consul in Atlanta, Madame Batigne disclosed that transportation costs will be reduced 50 per cent throughout France during the exposition.

Madame Batigne left Atlanta for Asheville, and will go from there to Baltimore, Philadelphia and other eastern cities before returning to Paris early in July.

PACKER FILES SUIT TO RECOVER TAXES

Armour Seeks Return of $40,000,000 Paid Under AAA Measure.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—Armour & Company, one of the "big four" of Chicago meat packers, filed a claim today for return of more than $40,000,000 paid as processing taxes. The action brought to $86,000,000 the known sum asked by packers here within the last two days.

The Armour claim was filed with the collector of internal revenue, as was that of Swift & Company yesterday for approximately $35,000,000. Earlier yesterday the Cudahy Packing Company had brought action in federal district court seeking return of $11,903,983.

Wilson & Company, the other member of the "big four," declined to say whether it had taken action, but a source close to the industry said today "other (than Swift, Armour and Cudahy) big firms filed claims yesterday."

As a result, the informant said, a claim believed to have been filed but not announced would make the total exceed $100,000,000.

C. J. Faulkner, general counsel for Armour & Company, said its claim was based on the supreme court's invalidation of the AAA in which it called the processing taxes "invalid exactions."

Traffic Violators' Night School Considered Here by Judge Cone

Atlanta may have a night school for traffic offenders.

Judge John L. Cone, of recorder's court, before whom hundreds of traffic rules offenders pass daily, revealed yesterday that he is considering a new type of accident-prevention plan.

Judge Cone's idea is simplicity itself. Why not teach reckless, or just plain careless, drivers the fundamentals of safe driving?

"Some of these drivers who careen around the city streets actually don't know the simplest rules of safe driving," said the judge. "That's both dangerous and discouraging. Fining them doesn't have more than a temporary effect."

So, Judge Cone reasons, instead of fining them, why not teach these drivers, through charts and statistics, the proper methods of driving? The judge is willing to donate one night a week to such a school, he said.

"By giving traffic offenders suspended sentence, I can direct them to report to the traffic school. What a lot of them need is just a good illustrated course in safe driving. We have got to do something to make better drivers, other than fining those who are caught breaking traffic laws," he said.

Judge Cone said he is convinced this approach to the problem may accomplish better results than mere routine traffic fines.

N. DAKOTA PROMISED DROUTH ASSISTANCE

Citizens Gather in Mass Meetings To Discuss Emergency Needs.

BISMARCK, N. D., June 20.—(AP) Citizens gathered in mass meetings for a united front in the drouth emergency heard Governor Walter Welford relay the "assurance" of President Roosevelt today that the state would receive every possible support in battling the menace.

As gatherings opened in each county after another virtually rainless 24 hours, which played a part in pushing domestic market prices for wheat steadily federal weather observers forecast continued hot, dry weather for the coming week.

Welford, preparing to leave for Washington tomorrow to confer with President Roosevelt, outlined broad proposals to meet the tense situation, caused by the third successive year of unfavorable crop conditions. He spoke over a state-wide radio hookup.

He coupled his appeal for immediate measures with a plea for a long time view, saying:

"We cannot continue to muddle along on a hand-to-hand, day-to-day program. There is no sense in continuously being faced with a drouth relief problem."

Chief among his suggestions were plans to conserve available supplies of seed grain and livestock feed.

Welford suggested that all available roughage be conserved, including grain from abandoned fields, sudan grass and Russian thistles. He added that transportation of livestock to areas where feed is available must be arranged.

MANOR DATES TO 1637.

Roseland Manor, whose gardens cover acres overlooking historic Hampton Roads, Va., is an estate which has passed through a succession of owners dating from a land grant issued in 1637. The present manor house is the fourth to be built on the property.

SEN. FLETCHER'S BODY SENT TO JACKSONVILLE

Funeral Services Are Scheduled in Florida City This Afternoon.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—A sorrowing group of friends, colleagues and relatives boarded two private cars of a train here this afternoon to accompany the body of Senator Duncan U. Fletcher to Jacksonville, Fla., where funeral services will be held tomorrow.

The funeral party is due at Jacksonville tomorrow at 7 a. m. The body will be taken to the city hall, there to lie in state until afternoon services at the grave.

Mrs. Fletcher and members of the family were in one of the special cars, and a congressional escort, together with others from the capital, in the other.

Congressional Escort.

Five of the aged Floridan's senate colleagues—Chavez, of New Mexico; Loftin, of Florida; Smith, of South Carolina; Bulkley, of Ohio, and Townsend, of Delaware—formed part of the congressional escort.

Also in the group were three Florida representatives, Mark Wilcox, of West Palm Beach; Millard Caldwell, of Milton, and J. Hardin Peterson, of Lakeland.

The other two Florida representatives, W. J. Sears and R. A. Green, already are in Florida.

Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, was appointed by Vice President Garner as a member of the escort but he was unable to make the trip.

George Praises Fletcher.

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, a personal friend of the Floridan, was asked to join the escort, but declined because of pending matters in the senate.

The Georgia senator issued the following formal statement:

"When I entered the senate I found Senator Fletcher at his post of duty, always active, industrious, courteous, and sincerely devoted to the public welfare. . . . Out of his rich experience, his careful and painstaking study, he was enabled to reach correct conclusions upon matters of the highest importance. He contributed greatly to the constructive policies of the Wilson administration and much of the most important legislation of the Roosevelt administration bears not only his name, but reflects his unfailing devotion to public duty."

EDWARD PLANNING HOLIDAY AT CANNES

Society Women Rent Villas, Anticipating Social Whirl During Visit.

CANNES, France, June 20.—(AP)—Life perked up all along the Riviera tonight on the strength of reports King Edward of England was coming late next month to spend his summer holidays at Maxine Elliott's villa L'Horizon.

The actress remarked: "Of course, it is impossible for me to say anything. The fact that Major Sir John Aird, equerry to the king, was here three weeks ago should not lead one to suppose His Majesty is coming."

Society sources stated Lord Cholmondeley, one of the king's chamberlains, would occupy the nearby villa of Le Roc. (London sources stated the king had taken "a villa" at Cannes.)

It was reported the king would arrive aboard his yacht, the Victoria Albert, after attending the unveiling of the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge, July 26.

Many Americans, including Lady Mendl and Mrs. James Corrigan, were reported taking villas for August, anticipating a social whirl during the king's stay.

The paper on which is the will of Joseph Stanley, who died in 1770, is now worth more than the amount that it devised. Because it bears the rare signature of Button Gwinnett, signer of the declaration of independence, it is worth $10,000.

LEMKE'S PARTY PLANS CLEVELAND MEETING

date who believes it good political strategy to tell only the truth and keep his word."

Campaign Finances.

He emphasized he was not interested in the question of how, when and by whom his campaign was to be financed.

"I am not concerned about finances," he said. "Money is considered important only when deals are to be made, and the sovereignty of the people bargained away before election.

"My candidacy represents an honest and sincere desire on the part of the people, and in that case finances are not of prime importance. If they become necessary the people will know and contribute."

The union party platform, he said, was broad enough to attract all elements dissatisfied with policies of the major political parties, and sound enough to support a constructively united front.

Reports Verified.

While he declined to say whether there had been an actual meeting with share-the-wealth leaders, he verified reports that representatives of Rev. Gerald Smith, titular head of the movement since the death of Senator Huey Long, had "visited the house office building."

"I will say, however," he volunteered, "that we are assured all these groups which have been carrying their own fights welcome the opportunity to unite in a common offensive this fall, and that the country is going to get a big surprise in November."

Lemke and the union party were indorsed last night by Father Charles E. Coughlin, head of the National Union for Social Justice.

Today the Lemke platform was praised by the candidate's two republican senatorial colleagues from North Dakota, Frazier and Nye. Frazier said he believed in all of the planks in Lemke's platform and would probably support his candidacy.

FARM-LABOR MEET HELD IN WISCONSIN

OSHKOSH, Wis. June 20.—(AP)—The Wisconsin farmer-labor-progressive federation met in its first statewide convention today with indications pointing to a tussle between proponents of President Roosevelt and Representative William Lemke, newly announced union party presidential entry.

The six-month-old organization of "liberal" labor and farm groups had no more than convened before delegates from Marathon county and others said they planned to propose that it indorse the union party.

Members of the progressive party, friendly to President Roosevelt, said they would oppose this.

The convention quickly recorded itself in favor of a new national political alignment and declared that the success of the Minnesota farmer-labor party and the Wisconsin progressives next fall would pave the way for "a national victory in 1940."

By acclamation a resolution extending best wishes to the Minnesota farmer-labor party also was approved.

Federation's Stand.

Adoption of a platform, clarifying the federation's stand on "production for use" was a major business item.

Governor Philip F. La Follette, co-leader of the progressives with his brother, Senator Robert La Follette, has criticized the federation's previous declaration on the subject as vague and open to misinterpretation.

Governor La Follette is not a member of the federation but his secretary was a leader in its foundation last December. The federation's executive committee last night drafted a new resolution on "production for use" which leaders expect will be inserted in the platform.

However, some of the socialist leaders have criticized the Governor's stand and Herman O. Kent, secretary of the Milwaukee county socialist organization, asserted that if La Follette does not want "to indorse production for use as adopted by the federation, he is out of luck so far as our indorsement for governor is concerned."

The socialist party, powerful in Milwaukee, is one of the state groups represented in the federation.

NOT ON BALLOT IN MICHIGAN

LANSING, Mich., June 20.—(AP)—Orville E. Atwood, secretary of state, said today the name of the new "union party" announced by Representative William Lemke would not appear on ballots given Michigan voters on November 4 because state laws require six months' notice to certify a political party.

FILING PERIOD CLOSED IN MAY IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., June 20.—(AP)—Randall Cobb, state assistant attorney general, said today Oklahoma election laws apparently bar the way to entry of the third party presidential ticket headed by Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota.

The filing period for candidates in Oklahoma closed May 2.

KANSAS FILING DATE IS CLOSED

TOPEKA, June 20.—(AP)—The ticket of the new political party—the "union party of the United States," headed by Representative William Lemke, of North Dakota, as its presidential candidate—will not appear on the Kansas ballot.

Frank J. Ryan, secretary of state, said the deadline for filing of candidacies in Kansas subject to the primary and general elections this year passed at noon today without the new party taking steps to establish itself legally in this state.

They Had No Home---But Now Atlanta Provides One

Four husky youngsters at the Florence Crittenton Home, too young to realize what it means to have no father. Yet they must have their chance, and they will get it as part of the service that Atlanta gives to helpless and dependent little babies. Staff photograph by H. J. Slayton.

Chest Agencies Take Parents' Role In Caring for Neglected Infants

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of stories telling how Atlanta cares for dependent and neglected babies.)

By BOYCE M. EDENS, Executive Director, Community Chest.

Babies are the most helpless of living things.

Their wants are simple. Food and sleep are the essentials.

But food and sleep imply the peace and security of a home, the loving care of a mother, the protection of a father, the firm foundation of a family group.

Hundreds of helpless babies in Atlanta lack these things. What does Atlanta do about them?

Atlanta has set up agencies whose chief concern is for helpless, dependent, neglected babies.

Day in and day out they provide care for these needy little ones—keeping the home together whenever possible, or supplying the best possible substitute for the home or the parent that circumstances have denied or removed.

Nine agencies of the Community Chest work almost entirely with babies and little children. Their job is to see that each of these little ones has the chance he is entitled to. They have whole lives to set in the right paths.

Most of the other Community Chest agencies have special services for babies.

This service takes many forms. Care in the homes, in foster homes, boarding homes or institutions. Health protection in clinics and by visiting nurses. Adoption service that has brought sunshine to hundreds of childless homes. Day nursery care that permits hundreds of working mothers to keep their children by their side.

All this is part of the picture of community service to all those in need, from infancy to old age. But the work with babies, with its opportunities for building constructive lives, is one of the most appealing forms of this work.

GEORGIA DELEGATION WILL DEPART TONIGHT

has directed the Roosevelt campaign since its inception, has made no announcement.

Those favoring Allen for the chairmanship pointed out the following:

That by virtue of his management of the campaign and the fact that Governor Talmadge, the retiring national committeeman, will not attend the convention, he is entitled to head up Georgia's delegation.

That the chairmanship of the delegation would be a small reward for his giving four months of his time and effort to the campaign.

That he, more than anyone else, is familiar with the details to be handled at Philadelphia before the convention opens Tuesday.

Caucus Aboard Train.

The delegation is expected to hold a caucus aboard its train between Washington and Philadelphia, when the new national committeeman and national committeewoman will be selected, as well as the delegate's chairman.

This caucus will be delayed until the train reaches Washington in order to permit the senators and congressmen to participate in it. Mrs. Susie T. Moore, of Tifton, the present national committeewoman, is expected to be on the train and a number of her friends are urging her re-election. Others understood to be getting consideration for the place are Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, of Louisville; Mrs. A. B. Conger, prominent Bainbridge clubwoman; Mrs. Frank D. Innis, of Eatonton; Mrs. J. A. Rollison, of Waycross, and Mrs. Julian C. Lane, of Statesboro.

The delegation also is expected to appoint its representatives on the platform committee, the rules committee and other important committees at this caucus.

Particular consideration will be given to the member appointed on the rules committee because it is understood that this group will be asked to recommend to the convention whether or not, in future conventions, the two-thirds rule shall be dropped. No action on this is expected until after President Roosevelt is renominated in order that it shall not affect his situation. Senator Bennett C. Clark, of Missouri, a strong supporter of the plan to end the two-thirds rule, is slated to be chairman of the rules committee.

Talmadge on Farm.

Governor Talmadge, the retiring national committeeman, was at his farm near McRae yesterday. He does not plan to attend the convention and it is expected that Campaign Manager Allen, as head of the delegation, will take over the duties of the committeeman until the end of the convention until the new committeeman assumes his tasks.

All arrangements for the transportation of the delegation to Philadelphia have been completed, Jack J. Spalding, chairman of the transportation committee, announced yesterday. The train leaves from the Terminal station. Spalding and others have prepared a buffet supper and other entertainment for the party while the Seaboard Air Line has arranged to have a special lounge car attached to the train for visiting and conferences.

gram for the past three years which has enabled me to see its good and to help in whatever manner possible, the program of our democratic party."

Judge Larsen will speak in the Spalding county courthouse at 11 o'clock tomorrow in the interest of his candidacy for Governor. Judge W. H. Searcy will introduce Larsen.

At 8:30 o'clock tomorrow night Larsen will speak at an open air meeting at Stone Mountain.

OLD AGE PENSION PLAN SPONSORED BY LARSEN

SYLVANIA, Ga., June 20.—Former Congressman Wash Larsen spoke here this afternoon before the citizens of Screven county. Judge Larsen was introduced by his congressional colleague, Fet Overstreet.

Larsen sponsored the old age pension plan and said he was for the national administration in every respect, especially the national social security act which provides the pensions for the aged of the state. He came out in favor of the reduction of the state gasoline tax and asked for annual meeting of the general assembly. Speaking of his attitude towards elected officers the candidate said:

"I do not believe any one man has the right to remove from office any one elected to office by the voters of Georgia. When I become governor of the state I pledge myself that I shall have legislation passed to remove dictatorial powers from any man in the state of Georgia, be he the governor of the state or the head of either branch of the Georgia legislature."

PAID OWN EDUCATION, SAYS LARSEN AT MILLEN

MILLEN, Ga., June 20.—Speaking on his own 12-point platform, former Congressman Wash Larsen introduced here by Judge G. C. Dykle, prominent local attorney, urged his fitness for the office of governor and informed his listeners that he began life as a "one horse tenant farmer, without the horse." Aat one time, he said, he chopped turpentine boxes and operated a wholesale and retail grocery business. He said:

"There is not now living or has ever existed anyone who can truthfully say he contributed one cent towards my education. Left an orphan at 14 months of age I worked my way through school and college and paid every cent of tuition from the wages I earned."

"I am the candidate of no individual, faction, or political group," Larsen told his listeners. "I am going before the people of Georgia on my own platform, written and constructed by myself, alone."

their craftsmanship against that of other youngsters.

30,000 Saw 1935 Race.

Last year the Atlanta speedway was lined by approximately 30,000 people, a crowd believed to be one of the largest ever assembled in the history of the city.

In addition to copping the first place prize, the winner of Atlanta's derby gets a free trip to Akron, Ohio, to enter the grand national on August 16.

The race this year will be broadcast, like other leading sport events, so the exciting details of the heats and finals may reach parents and others interested in the contestants, and are unable to attend. The arrangements committee announced yesterday that WGST will carry the word pictures of the heats and finals.

Contestants may obtain an entry card and a list of rules from any Atlanta Chevrolet dealer. Entrants are urged by officials to fill out their applications as soon as possible. The enthusiastic entrance into the derby so far indicates the racing list will far exceed last year's.

Last of Prizes.

First prize this year will again be a miniature motor-driven car, offered by Loew's Grand theater. A similar car will be given to the boy making the best soap box racer by Chevrolet dealers.

Among other prizes will be a victory loving cup, offered by Gulf Refining Company; a complete clothing outfit, by Davison-Paxon's; a bicycle, by Mackey's Beauty Parlors; a wrist watch, by Schneers; Coyle soap box derby trophy, by Chevrolet Motor Company, and six gold, silver and bronze medals.

Many other prizes will be offered by Atlanta merchants. Announcements of prizes and rules and regulations will be published by The Constitution as soon as they are released by the arrangements committee.

PRESIDENT OF BERRY HONORED IN VERMONT

MOUNT BERRY, Ga., June 20.—Dr. G. Leland Green, president of Berry College for the past 17 years, and Mrs. Green have gone to Vermont, where Dr. Green will be given the honorary degree of doctor of education by his Alma Mater.

This is Dr. Green's second honorary doctorate, the University of Georgia having awarded him one several years ago. During Dr. Green's absence from Berry for a month the industrial work program of the college will be in charge of O. C. Skinner, dean of the department of industrial arts.

FULTON CONVICT HELD BY POLICE AT MACON

MACON, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—J. C. Smith, fingerprint expert of the Macon police department, said today a man arrested here last night told police he had escaped recently from the Laurens county chaingang near Dublin.

Smith said the man gave his name as Welton Brooks and said he was serving a 10-12 year sentence for burglary from Fulton county.

ROOSEVELT LIFTS EMBARGO ON ITALY

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP) Declaring the Italo-Ethiopian war has "ceased to exist," President Roosevelt today lifted the embargoes and restrictions clamped on those nations as a means of safeguarding American neutrality.

His proclamation, revoking the application of arms and financial embargoes and warnings against trading with the belligerents or travelling on their ships, closed the first test of planned United States neutrality since the World War.

The proclamation said the action was based upon the "fact" that a state of war no longer existed.

Today's proclamation was mandatory under the neutrality act, just as that law compelled him to apply certain restrictions once he established that war had broken out.

State department officials emphasized today's action did not imply recognition of the Italian annexation.

TECHWOOD WILL OPEN SOON, PWA ANNOUNCES

Atlanta, today said provisions of the measure were entirely satisfactory to Georgia interests.

As finally enacted by congress after being in conference between the two houses for a number of weeks, the measure provides that in the administration of Techwood and similar projects public works Administrator Ickes may fix the rentals at an amount at least sufficient to pay (1) all necessary and proper administrative expenses and (2) such sums as will suffice to repay, within a period not exceeding 60 years, at least 55 per cent of the initial cost, together with interest at such rate as he may deem necessary.

The bill, further provides that dwelling accommodations will be available only to families who lack sufficient income, without the benefit of financial assistance, to enable them to live in decent, safe and sanitary dwellings and under other than overcrowded housing conditions. No family will be accepted as a tenant whose aggregate income exceeds five times the rental of quarters.

Payment in lieu of taxes which will accrue to the city of Atlanta from the operation of Techwood or any other expenditures for operation and maintenance (including insurance) will come out of the receipts derived from operation of the project. To provide for such payments the PWA administrator is authorized from time to time to retain out of such receipts such sums as he may estimate is necessary for such purposes.

The term "rental" as used in the measure, will include the average cost, as determined by the administrator, of heat, light, water and cooking, where such services are not supplied by the lessor and included in the rent.

Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, co-author of the bill, and chairman of the senate conferees, agreed with Representative Ramspeck, who was largely responsible for getting it through the lower chamber, that after the President has signed it, Techwood will be enabled to pay its full way in the matter of police protection and other services provided by the city of Atlanta.

THOMAS W. NOLAND DIES AT S. C. HOME

Spartanburg Shop Foreman for Southern Formerly Lived in Atlanta.

Thomas Watson Noland, former Atlantan and shop foreman for the Southern Railway at Spartanburg, S. C., died at his home there yesterday after an illness of several months. He was 40.

A native of Atlanta, Mr. Noland was the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Noland. His father also is an employe of the Southern Railway, being attached to the shops here.

Mr. Noland had been associated with the Southern Railway for about 12 years, having risen from a car repairer to the foremanship of the Spartanburg shops.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by his wife; two sons, Jack and T. W. Noland Jr.; a daughter, Miss Ezelle Noland; two brothers, G. B. and C. S. Noland, and three sisters, Mrs. W. D. Thompson, Mrs. E. W. Puckett and Miss Edna Noland.

The body will be brought to Atlanta today and funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Cooper Street Baptist church with the Rev. Paul Gillam officiating. Burial will be in College Park cemetery.

ed in the action against Italy, and declared:

"The plain reason why an oil sanction was not imposed was that an enormous quantity of oil comes from a country which is not in the League of Nations and which we have no reason to believe would prohibit the export of oil.

"To put on a sanction merely for the sake of saying you have done it is a form of humbug to which I will not lend myself."

The prime minister asserted: "Collective security is incredibly difficult with some nations out of the League. But we shall try to get them back into it.

"If we had Japan, the United States and Germany in the League, collective security could be worked tomorrow."

Asks Preparedness.

The prime minister said collective security would never work unless the participating nations were prepared to threaten simultaneously with military sanctions.

"You come up against that awful fact," declared Baldwin, "that to try for peace by collective security, the first step means more war preparations. It is a horrible irony of a situation, yet you can't get away from it."

Lord Cecil, president of the League of Nations Union, directed his efforts toward stirring up a world-wide mobilization of public opinion in support of the League.

"Thursday's debate in the commons shows the world faces a crisis of the first magnitude," he said in a manifesto on behalf of an international peace campaign.

A union meeting which he addressed at Scarborough passed a resolution urging the government not to recognize Italy's annexation of Ethiopia and not to grant loans to Italy.

FRANCE FEARS ISOLATION IN BRITISH LEAGUE PLAN

PARIS, June 20.—(AP)—France hastened tonight to counter Great Britain's plan to change the League of Nations, fearing it might reduce her to a "state of dependency" in Europe.

A series of "suggestions" were rushed to foreign governments as a prelude to a scheme to strengthen the League—a scheme which the cabinet hoped would protect the French position.

Premier Leon Blum's proposal, it was stated, would retain the present League machinery which links her to her Little Entente and Russian allies. The government feared the British plan, reported as envisaging regional security pacts for western, central and eastern Europe, would force her into isolation.

The French plan would require signatories to the proposed regional alliance to take immediate military action in the event of aggression within their own district.

Nations outside the affected region would be obliged to apply economic sanctions against the nation named as the aggressor.

Sources close to Premier Blum reported the premier had renewed his pressure on Georges Bonnet, minister in many cabinets, to accept the post of ambassador to the United States.

The present Washington ambassador is Andre Lefebvre de Laboulaye.

It also was reported the replacement of three other ambassadors was under consideration. They are Count Charles de Chambrun, at Rome, Charles Alphan at Moscow and Jean Herbette at Madrid.

quota provisions of the Jones-Costigan sugar control act. This bill was intended as a stop-gap pending enactment of new basic legislation.

Bridge Bills Approved.

A large majority of the bills approved were those permitting the construction of bridges over navigable streams.

The President discussed the Philippine situation at length in his luncheon talk with Murphy, the red-haired former Detroit mayor.

Pointing out that the Philippines would be under the American flag for several years before full independence is theirs, Murphy told reporters congress should go slow in enacting excise taxes on imports from the islands.

He told newspapermen there was "nothing to the report" that he was under consideration for Postmaster General Farley's post in the cabinet and added that he wanted to continue his work in the Philippines.

CRIPPLE EXONERATED IN DEATH OF TWELVE

Parents Say Nobody Is To Blame in Holiday Drownings.

EAST MACHIAS, Maine, June 20. (UP)—Calvin London, 56-year-old cripple, was exonerated by Washington county authorities today of criminal negligence in the drowning of 12 children when his frail boat capsized in Gardner lake.

"It was just an accident and no one is blaming London, who thought he was doing the children a favor by giving them a ride in his boat," Frank McCurdy, whose 11-year-old son, Daniel, was drowned, told investigators.

Sheriff James A Cummings, who said McCurdy voiced the sentiments of the other bereaved parents, said the investigation was closed.

Dr. De Costa Bennett, of Lubec, home of the victims, was named head of a committee to arrange a community funeral service for the children.

The 12 victims were among 90 children celebrating their first day of the summer vacation with a picnic. They ranged in ages from 8 to 17. A favorite with the children, London invited the happy group to ride across the lake. Sixteen accepted.

A few feet from the bank the craft listed, shipped water and flopped over. There was a chorus of screams, then silence as water closed over the passengers.

London and two children clung to the capsized boat. Miss Stella Burhoe, 23, a teacher, dived into the lake and brought up Marion Kelly, 8. She paused beside the boat where another little girl was screaming. The teacher slapped the girl to stop her hysteria, admonishing her to hang on. The girl obeyed and was saved. Miss Burhoe reached shore with the child she had reached.

The boat overturned in 10 feet of water and all the bodies were recovered within two hours.

Other victims were Evelyn Mahar, Rayman Knowles, Ronald Eaton, Aaron Mahar, Doris Small, Christine Sleight, Merle Lewis, Jerome Kenney, Milton Dinsmore, Glen Morey and Frank Reynolds.

$4,700,000 PROJECT FOR NEGROES BEGUN

Ickes Dedicates Harlem Construction as Humane Symbol.

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—A $4,700,000 PWA low-rent housing project for negroes was dedicated by Secretary Ickes today as "a symbol of an attainable and more humane future."

Saying that Harlem river houses (on which construction started today) and other PWA slum-clearance developments over the country would accomodate 25,000 families, Ickes urged the enactment of the Wagner housing bill as "one of the finest pieces of social legislation."

Ickes asserted that one-third of American families lacked decent homes. Declaring "the position of the negro in our present economic life must be disturbing to the soul of Abraham Lincoln," he emphasized that PWA housing developments were being provided for both the negro and the white races.

The Metropolitan Opera house rejected the offer of a $100,000 donation from a rich opera hopeful who wanted to return to have a starring role for one night.

MUSEUM CONTEST TO CLOSE JUNE 27

High School Seniors Urged To Apply for New Scholarships.

High school seniors wishing to take part in the High Museum's art school scholarship competition should obtain their entry blanks immediately, officials said yesterday. The contest will close June 27.

The two scholarships offered will go to members of this year's graduating classes in the high schools. One will be awarded to a girl and one to a boy. The contestants may live anywhere, as the contest is entirely open in this respect.

A full nine-month course of study will be offered, starting September 8 when the fall term will open.

After obtaining entry blanks and further details from the museum, two samples of work must be submitted. These may be done in any medium, pencil, pen, brush, pastel, oil, watercolor or crayon, or any other. Interest in the contest has been keen but anyone wishing to enter now should have an excellent chance of success. The opportunity offered is an unusual one and will make possible a chance for study in an art school which has always turned out capable graduates. Practically all of them have obtained positions or have gone on to win further scholarships and prizes.

Renovated following the fire of last winter, the museum is now in finer condition and presents better working surroundings than ever before in its history.

The contest winners will be announced around July 14.

FIRE NOW RAGING IN GREAT SMOKY

National Park Service Dispatches Experts To Combat Flames.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—Hillory A. Tolson, acting director of the National Park Service, announced today a group of experts had been sent to help combat a forest fire in the Great Smoky Mountains (Tennessee) National Park.

Tolson, who said it was the largest forest fire which the park service ever has had to cope in the east, said 600 Civilian Conservation Corps members were aiding to bring it under control.

In response to a call for help from J. Ross Eakin, park superintendent, Chief Forester John D. Coffman, Forester John F. Shanklin, Regional Forester Fred Arnold and J. L. Duford, inspector of emergency work, were sent to Tennessee from Washington headquarters.

More than 1,000 acres of forest already have been burned out, Tolson said.

PLANE, REPORTED LOST, LOCATED IN FLORIDA

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 20.—(AP)—An army transport plane, reported missing in a bureau of air commerce radio announcement, spent the night here and took off today for Langley Field, Va.

The plane, piloted by Captain A. Y. Smith and carrying three other army fliers as passengers, arrived here from Miami about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Airport attendants said they had no idea how the report of the plane being missing originated.

The time to throw a man is when he is moving or exerting his strength in the same direction as that in which you wish to throw him. The force of the aggressor is then applied along the line of least resistance.

Smoke Cuts Physical Resistance, Boosts Deaths, Abercrombie Says

Dr. T. F. Abercrombie, director of the Georgia Department of Public Health, declares smoke reduces life expectancy.

Industrial cities, he says, where smoke is more prevalent, have higher death rates than cities where the air is reasonably free of the fumes.

He declares:

"We cannot point to any one death and say definitely that it was caused by smoke. But smoke lowers physical resistance against diseases of the respiratory tract. Minor respiratory diseases are by far the most frequent."

He illustrates his point:

"Here in Atlanta when smoke begins to pour from chimneys in large volume the cases and deaths from pneumonia and other respiratory diseases increase accordingly."

He says smoke is not an immediate cause of tuberculosis but that smoke fumes are an extra burden on the diseased lung.

"Smoke also contributes to the suffering of those afflicted with heart trouble and increases the distress of those with nervous complaints," Dr. Abercrombie declares.

The health specialist adds that smoke reduces the ultraviolet rays accessible to an individual and thus forms a contributing cause for anemia.

2 FISHING HOUSEWIVES START BIG INDUSTRY

Unwitting Catch of Soft-Shell Crabs With Bush Leads to Expansion.

BARATARIA, La., June 10.—(AP)—A one-time costly luxury has become an inexpensive delicacy because two native Louisiana women five years ago dipped a bush into shallow, brackish Lake Salvador, 30 miles below New Orleans, to catch young shrimp as bait for catfish lines.

Mrs. Louis Martin and Mrs. Frank Burgess, of Bayou Pirogue in Jefferson parish, litle thought that they were starting up something new in the Louisiana soft shell crab industry.

But, when they pulled up the bush, instead of shrimp they had caught a batch of soft shell crabs which their husbands took up to the general store on Big Barataria bayou.

"Our wives," the husbands told the proprietor of the store, "they want some shrimp to bait a catfish line, so they let down a bush. They caught these. Got any use for them?"

"Sure," came the reply. "I'll pay you 75 cents a dozen for 'em. Go catch some more. There's always a market for soft shell crabs in New Orleans." There were three dozen crabs in the catch.

Big Industry Now.

Today as a result of this hapless catch the industry on Lake Salvador has grown to such proportions that the price of soft shell crabs for New Orleans housewives has dropped from $3 to $1 a dozen.

In addition, the crabs are shipped to near-by and even far-away states, either iced or still kicking. The samplers say even the frozen soft crab retains his flavor.

In the big lakes of Pontchartrain and Borgne, closer to New Orleans, the usual practice is to catch the hard shell crabs, sort them into flating crates and keep them in the water until they shed their shells.

Then the soft shell crabs are sent to market before they form their new hard shells. This happens to the crab every month or two for the first 13 or 14 months of his life.

But after the bush dipping in Lake Salvador in 1931 the natives discovered that the crabs by the thousands swam into shallow waters of the lake as a refuge at shedding time. Today a hundred persons are catching them by the primitive bush method and supplying the market with their catches "in the raw."

Undressing Grounds.

When the crabs flock to their undressing grounds they go there to seek shelter from their submarine enemies and not to feed. Practically helpless they cling to anything thick and bushy into which they might hide.

Thus htey cluster in the bush which the natives call the "seria" or "cherry tree," a tree that grows as high as 20 feet and is used exclusively in the catches.

When the bush is pulled up by a rope to the surface of the water the fishermen takes a scoop net and all he has to do is to shake off the crabs into the net and pull it ashore.

STEEL UNION REVEALS 2 PCT. WAGE INCREASE

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 20. (AP)—Michael Tighe, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, announced today members of that union would receive a two per cent wage increase, effective July 1.

The new wage agreement, Tighe said, resulted from negotiations with the Western Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers' Association. The agreement will expire June 30, 1937, he said.

Conferences between union officials and the manufacturers' group began here Monday and ended last night.

ITALY NOT TO ATTEND LAUSANNE CONFERENCE

Powers To Discuss Turkey's Request to Rearm Dardanelles.

ROME, June 20.—(AP)—Italy will be an absent but interested partner when signatories of the Lausanne treaty meet Monday at Montreaux, Switzerland, to discuss Turkey's demand for permission to rearm the Dardanelles.

Il Duce will continue his policy of suspended collaboration in European affairs by sending no representatives to the conference, but he will follow it closely from a distance in the belief the conferees may discuss a Mediterranean pact.

If the conference continues after the League of Nations assembly lifts sanctions from Italy, as it is expected to do shortly, the Italians may attend.

Collective Action.

"It is absurd to expect Italy to cooperate in collective action parleys in Europe while a large group of surrounding countries continue manifesting hostility toward her," a press ministry official said of Monday's conference.

Behind this mask of hurt indifference, however, diplomats see guarded opposition to the Turkish aim. There are historic reasons for this feeling.

Mutual Italo-Turkish distrust is one of Europe's "naturals" in the light of Italian African expansion.

Italy Defeated Turkey.

Twenty-five years ago Italy defeated Turkey in a war in which she obtained Libya and the Dodecanese islands. The latter gave Italy a strategic position commanding the southern end of the Aegean sea, a few miles from Turkey's Asia Minor coast. Italian airplanes at their base on the island of Leros are within easy striking distance of Constantinople and Ankara.

Furthermore, President Ataturk, of Turkey, beat off an Italian post-war attempt to gain a zone of influence in Turkish Anatolia. Italy's Versailles conference "defeats" are among the bitter experiences which bolster Mussolini's justification of his Ethiopian war.

Again, Ataturk was a prime mover in the formation of the Balkan entente which Italy opposed as an effort to isolate her from her friends, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria and Albania.

MRS. J. W. MINTER RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. J. W. Minter, well-known Atlantan and former resident of Monticello, who died Friday, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

Following the rites, at which the Rev. Walker Combs will officiate, burial will be at the family cemetery near Monticello at 5 o'clock (E. S. T.) this afternoon.

Mrs. Minter was 68 years old and was a native of Jasper county. Her husband was the late J. W. Minter, a former cotton buyer at Monticello.

ENGLAND LAUNCHES FIRST OF NEW SHIPS

GREENOCK, Scotland, June 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British prime minister, christened H. M. S. Glasgow, a 9,000-ton cruiser, as it was launched today.

The Glasgow is the first of six cruisers of the 1935 naval program to take the water.

Haile Selassie, deposed emperor of Ethiopia, watched the launching from a yacht.

MARCONI AND ALOISI MADE REAR ADMIRALS

ROME, June 20.—(AP)—Dr. Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraph, was named a rear admiral of the Italian navy by Premier Mussolini today. The decree was issued by Mussolini's authority as minister of the navy. Baron Pompeo Aloisi, Italian delegate to the League of Nations, was made rear admiral also.

DAKOTA'S PRIMARY SET FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Size of Vote Accorded Representative Lemke Will Be Watched.

BISMARCK, N. D., June 20.—(AP) North Dakota's bitterly fought primary campaign—counted to produce a record turn out of voters Wednesday—took on added importance today from Representative William Lemke's projection into the presidential race as a "third party" candidate.

Lemke is unopposed for renomination on the republican ticket but the size of his vote will be watched as an indication of his following at home. He has the support of both factions of the potent non-partisan league.

Chief interest within this drouth-harassed state centers on the contest for leadership of the 21-year-old league and the republican nomination for governorship between Governor Walter Welford and former Governor William Langer, two of the leading figures in the recent turbulent political sequence.

These two, former friends and running mates when Langer was last elected governor and Welford lieutenant governor, have battled hammer and tongs.

Langer, removed as governor two years ago following his conviction on a federal charge of soliciting campaign funds from government-paid workers, is credited with a large following among the non-partisans. His conviction later was turned into an acquittal as the outcome of his third trial on the federal indictment.

Welford, however, obtained control of the republican party machinery at his recent convention and has had aid from independent or "regular" republicans—frequently a third faction in the party.

The independents have entered no candidates this year.

COINS WILL BEAR SEN. GLASS' FACE

Will Commemorate 150th Anniversary of Lynchburg, Va., Charter.

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 20.—(AP) Coins commemorating the 150th anniversary of the issuance of Lynchburg's city charter will bear a likeness of United States Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, the board of directors of the Lynchburg Sesqui-Centennial Association announced today.

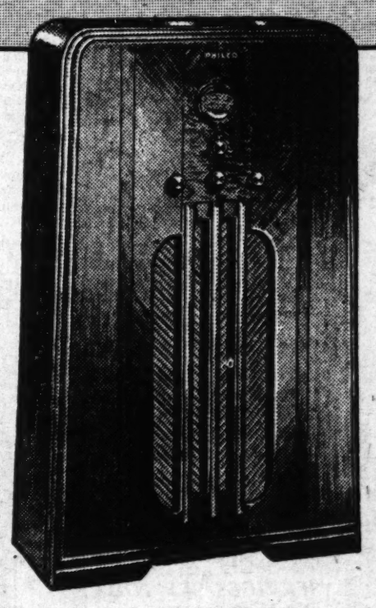

By selecting Senator Glass, his native city wins for him the distinction of being the second person in history so honored during life, and the first living person whose likeness appears alone on a government-issued coin of this type.

The only other person honored by a commemorative coin during his life was the late President Calvin Coolidge, whose likeness appeared, together with one of George Washington, on the coin issued in 1926 to mark the sesqui-centennial celebration of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The Lynchburg celebration will be held the week of October 12 but the coins will be minted shortly and will be ready for distribution within two months. Although the association has yet to commission a sculptor for the work, hundreds of orders have been received from all parts of the country, in anticipation of the issue.

Mrs. Sista Corona, Mexican, bore 13 children before she was 24 years old.

GRAND JURY SCORES CONDITIONS AT PARKS

Negro Held in Child's Attack Given Too Many Liberties, Probers Find.

The Fulton county grand jury yesterday recommended an investigation of all public parks and other places of recreation both inside and outside the limits of the city of Atlanta to ascertain whether desirable conditions exist. Special presentments were released during the afternoon.

Text of the presentments follow:

"We the undersigned members of the jury, who heard the evidence and acted on the case of the state vs. Will Wright (colored) charged with the offense of rape, said rape having been committed on a young white girl only 12 years of age and said offense having occurred in Grant park, one of the public parks of the city of Atlanta, wish to offer the following resolution, to wit:

"Resolved, that, according to the evidence brought out at this trial it is clearly evident that the defendant, Will Wright, was accorded far greater privileges than should have been given to him in that he was permitted to carry keys to practically all the buildings at the park, that he in the performance of his duties was thrown with white children of all races and walks of life and had the opportunity to commit the crime of which he was charged, which opportunity would not have arisen had the position been in the hands of a capable, honest and reliable white man of good character both as to the position occupied but in the community in which he lived;

"We further deplore the fact that the evidence brought out at this trial indicated strongly that this defendant had financial as well as moral backing of certain employes connected with the government of our city;

"We further feel that an investigation should be made by the grand jury of this county covering all the public parks and other places of recreation both inside and outside of the city limits and that such recommendations as may be necessary be made to see that proper safeguards are placed at all such places to protect to the fullest extent the children of our fair city and conty. We also feel that a special investigation should be made by the grand jury as to why the condition existed at Grant park and the solicitor general and his assistants in the handling of this case."

"In closing we wish to commend our able solicitor general and his assistants in the handling of this case."

COST ACCOUNTANTS DEPART FOR PARLEY

Leaving today, a group of Atlanta cost accountants will attend the International Cost Conference in Cincinnati, June 22-25, held every year under the direction of the National Association of Cost Accountants, according to Grady Powell, Atlanta chapter publicity director.

Among those attending are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Baker, Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Williams, M. F. Pixton, E. W. Gottenstrator, J. J. Doran, C. D. Harrison, C. B. Merritt and C. M. Watt Jr.

WOMAN BADLY HURT IN FALL FROM AUTO

Falling out the door of an automobile, Mrs. Sallie Nimmons, 73, of Route 1, Atlanta, suffered severe head injuries late Friday night near her home.

She was taken to Grady hospital and remained overnight for observation, but was dismissed yesterday morning. It was at first believed she suffered a fractured skull.

Pretty 'Hangover' From Realtors' Annual Outing

Here are a bevy of pretty bathers who were a part of the large crowd attending the annual Real Estate Board outing at the Druid Hills Golf Club last Tuesday. Atlanta Realtors' Annual Outing Most Pleasing Event Ever Staged

BY PRESS HUDDLESTON.

Atlanta realtors and their friends who were fortunate enough to attend the annual outing of the Real State Board last Tuesday at Druid Hills Golf Club, are unanimous in saying that it was the largest attended and most enjoyable of any similar event yet held. Paul C. Maddox, president of the board, was high in his praise of the work of the outing committee, headed by Jesse Draper.

"These annual outings," said Mr. Maddox, "are growing in popularity, and we realtors are proud of that. It is not only a time for play for the workers, and always enjoyed by a large number of our friends, but it gives all the workers and others interested in real estate an opportunity to come together and get better acquainted, and brings about a more congenial and co-operative spirit among us."

Just a little "foxy" but rather amusing stunt the girls pulled during the dance the evening of the outing. It was all framed up nicely, and they lined the men up and made them parade around the ball room three or four times, but for what purpose they did not know. Finally it was announced that a prize was to be given the handsomes man. It was too late then to slick down their hair and adjust their ties and powder their noses. The judges had already centered on Hoke Blair as the prize winner. He received the prize gratefully and accepted the compliment blushingly.

Delayed Outing Notes.

The golf tournament was one of the most hotly contested events. It took considerable figuring to really prove who were the winners, but here they are: Low gross, Josh Davis; low net, Dick Garlington; blind bogey, Perry Adair.

Did you (if you were present) take a shot at estimating the number present at the barbecue tables? Well, nearly everybody did. Mrs. Herman Martin was nearest among the ladies and T. G. Sparks missed the attendance by only two, they being the winners.

Even without his megaphone it could easily be seen who was the ruling spirit—the boss of the sheebang—at the outing. For didn't Gilbert Withers have on a big green cap that made him look like Napoleon crossing the Alps? But "Gyp" was right there when it came to mastering the ceremonies, and he made a good job of it.

June and Jane—they had more admirers than anyone else on the grounds. They led the beauty parade, and as they danced around the pool in their bathing suits they looked as much alike as two black-eyed peas. They are the charming little three-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles LeFontaine. They could hardly be counted contestants just yet, but boys, just wait a few years, and they will walk off with many prizes at the realtors' outing.

By the way, did you know that there are many fine singers among the realtors? Why, they made the welkin, or whatever you call it, ring at one of the big barbecue tables. Jimmy Calhoun, with his smooth, strong tenor voice, led most of the songs, and later sang a solo or two. The singing was an enjoyable feature. (No, it's not what you think. They didn't sing "Sweet Adeline.")

Well, everything is lovely, and the beauty judges are back in the city and have the forgiveness of everybody. They are walking the streets now as boldly as ever, with consciences they say absolutely clear It's no harm now to tell who the judges were. The master of ceremonies selected them on the ground—George Northen, Bryon Souders and W. D. Foote.

After a strenuous week or more aiding the outing committee in arranging details, Mrs. Louise H. Peacock, executive secretary, took off Friday and Saturday in a little rest and motor trip to South Georgia. She will be back on the job Monday.

DR. W. P. GLOVER, 83, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Retired Physician Served in Confederate Army; Operated Cotton Mills.

Dr. Washington Pierce Glover, prominent retired physician and a resident of Atlanta for the past 20 years, died yesterday at a private hospital at the age of 83. He had been ill a year.

Dr. Glover was a native of Clinton, Ga., a member of a pioneer Jones county family. Although under enlistment age at the time of the War Between the States, he participated in the defense of Macon and saw service in the conflict.

Following the war, he attended medical school in Nashville, later serving his internship at Bellevue hospital, New York. He returned to Jones county and practiced there for many years.

Upon the death of his father, N. S. Glover, he operated a cotton mill and under his management greatly enlarged the business and scope of the plant. Later he founded another mill in Monroe county.

Dr. Glover was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of Gate City Lodge No. 2, F. & A. M., and a member of the Primitive Baptist church.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. John H. Lowe, of Macon, and five grandchildren, Miss Eleanor Lowe and Joseph Lowe, of Gainesville; W. P. Lowe, of Macon; Miss Miriam Lowe, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. A. Haley, of Lumber City.

Final rites will be held at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. The Rev. William Green will officiate and burial will be in West View cemetery.

MOTHER OF ATLANTAN DIES IN WALDEN, N. Y.

Mrs. Frank Crist, mother of Nelson Crist, of 1482 Stokes avenue, prominent Atlantan, died Thursday at her home in Walden, N. Y. Final rites will be held in Walden this afternoon.

Crist, a landscape gardener, is secretary of Battle Hill Lodge No. 53, F. & A. M., chairman of the board of deacons of Gordon Street Presbyterian church, and a member of the Atlanta Florists' Club.

SERVICES SET TODAY FOR RICHARD SESSIONS

Final rites for Richard Sessions, 69, a resident of Decatur for the past 12 years, who died Friday night, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at the Spring Hill chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son.

The Rev. Claude H. Pritchard will officiate and burial will be in Dawson cemetery, near Blackburn.

Sessions was a veteran of the Spanish-American War and a former employe of the N., C. & St. L. railroad. He held membership in the Presbyterian church.

East Point Show To Open Despite Shutdown Order

East Point's Fairfax theater, which is operated on Sundays for charity by the American Legion post, will be opened today in the face of a councilmanic order to city police to close the doors, it was declared yesterday by Legionnaires.

Notice was served on theater officials yesterday that police will take steps today on order of city council, to close the theater, despite the recent acquittal of theater employes in East Point recorder's court on charges of operating on Sunday, it was reported.

R. S. Thompson, member of the post, said yesterday the Fairfax will be opened.

"We'll have several Legionnaires there to take tickets and do other jobs as usual," he said. "The Legionnaires will be there to keep things running and they'll try to, though they won't do anything illegal.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVITY BOOMING EVERYWHERE

Real estate activity apparently confines itself to no specific section of this country. The Philadelphia Inquirer, for example, notes that 1936 building operations in the Quaker City have gained close to $8,000,000 over the corresponding period of 1935. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch notes that in St Louis a brisk demand is seen for suburban small residences. The Detroit News publishes a report by Walter W. Rose, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, in which he predicts a long-term upswing for real estate. Down in New Orleans, according to the Times-Picayune of that city, the sale of $25,000,000 worth of property removed so much real estate from the market that New Orleans is currently unable to supply the demand for property.

REALTY COMMISSION LISTS THOSE LICENSED

Advisers Renters and Buyers To Deal Only With Authorized Agents.

Members of the Georgia Real Estate Commission, in their efforts to protect buyers and renters of real estate, have just issued a list of persons, firms or corporations who have been duly licensed by the commission to carry on a real estate and renting business.

This action by the commission should prove of value to those who rent or those who buy real estate for homes, business or investments. The members of the commission are Joseph Flournoy, chairman; Richard E. Allen Jr. and Jesse Draper. In their announcement they declare that "the real estate license law in Georgia provides that any person acting as real estate broker or salesman in Fulton, DeKalb and certain other counties of Georgia, first obtain a license from the Georgia Real Estate Commission.

"The license law further provides that no person, firm or corporation shall have the right to enforce in any court in this state any claim for commissions, profits, option profits or fees for any business done as real estate broker or salesman, without having previously obtained the required license."

The list of licensed brokers and salesmen for Fulton and DeKalb counties, are prepared by the state commission, appears exclusively in today's Constitution. The statement by the commission also says: "Some licenses may have been issued after the publication of this list. If you are in doubt whether a person is duly licensed to engage in the real estate business, communicate with the Georgia Real Estate Commission, Room 111, State Capitol, Atlanta. Phone Walnut 4231."

ARTISTS EXHIBITING IN TWO LOCATIONS

But Admit Nature's Handiwork Is Far Superior to Their Paintings.

Two Atlanta artists who once planned to hold a joint exhibition in which they would show the world "something different," today are displaying their paintings at Carnegie library, for the critics, and out at Georgia Baptist hospital are showing a bouncing baby girl for their friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Jackson are the parents and artists, with Jackson admitting yesterday he was far prouder of being a father than a joint art exhibitor with his wife, even though they have looked forward to the exhibition for years.

The artists planned the present exhibition when they were students several years ago at the High Museum of Art. Their paintings represent work done by them since their marriage. The day before their paintings went on display at Carnegie, the baby was born and they gladly turned arrangements for the exhibit over to members of the Studio Club of Atlanta, sponsor.

When Mrs. Jackson was a student in art school she was Ernestine Tinsley, winner of an art league award for the best water color in a competition. Jackson won a similar award for the best landscape in oils, and also won the Foreman award for the best painting of an Atlanta scene.

Today the exhibition they planned as students is drawing praise from Atlanta critics. The artists, however, admit they are much prouder of the praise given the baby at the hospital.

EXPORT BANK ASSUMES CHINESE OBLIGATIONS

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—The Export-Import Bank announced today it had taken over credits advanced the Chinese government of the Reconstruction Corporation and the Grain Stabilization Corporation for the purchase of American cotton, wheat and flour.

Of the original RFC credit of $17,105,385, a balance of $13,537,387 remains due. The original Stabilization Corporation credit of $9,212,825 has been reduced to $3,070,942 by regular installment payments on principal and interest.

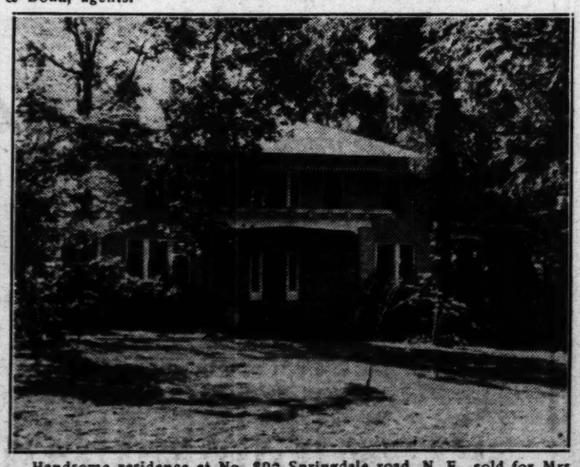

To simplify handling, the two credits now have been consolidated on the Export-Import Bank's books.

The obligation is payable in quarterly installments over a period of six years and is secured by Chinese customs taxes.

Whitewash Hides Old Brick of New Home

OLD BRICK USED IN THIS RESIDENCE

Blocks Whitewashed to Match Trim; Home Topped With Slate.

Second-hand brick, whitewashed to match the wood trim, are topped with slate shingles in this Hempstead, Long Island, colonial home.

It includes a separate dining room, attached garage, first floor lavatory, completely equipped kitchen and basement playroom.

The plan is well organized, and the space, as in the small but uncramped hall, is used economically. The work space works, and the service entrance, right outside the kitchen window, is excellently located for convenience.

Designed by Reinhard M. Bischoff, architect, and selected as one of a group of small houses by "The Architectural Forum," the structure cost $6,500 to build.

The fireplaces are of black face brick, with hearths constructed of black tile.

Red cedar shingles roof the garage portion.

ALLEGED BURGLAR HELD BY MAN, WIFE

Police Are Summoned After Intruder Is Subdued by Couple.

A negro who allegedly entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jones, at 433 Washington street, at 4 o'clock yesterday morning, was taken captive by the couple and held until the arrival of police.

They reported the intruder entered their apartment through a window leading from the front porch. The negro, who was charged with suspicion of burglary, gave his name as Joe Chandler, 20, of a Traynham street address.

W. R. Hines, of 1409 Fairview road, surprised a burglar in his home when he returned to the residence at 4.15 o'clock yesterday morning. The marauder had entered the residence by breaking out a glass in the front door. He fled through a window and Mr. Hines told police he was unable to give a description of the intruder.

Burglars entered the concession stand at Oakland City swimming pool during the early morning hours yesterday and took $35 in cash and cigarets and chewing gum valued at $13. The burglary was discovered by Radio Patrolmen M. G. Jenkins and H. D. Gaines.

HARRY WOOLLEY BUYS HOME ON OAKDALE RD.

Sale of the two-story brick residence located at 1146 Oakdale road was announced yesterday by the Adams-Cates Company. This residence has four bedrooms, two baths, a slate roof and was sold by Mrs. May G. Bailey. The new owner is Harry L. Woolley, associated with the American Bakeries Company. Mr. Woolley bought the place for a home. W. Hoke Blair handled the sale, which was consummated yesterday in the offices of William G. Grant, attorney.

CEMENT TRADE GROWS.

The cement industry, according to George H. Snyder, business editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is back on a profitable basis due to the rising volume of construction work all over the country. Mr. Snyder reports that some producers managed during the past two years to make money. But the industry as a whole lost a good deal of ground during the depression. This year, he writes, the average producer will make a profit.

MIAMI BEACH BUILDING.

Twenty-six new residences, 10 apartment houses, eight hotels, and a number of miscellaneous structures built during May boosted the total value of construction at Miami Beach, Fla., this year to $4,018,344, according to a report of Building Inspector J. J. Farrey. This compares with construction for the similar period of 1935 valued at $3,173,750. Incidentally May's volume of construction was the highest for any May during the city's history. The average cost per residence during May was $13,262.

SOLOIST SUCCUMBS.

COLUMBUS, Ohio., June 20.—(AP) Austin "Skin" Young, 38, former soloist with Paul Whiteman's, Abe Lyman's and other bands, died here today of tuberculosis. His home was in Columbus. He was well known in theatrical circles throughout the country.

DAVIS FISH FRY COMES THIS WEEK

Guests of Title & Trust Co. Will Attend Fete Saturday.

Scores of friends and patrons of the Atlanta Title & Trust Company are being delighted with an invitation to attend the big fish fry given by that company each year. The event is scheduled for 2 o'clock next Saturday at the farm of W. J. Davis, president of the company, on the banks of the Chattahoochee river.

These are always delightful occasions and are attended by many hundreds of Atlantans. Mr. Davis makes the request that all parties receiving an invitation please indicate their acceptance as early as possible, so that Will Rapp and Charlie Gramling, the fish fry kings, who will prepare the feast, will know how many of the finny tribe to pull from the river and brown to a turn for all.

Here are the directions for reaching the scene of the fry: Drive out Howell Mill road or Pace's Ferry road to the Chattahoochee river, cross the bridge to the Cobb county side, turn to the right, entering gate, and follow the road along the river up to the house.

74TH CONGRESS QUITS DESPITE FILIBUSTER

for adjournment tonight. It was rushed to the senate.

Did Not Take Hint.

That chamber did not take the hint immediately. Instead it filled the air far into the night with speeches, political sniping, an occasional bit of good natured fun, and now and then a bit of actual legislating.

During one interruption for a bit of actual work, the senate approved several nominations and then shot through the Walsh-Healey bill to require government contractors to comply with wage and hour standards. The bill went to the White House when house amendments were accepted without a trace of opposition.

The only other major action in the waning hours of the congress was senate rejection, 34 to 17, of a last-minute push for the Frazier-Lemke bill, which would have permitted the printing of $3,000,000,000 of new money to refinance farm debts.

Amendment Sought.

Senator Frazier, republican, of North Dakota, sought to attach it as an amendment to the coal bill.

The crowded galleries were treated in both senate and house to intermittent bursts of political fireworks.

The most brilliant display was touched off by Senator Steiwer, republican, of Oregon, with a sizzling charge of "fraud" and "forgeries" in the administration of the AAA in Texas. Democrats leaped up with counter-charges that the Oregonian's informant had been discharged and discredited by the AAA.

As the hour of midnight was reached in the house, the hands of the clock were turned back while Chairman Doughton, democrat, of North Carolina, of the ways and means committee expressed the regret of the house over the retirement of Representative Samuel B. Hill, democrat, of Washington, who has been appointed to the board of tax appeals.

Hill had been chairman of the important subcommittee in charge of drafting tax bills including this session's big revenue measure.

"If I Come Back."

"If I come back next year—" was a frequent preface to many conversations, for there are some members who will not return, either voluntarily or because their constitutents decide against it.

The controversial food and drug bill was killed when the house refused to agree to a division of advertising control between the agricultural department and the federal trade commission.

The battle for passage of the three-year-old legislation was led by Chairman Rayburn, democrat, Texas, of the Interstate Commerce committee.

The filibusterers willingly yielded the floor from time to time to permit the confirmations of appointees and to enact finally the Walsh-Healey "NRA" bill which would impose wage and hour restrictions on contractors selling goods to the government.

Fought to the end as bitterly as at any time during the three and a half months in which the legislators tussled with it, the revenue measure's stormy journey was ended when the senate adopted, 42 to 29, a compromise conference report on the measure—estimated to raise $800,000,000.

Leaders at once hailed the action as signaling the end of the session tonight. Two big hurdles on the road to adjournment had been negotiated earlier in the day when congress stamped its approval on the ship subsidy bill and the billion-dollar Treasury-Postoffice appropriation measure.

The senate voted in midafternoon, however, to take up the Guffey-Vinson bill, a substitute for the supreme-court-invalidated coal control act.

House Votes Adjournment.

The house was virtually marking time, occupying itself with minor measures that had almost no chance of ultimate enactment. In midafternoon it adopted the customary adjournment resolution and sent it to the senate.

Many congressmen already had struck out for the democratic national convention in Philadelphia. Many more house members were clustered on the senate floor. There was none of the tenseness nor last-minute strain which ordinarily accompany the final parliamentary manipulations of congress.

Opening up on the tax bill in behalf of a group of republicans and democrats irreconcilably opposed to a high tax on undistributed corporation profits, Senator Byrd, democrat, Virginia, called the measure a "mongrel, hybrid compromise."

He said it would damage the democratic party and the entire nation and "completely revolutionize the philosophy of corporate taxation in this country."

"Aid for Monopolies."

Arguing that it would prevent corporations from building up surpluses, the Virginian roared the bill "will do more to entrench the monopolies of this country than anything else we have ever done."

Senator Gerry, republican, Rhode Island, jumped into the attack on the legislation with the statement that the treasury had not given the new tax plan the amount of study "that would have been wise."

Senator Hastings, republican, Delaware, interjected that treasury experts had attempted to make their statements "agreeable" to the senate-house conferees.

La Follette Defends.

But from Senator La Follette, progressive, Wisconsin, came a sturdy defense for the compromise bill. He called it "an honest and just compromise of fundamental differences." Next he sought to refute arguments of Byrd that the measure would injure small corporations that are compelled to retain all their earnings for business purposes.

The Virginian, La Follete said, supported a tax bill in the senate which would have increased the tax for a $2,000 corporation keeping all its earnings 71 per cent over existing law, whereas the compromise would increase the tax for such a firm only 15 per cent.

Sharp as the debate was, it ended promptly at 2:30 when the time came, by prior agreement, to vote. The roll was called and the bill was finally enacted.

The bill represented the answer of congress to President Roosevelt's request for $620,000,000 of permanent additional revenue to finance the new farm program and the extra cost of paying the bonus in advance of the 1945 due date and for $517,000,000 of temporary funds to plug the gap left in this year's federal income by invalidation of AAA processing taxes.

Here's Brief Outline Of New Tax Bill

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP) Here is an outline of the tax bill which received final congressional approval today:

CORPORATION TAXES:

1. Repeals present 12 1-2 to 15 per cent corporation income tax and substitutes a schedule of 8 per cent on the first $2,000, 11 per cent on the next $13,000, 13 per cent on the next $25,000, 15 per cent on all over $40,000.

2. Provides an entirely new tax principle by taxing corporation income withheld from distribution in dividends to stockholders at 7 per cent on the first 10 per cent withheld, 12 per cent on the next 10 per cent, 17 per cent on the next 20 per cent, 22 per cent on the next 20 per cent, and 27 per cent on all over 60 per cent.

To avoid a "tax on taxes" the undistributed profits tax would apply only to corporate earnings remaining after payment of the normal income tax.

To provide a "cushion" for corporations with net incomes of less than $50,000, the minimum 7 per cent tax on undistributed earnings would apply to the first $5,000 of income, regardless of what percentage the $5,000 might be of the adjusted net income.

3. Applies the 4 per cent normal income tax to corporation dividends, now subject only to income surtaxes.

4. Taxes banks and insurance companies at a flat 15 per cent rate and exempts them from the undistributed profits tax.

5. Applies the normal corporation income tax to corporations in receivership and exempts them from the undistributed profits tax.

6. By a system of credits, give special treatment to corporations with contracts not to pay dividends or contracts requiring definite portions of income to be applied to debts.

7. Technical provisions give special treatment to common-trust funds operated by banks and to certain classes of investment trusts.

8. Changes the law governing liquidation of corporations so as to facilitate simplification of corporate structures and produce more revenue.

9. Taxes foreign corporations engaged in trade or business in the United States at a flat 22 per cent and those not in trade or business in this country 15 per cent on earnings derived from American sources. Taxes non-resident aliens at 10 per cent on income from American sources, except that in accordance with treaties, the rate for Canadian and Mexicans may not be less than 5 per cent.

So far as possible, taxes on foreign corporations and aliens would be withheld at the source.

10. Reduces from 25 to 15 per cent on the first $100,000 of income and from 35 to 25 per cent on all income above that amount the tax on corporations "improperly accumulating surpluses" for all corporations subject to the undivided profits tax.

11. Cuts personal holding company tax rates 12 per cent.

12. Reduces present tax exemption of 90 per cent of intercorporate dividends to 85 per cent.

"Windfall tax," . . . imposes 80 per cent tax on persons described as "unjustly enriched" by non-payment of old AAA processing taxes.

REFUNDS—Provides for refunds and authorizes $42,000,000 appropriation, of the AAA tax on processed commodities exported or sold to tax-exempt institutions. Also provides for refunds of taxes on floor stocks on hand when the AAA was invalidated. Claims for less than $10 would not be permitted.

IMPORT TAXES—Subjects specified imported fish and vegetable oils to excise taxes of 2 to 4 1-2 cents per pound.

MISCELLANEOUS—Repeals jewelry tax; reduces fur tax from 10 to 3 per cent and lifts exemption of articles sold for less than $75; directs the President, under certain specific conditions, to limit importation of red cedar shingles from Canada; limits the tax on sale of oil or gas properties or interests in them to 30 per cent of the selling price. Tightens the "irrevocable" provision of the trust law.

Small corporations earning less than $10,000 a year could reduce their taxes by paying out all their income as dividends.

They would pay 8 per cent, of $160 normal income tax, on the first $2,000 and 11 per cent, or $880, on the remaining $8,000—a total of $1,040 under the new corporation taxes.

Under the old schedules they would have paid 12 1-2 per cent, or $250, on the first $2,000, and 13 per cent, or $1,040, the $8,000 balance—a total of $1,290.

Here Are Activities Of 74th Congress

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—Five major bills and a host of less important measures were passed at the session of the congress which ended tonight.

When combined with the legislation passed at the previous session, they made the legislative record of the 74th congress one of the bulkiest of all times.

The session's legislative record contrasted with previous sessions under the Roosevelt administration by producing virtually no surprise legislation. Other sessions poured out one unexpected law after another.

Likewise the session was marked by a minimum of conflict on the floors of the two houses. Where there were disputes, they were generally settled in committee. There were few prolonged senate discussions of the kind that made that branch famous as "the greatest deliberative body in the world."

Major Legislation.

Major legislation at this session included:

Cash pre-payment of the bonus.

Extension and strengthening of the neutrality law.

A new farm program—based on soil conservation.

Higher taxes on corporations and their stockholders.

Another $1,425,000,000 for unemployment relief.

Back of these were a host of other important measures, including the Norris rural electrification bill, the $320,000,000 omnibus flood control bill, the $272,000,000 lower Mississippi flood control law, anti-price discrimination legislation, a new ship subsidy act, and appropriation bills carrying almost $10,000,000,000.

All of these measures were added to the legislative record of the 74th congress, which in its first session passed such epoch-making laws as the social security act, the Wagner labor law and the higher taxes on the wealthy.

But the congress left behind another batch of legislation which failed to make the statute books this year—the Wagner housing bill, the Black lobby measure—and the Guffey coal control bill.

In between passing legislation, the house impeached Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter, of Florida, and the senate found him guilty. The senate ratified the London naval treaty and confirmed thousands of appointments.

Probers Busy.

Investigating committees also were busy at both ends of the capitol and running into difficulties. The munitions committee concluded its hearings early in the session after stirring up opposition by challenging Woodrow Wilson's conduct of foreign affairs.

The Black lobby investigating committee also closed down sooner than had been expected after it stirred up controversy over the subpoena of telegrams of individuals and companies it was investigating.

On the house side, the special committee investigating Dr. Francis E. Townsend and his old age pension organization, watched him walk out on them and then cited him to the courts for contempt of the house.

The tax legislation stirred the longest and most bitter controversy of the session. It was demanded by President Roosevelt after the supreme court knocked out the Agricultural Adjustment Act and congress passed the bonus over his veto.

Plans of the chief executive for taxing undistributed profits of corporations were closely followed by the house, but the senate wrote an entirely new bill. In conference a compromise emerged, as usual, but, in the view of some experts, it was closer to the house bill than the senate's.

Designed to raise about $500,000,000, it would tax corporations from 8 to 15 per cent on their entire income, and levy a surtax of from 7 to 27 per cent on that part they failed to distribute in dividends. Also it will subject all dividends to the normal income tax.

Relief Dispute.

Relief caused another dispute, but it finally went through about as the President recommended, carrying $1,425,000,000 for work relief and reappropriating $300,000,000 for a new public works program.

Under the pressure of spring planting in the south, both houses rushed the new farm program through. The bill authorized annual appropriations of $500,000,000 for benefits.

The appropriation bills passed not only totalled more than ever, due partially to the bonus, but also included the most elaborate national defense program in peace time history, adding up to about a billion dollars.

The session also saw congress order work stopped on the "shelter belt" tree project to protect the western plain areas, the Florida ship canal and the Passamaquoddy tide harnessing project.

Baritone Lawrence Tibbett began his singing career as a tenor!

THREE WOMEN DIE IN OIL EXPLOSION

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 20. (AP)—Three women lost their lives in fuel oil explosions here within 24 hours.

The pilot light on a water heater ignited gasoline spilled on the kitchen floor at the home of Miss Martha Larsen, 43. She was badly burned and died today in a hospital.

A few hours earlier a woman, her daughter and her daughter-in-law were washing and ironing on the back porch of their home. A five-gallon can of kerosene was moved too close to the fire. It exploded, killing the daughters and burning the mother.

Mrs. Miriam Cromley, 22, and Miss Roberta Cromley, 28, were fatally burned. Mrs. Robert Cromley escaped with minor burns. The Cromleys formerly lived at Darien, Ga.

MRS. O. W. HAYGOOD FOUND DEAD IN ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—Mrs. O. W. Haygood, wife of an Athens businessman, was found dead at home today.

Athens police said they were told Mrs. Haygood died of a heart ailment. An inquest was ordered held.

CLUES ARE SOUGHT.

PITTSBURGH, June 20.—(AP)—Detectives sought a clue tonight to solve the mysterious strangulation deaths of Eleanor Feely, 30, and her children, Robert, 5, and Janice, 3.

7 GAMBLING TO RECOUP LOUIS BET LOSS, JAILED

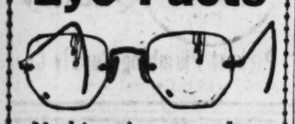

An attempt by seven negroes to recoup betting losses incurred on the Louis-Schmeling fight resulted in their arraignment on charges of gaming at the 4:30 o'clock session of recorder's court yesterday afternoon.

The negroes were corralled intently playing blackjack in the rear of a shoe-shinning shop on Hunter street. They admitted trying to make up losses on the fight. Recorder John L. Cone held each under $100 bond for the city criminal court.

KNIFE SLAYING HERE IS BELIEVED SOLVED

Negro Taken Into Custody Pending Probe of Death Last Month.

The slayer of John Jenkins, 37-year-old white man, who was cut and stabbed to death last month, was believed by police to have been apprehended with the arrest yesterday morning of Will Hall, 38, negro, of 324 Lovejoy street.

Patrolmen W. E. Whitten and R. E. Finley arrested Hall at his home during an argument with Monteese Stanley, 18-year-old negro girl, of 241 Mangum street, after the girl declared Hall had threatened her and said he would "do her like I did that man Jenkins."

Jenkins, who lived at 341 Fowler street, N. E., was found with his head and body literally covered with stab wounds shortly before 2 o'clock Sunday morning, May 10, on West Peachtree place near Lovejoy street. The man was found by Patrolmen Whitten and Finley, who took him to Grady hospital, where he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Investigations by the officers following the man's death disclosed two eyewitnesses to the assault, Mrs. Ruby Shell and Mrs. Lessie Teeling, both of 186 West Peachtree place. They told officers they saw a "tall, slender negro" scuffling with Jenkins. They said the negro knocked Jenkins down and then appeared to be beating him. The negro escaped between two houses following the fight, they reported.

Hall is being held on suspicion of murder and the eyewitnesses to the fight will be called to the police station in an effort to identify the negro today or tomorrow, according to Detective D. L. Taylor, who is investigating the murder.

The negro girl also is being held as a material witness.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN HOLCOMB

Decatur Church Honors Pastor, Who Leaves for Orient Today.

A surprise party was given Friday night to Dr. Walt Holcomb, pastor of the Decatur First Methodist church, who will sail June 27 from Vancouver for the orient, by the board of stewards and representatives of various departments of the church.

Dr. Holcomb's trip will take him to China, Japan and Korea, where he will preach with the aid of an interpreter and will study causes of chaotic uprisings which break intermittently in the orient.

He will preach his last sermons before sailing this morning and tonight, when many friends and members of the church will be present as a "farewell gathering." The subject of his sermon at 11 o'clock will be "Good World Neighbors," and at 8 o'clock tonight, "A Parting for a While." Members of the choir have arranged a special musical program.

At the surprise party Friday night, "farewell' addresses were made by many officers of the church and Mrs. Mark White, secretary, read a letter from Bishop and Mrs. W. N. Ainsworth. C. A. Matthews, chairman of the board of stewards, presided.

Among the speakers were Hugh Trotti, L. M. Spruell, W. C. Thompson, Mrs. M. M. Simmons, Miss Ellin Johnson, John Leslie Weeks, Mrs. Walt Holcomb and Dr. Willis Rogers, presiding elder of the Decatur-Oxford district. In his response, Dr. Holcomb said he looked forward to his trip especially because of the opportunity he would have to study missions and work of Methodists in the orient.

A musical program was given by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Herbert. Frances Burgess and Vaughn Ozmer.

The dinner was prepared by members of the missionary society, with Mrs. E. L. Gardner as chairman, and was served by young women of the church.

ATLANTAN IS RESCUED AT SAVANNAH BEACH

Relatives of Mrs. William Hunter Russell, of 224 Second avenue, Decatur, sought yesterday the identity of a young man who saved her from drowning in the surf at Savannah Beach. After pulling her from the water and aiding in reviving Mrs. Russell, the rescuer disappeared without his name being learned.

Russell said here yesterday reports from Savannah stated his wife was "getting along nicely," and that "he would like to thank the young man." He said his wife was visiting relatives in Savannah when the near-tragedy occurred.

CHAIRMAN FOR G. O. P. MAY VISIT ATLANTA

John Hamilton, chairman of the republican national committee, will visit Georgia.

Wilson Williams, secretary of the state central committee of the party, made this announcement yesterday as he prepared to leave for New York to attend a campaign dinner.

"Mr. Hamilton has informed me that he intends to visit with every county chairman in the country during the fall campaign," Williams said. "He believes that two-party government in the south is possible and he is going to help us in our program to bring it about."

Williams said the date Hamilton will come to Georgia is to be settled at the New York dinner.

FINE FOR KIDNEY AND BLADDER WEAKNESS

STOP GETTING UP NIGHTS
LOOK AND FEEL YOUNGER

Keep your kidneys free from waste matter, poisons and acid, and put healthy activity into kidneys and bladder and you'll live a healthier, happier and longer life.

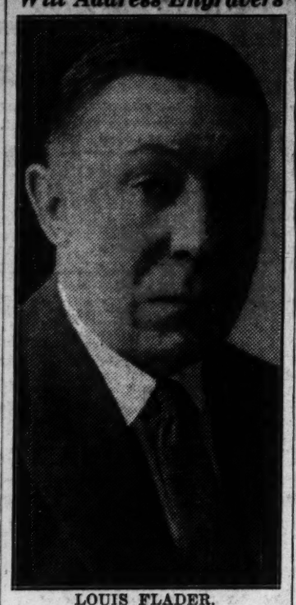

One most efficient and harmless way to do this is to get from your druggist a 35-cent box of Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules and take them as directed—the swift results will surprise you.

Besides getting up nights, some symptoms of kidney trouble are backache, moist palms, leg cramps, and puffy eyes. If you want real results, be sure to get GOLD MEDAL—the original and genuine—a grand kidney stimulant and diuretic—right from Haarlem in Holland. Give your kidneys a good cleaning once in a while. —(adv.)

Will Address Engravers

LOUIS FLADER.

CLINIC HERE PLANNED BY PHOTO-ENGRAVERS

First Conference of Type To Attract Experts From Southeast.

Southeastern photo-engravers will meet in Atlanta tomorrow morning to hold the first complete photo-engraving conference and demonstration ever held in the United States. The first attempt in this country to bring together all the phases of photo-engraving and allied fields will be highly successful, officials here report from present indications, and a similar clinic-conference at the national convention this fall is likely to result from the experiment of southeastern engravers.

One of the highlights of the conferences will be an address by Louis Flader, commissioner of the American Photo-Engravers' Association, who is declared by leading figures in engraving and allied industries to "know more about photo-engraving than any other one man in the world."

Speaks Tuesday.

Flader will speak at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at a smoker at the Ansley hotel before engravers, advertising men, artists, printers and others interested in modern illustrations.

Registration will begin at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Ansley hotel, followed at 2:30 o'clock by the annual meeting of the sixth district of the association, including Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi George Hoffman, of Savannah, president of the sixth district, will preside at the annual business meeting and members of the fifth district association, including Virginia and North and South Carolina, who are co-sponsors of the clinic-conference, have been invited to join the sixth district in the business meeting.

W. B. Lawrence, head of the cost accounting department of the American Photo-Engravers' Association, will address engraving plant owners and managers at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Daily demonstrations of the latest and most efficient methods of photo-engraving will be demonstrated from 9 to 12 o'clock each morning and from 2 to 6 o'clock each afternoon during the week at the Southern Engraving Company plant, at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama streets, and at the physics building at Georgia Tech.

New Camera Used.

A new type darkroom strip film camera at the Southern Engraving Company plant will hold the attention of engravers and workmen during the morning demonstrations. Out-of-town engraving plant owners have arranged to send a portion of their staffs to Atlanta each morning for the demonstration so that the entire personnel may profit by the explanations of the latest type equipment.

Round-table discussion will be held at 7:30 o'clock each night during the week at the Georgia Tech building. The discussions will be led by W. W. Warfel, of Chicago, expert photo-engraver who has written several books on the subject, and J. R. Monroe, of Birmingham, vice president of the sixth district of the association.

More than 300 engraving plant owners and employes are expected to attend the week of conferences and demonstrations. Registrations already have been received by mail from photo-engravers not only in the southeastern states but from all parts of the country, local officials reported yesterday.

RECORD CLEARINGS

$52,900,000 in Checks Pass Through Banks.

All records for bank clearings here since 1929 were smashed during the past week when $52,900,000 in checks passed through local banks. Even the peak figure set May 23, the highest in six years' time, was surpassed by the recent exchange.

Bonus payments to war veterans were declared to be the principal factor in the record turnover.

The week's clearings of $52,900,000 showed an increase of $12,700,000 over the corresponding week of last year, according to a report yesterday issued by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. The past week's transactions were the largest since the consolidation of major Atlanta banks.

Judge Is Flabbergasted As Woman Admits Blame

A plea of guilty and a display of unvarnished truth and candor by a woman motorist charged with reckless driving yesterday afternoon startled the police court into bewildered attention and almost caused Recorder John L. Cone to lose his judicial dignity for the moment in praise of the woman's frankness.

Mrs. William Bramley, of 953 Rosedale road, was the defendant. Officers reported she ran over a stop sign at St. Charles place and Barnett street and turned over a milk truck traveling on Barnett.

"I didn't see the stop sign I ran over," she declared. "But I did hit the milk truck and turn it over. There's no use crying over spilled milk. I'm guilty."

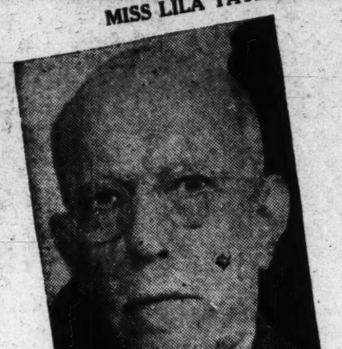

"You are one in a hundred," Judge Cone said. "The other 99 would have tried to place the blame on somebody else.

"In fact," he said by way of parenthesis, "Ninety-nine women out of a hundred wouldn't admit they were guilty of anything. I'm going to be as light on you as the law allows for a reckless driving charge."

Judge Cone fined the defendant $7.

New American Home

VOL. LXIX., No. 9. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 21, 1936.

NEW AMERICAN HOME OPENED FOR PUBLIC INSPECTION TODAY

SCIENCE PROVIDES 'MIRACLE' HOUSE

Wealth of Ideas Await Visitors to Magnificent Residence in Decatur.

The doors of a home representing a new era of living will be thrown open today when the General Electric "New American" home in Decatur will be opened to the public at 11 o'clock this morning.

A product of months of study and planning by an architect whose design received an award in a nation-wide contest and the result of expert building by Atlanta contractors, this home is located at 244 Coventry road, Decatur.

The official dedicatory opening was held at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon in ceremonies attended by Mayor Scott Candler, of Decatur; F. S. Goodell, chairman of the "New American" home committee; W. D. Alexander, president of W. D. Alexander Company, state distributor of General Electric products; Hugh Richardson, president of the General Air Conditioning Company; R. P. Van Zile, manager of the merchandising division of the General Electric Company here, and Paul C. Maddox and Thomas F. Tisinger, of Maddox and Tisinger, realtors, who built the home.

All Atlantans Invited.

Citizens of this section are invited to attend the public opening and to return for another tour of inspection if they wish any time during the next 30 days. The home will remain open to the public until 9 o'clock tonight and will be open for public inspection from 2 o'clock each afternoon until9 o'clock each night during the next 30 days.

A visit to the General Electric "New American" home will reveal just what can be done in making a small home, healthful, comfortable and convenient in the modern sense. Applications and equipment which have generally been considered heretofore as belonging to larger institutions are embodied in this small home and their economy in time and trouble saving and in health will readily become apparent to the "New American" home visitors.

Wealth of Ideas.

For the next 30 days the "New American" home is your home, open for you to examine in every detail, from sun deck to basement. Here you will receive ideas for your home of tomorrow, air conditioned, electrically equipped and modern in every phase. Here you will see how really enjoyable modern living can be made.

A vacation the year around is the way living in one of these products of the "New American" plea has been described. You will agree when you visit the home. Fresh cool air circulating noiselessly through the home during the summer and warm, even temperatures spread over the home during cold weather by the same air conditioning unit. Sun-deck for summer and less severe winter afternoon.

Electrical equipment that is like a score of ready servants. Convience, comfort, health.

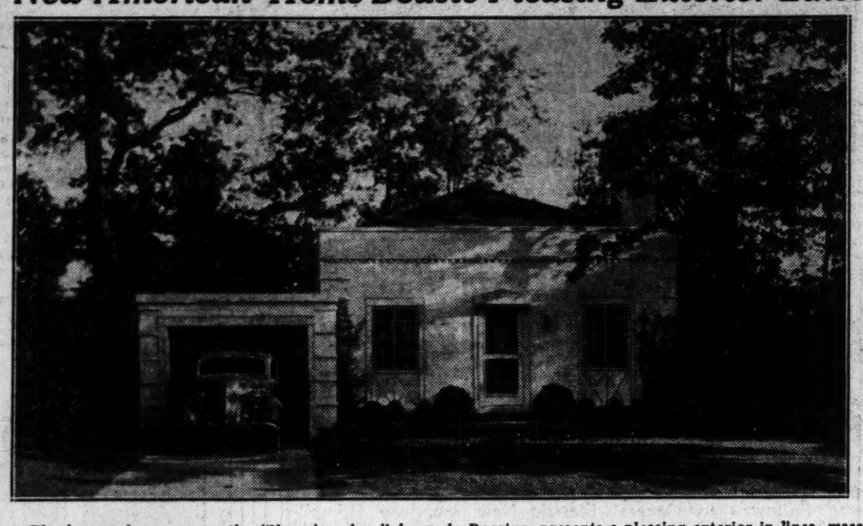

Year-'Round Vacation.

It is like a vacation resort, isn't it?

Accept this invitation to visit the "New American" home. From Atlanta, take Ponce de Leon avenue to West Ponce de Leon road and turn to the left at Nelson Ferry road. From Decatur, take East Ponce de Leon road to Nelson Ferry road. Coventry road, on which the "New American" home is located, turns off to the right from Nelson Ferry road near Ponce de Leon road.

Numerous signs have been placed on the roads leading to the home. You "can't miss it" from the standpoint of location as well as from the standpoint of its value to you in planning your future home.

'New American' Home Boasts Pleasing Exterior Lines

The home of a new era, the "New American" home in Decatur, presents a pleasing exterior in lines, mass and landscaping. The 1936 Ford V-8 sport coupe in the garage adds its factors of modernity, beauty and efficiency.

These Men Directed Building of Home

NEWEST HOME SERVES TO INSPIRE OTHERS

Of Inestimable Value to Community, Declares Local Committee Head.

The importance, both to Atlanta and Decatur and to the nation at large of such an ambitious demonstration housing program as the "New American" plans for 1936 was stressed yesterday by F. S. Goodell, chairman of the local committee in charge of bringing one of the homes of an American new era to this locality.

"The 'New American' program for 1936 continues our last year's effort to demonstrate the value of up-to-date homes, both to prospective home owners and to industry," Mr. Goodell declared. "To the individual who plans to build a house some day—and that includes almost everyone—the advantages of this plan have never been in question, for it makes available to him at no expense the accumulated knowledge and progress in building and home planning of the past decade.

Combined Achievement.

"The best brains of the engineering, architectural, manufacturing and building fields are concentrating on the problem of the moderately priced home, fitting into an exclusive plan the individual achievements of their respective fields."

From the standpoint of the community and the nation the plan is most important, Mr. Goodell asserted, since the wide public interest aroused by the individual demonstration homes is immediately reflected in new business for all.

"These provisions in the 'New American' concept are bound to inspire new building in this section by their example in the demonstration home," Mr. Goodell said. "And that means business for the realtors, banks, electrical and equipment dealers, landscapers, department stores, furniture stores and all those whose products go into the making of a home.

Starts "Endless Chain."

"The new houses also will mean modernization and better equipment for existing houses and higher property values all around. Once the chain is begun, its possibilities are endless.

"We are not attempting to solve a mass housing with this program, for one or two demontration home in a single locality will not do that. Neither will these few exemplary projects in themselves result in big sales of equipment and services.

"But they will show what can be done. Last year's program, with the boost it gave to building and allied trades, demonstrated that beyond question. The General Electric Company and the others who are co-operating in this plan cannot hope to be paid for their time and effort from the demonstration homes, but are looking to the general revival of business which will result and to the thousands of homes that will be built—and be better built—in America because such a program was carried out."

FINE RADIOS MAKE FOR BETTER LIVING

Modern Residences Provide Additional Instruments to That in Living Room.

General Electric radios with the rest of the modern General Electric equipment found in the "New American" home just about makes everything complete.

No home of the "moderns" is without a radio. And no home of the moderns who demand the best in service and beauty is without one or two of the new General Electric all-wave radios in it.

Marshall and Pendergrass, at 420 Moreland avenue, N. E., has placed a beautiful General Electric console model in the living room of the "New American" home for your inspection. And they have supplied another item of practicality and pleasure in the home—a table model General Electric radio in one of the bedrooms. A bedroom radio is coming to be considered more and more important to those who like to live enjoyably.

On your tour of inspection of the "New American" home, notice those radios. You will be interested in the new-type metal tubes, the "sentry box," the permaliner invention, the stabilized dynamic speaker and the sliding rule tuning scale contained in General Electric radios.

'PERFECT SERVANTS' PROVIDED BY SCIENCE

Electricity Eliminates Household Drudgery in 'New American' Home, Decatur.

No queen, whatever her kingdom in ancient days, could command so many servants, all obedient to her wishes, as the housewife of today.

Thanks to electricity and its modern applications, the housewife can muster a corps of electric servants which silently and efficiently take the drudgery out of housework and add leisure, health and comfort.

Kitchen All-Electric.

The modern kitchen, for example, as exemplified in the "New American" home, is all-electric. It is designed not only to eliminate labor, but to save steps. Scientifically arranged, it is a combination of cooking laboratory and livable space.

Kitchen equipment of modern design and efficiency has been placed in the Decatur "New American" home by W. D. Alexander Company, at 380 Peachtree street, state distributors for General Electric products, electric range, electric refrigerator and electric dishwasher are a few of the modern items found in the new home.

The electric refrigerator is no longer looked upon as a luxury, but rather as a necessity. It is considered an investment which actually saves money for the housewife in that she gets the benefit of lower prices on larger purchases. And it is recognized as a necessity in keping these larger quantities of foodstuffs in wholesome condition.

Clean Cookery.

The modern General Electric range is speedy and economical. It furnishes cool cookery for the housewife, inasmuch as the ovens are well insulated and retain the heat. Moreover, it is clean cookery. Pots and pans are never blackened and tarnished by flame.

The General Electric ventilating fan installed in the "New American" home changes the air every three to five minutes, thereby assuring fresh, clean, cool air at all times. The fan is designed especially for permanent installation in modern kitchens. Having once experienced the pleasure of cooking and working in a smokeless and fumeless kitchen, abundantly supplied with fresh air, the housewife would not consider a kitchen of less modern equipment.

"Use-sequence" is a feature of this modern kitchen. The operations are arranged in this normal sequence: Receiving supplies, storing supplies in built-in shelves or refrigerator, preparing and mixing foods, cooking, serving, cleaning up and re-storing dishes and foods.

Unpleasantness Eliminated.

Many housewives take a pleasure in preparing tasty dishes and serving them correctly, but balk at the usually unpopular ritual of cleaning up afterward. This is all changed in the "New American" home. The electric dishwasher and the handy waste disposal unit take away all the after-meal unpleasantness.

With these modern appliances, the burden of housework has been lifted from the shoulders of the housewife and placed on a little electric switch. This service of science, so often taken for granted, is nevertheless one of its outstanding gifts to humanity, realized principally by the housewife who suddenly changes from the old-fashioned manner of kitchen drudgery to cooking in a modern electric kitchen, where health, comfort and pleasure are found on every hand.

FORD SETS PACE

Car Is Perfect Attribute of Modern Home.

The garage of the "New American" home, or any home, for that matter, is doing its best job when housing a new Ford V-8. Both the "New American" home and the new Ford represent the latest in engineering and construction. They belong together, just as the new Ford belongs with all things modern and efficient.

This was brought out by A. M. Chandler, Inc., Ford dealer at 138 East Ponce de Leon avenue, Decatur, which has placed the beautiful example of automotive engineering in the equally modern garage of the "New American" home. Take a look at this new Ford when you inspect the home.

RESIDENCE ADORNED BY VENETIAN BLINDS

"Modern" is the word which is brought to mind when one walks into a room or views from the outside a home equipped with Venetian blinds. The same word applies to the less noticeable but equally serviceable metal weather strips.

Both are contained in the "New American" home, installed expertly by I. C. Elmer, at 17 Alexander street. Fences, lawn furniture and other home features are supplied by Mr. Elmer's "home planning center."

New American Home?

"New American" is not a style of architecture. It is a house designed from the inside out to provide greater comfort, less labor, better health —in a new house or your present home . . .

"New American" is a Home of Higher Living Standards where the New Science of Better Living Prevails

FOR a long time the General Electric Company, among others, has felt that homes in this country were built just backwards.

So much emphasis has been placed upon exteriors that interiors have suffered. People have been so interested in planning a house that did them credit on the outside that they more or less overlooked the fact that they would have to live, eat, sleep, work and play inside.

As a result of this condition, the standards of everyday living in most American homes have lagged far behind what they could be and should be.

As the leading manufacturer of equipment for the home, G-E was vitally interested in doing something about this state of affairs. And so, some months ago, it launched a nation-wide architectural competition for a new type of home —one designed from the inside out.

Planning the "New American" Home

Thousands of the country's finest architects entered this competition. For the first time they all were planning a home from the standpoint of its livability inside, rather than just how it looked outside. They had to give thought to such things as saving steps in walking from one room to another; proper placing of windows to give better light and more wall area; cutting down waste space taken up by unnecessary hallways; dual use of space, such as a combination living and dining room; provision for outdoor living in warm weather; where to store the lawn mower or Junior's rubbers and bicycle.

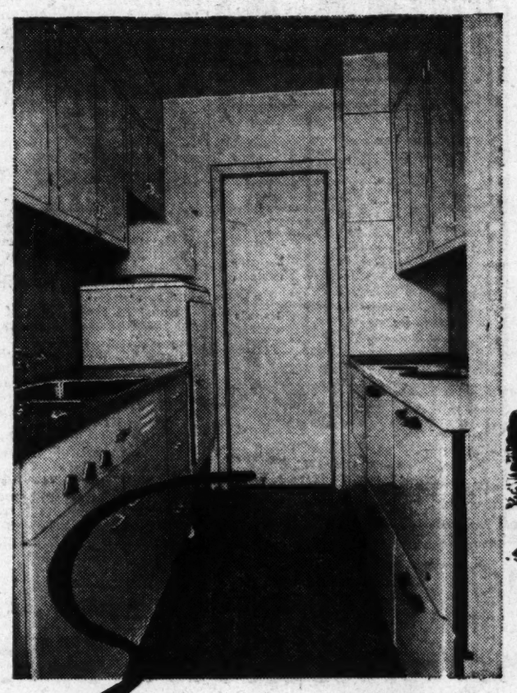

Complete Electrical Equipment

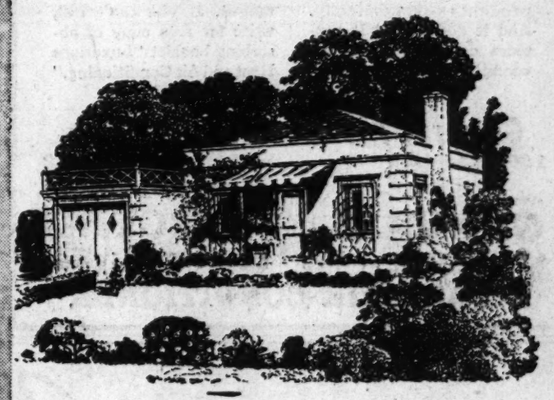

They planned how to take advantage of the many advances and improvements that numerous manufacturers have made in materials and equipment for the home. For instance, in considering electrical equipment, they provided for scientific lighting instead of haphazard lighting; a complete built-in electrical kitchen and laundry; a recreation room with automatic heat in place of the old-time cellar; air-conditioning for the entire house. And all this at modest cost and inclosed within a good-looking exterior.

The Kitchen is no longer woman's "workshop"—not in the "New American" home. It is All-Electric for comfort, cleanliness and convenience—it is compact for saving needless steps and energy.

Everything that can be done automatically is done that way. You can depend on the General Electric Refrigerator—it needs no attention, not even oiling. You will delight in using a General Electric range with automatic time and temperature control and the General Electric Dishwasher will be a revelation to you in doing away with the most disagreeable daily task in the kitchen. Dishes actually wash and dry themselves in water hotter than hands can stand. And with the economy of space saved there's cabinet space for everything handy.

You don't need to build a new house to have the advantages of an electric kitchen like this. We will gladly supply information on the complete built-in kitchen or help you plan for accomplishing the same result, step by step with one unit at a time. Either way, surprisingly easy terms are offered—and the cost is not nearly what you think.

MODERN GARAGE DOOR SWINGS UP OVERHEAD

Convenience is just one of the features of the new type of overhead door, found in the garage of the "New American" home. Beauty and ease of operation are two more reasons why it is selected for modern homes.

This space-saving and burglar-defying door at the "New American" home was installed by the Overhead Door Company of Florida and Georgia. Dwight L. Hollowell, district manager of the concern, has offices at 419 Spring street, N. W.

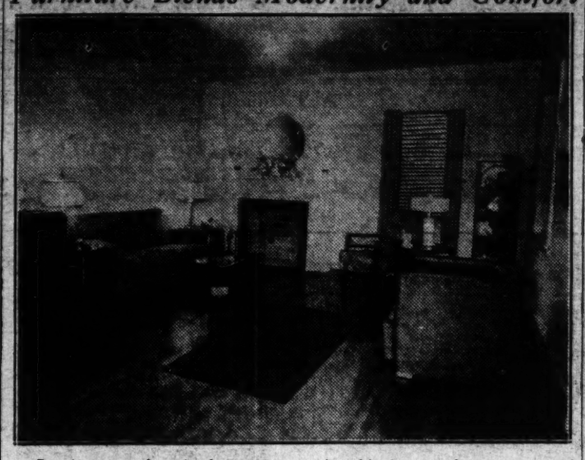

Ask to be shown how the door works when you visit the "New American" home.

Master Bedroom in "New American" Home

The master bedroom of the "New American" home combines comfort and beauty in adding to the pleasure of home living.

Furniture Blends Modernity and Comfort

Furniture, modern in design yet comfortable for use, has been placed in the living room of the "New American" home during the inspection period by Duffee-Freeman Company.

DELIGHTFUL FOODS QUICKLY PREPARED

Rogers Stores' 'Southern Manor' Products Save Time of Modern Housewives.

Down through the ages there has always been a certain time set aside for a ritual of pleasure and enjoyment. This is mealtime.

Ages ago, man went out and killed meat, dragged it into his hut or cave for his mate to prepare laboriously into eatable food.

Now the housewife goes to the pantry shelf or refrigerating unit and, if she is in keeping with the modern spirit which has brought forth the "New American" home, she takes down packages of Southern Manor Foods and prepares a feast such as was never enjoyed by an ancient ruler.

Southern Manor Products are distributed here by Rogers stores. Notice the variety of appealing products which have been placed in the "New American" home for your inspection. Make a few notes of them for modern meals of your own which your family cannot help but appreciate.

Rogers stores all over Dixie have for many years supplied the wants of the southern housewife and with Southern Manor Products they are performing a new service in contribution to better foods. Whether or not yours is a "New American" home, the convenience of a near-by Rogers store and its select food products enable you to live modernly in the aspect of convenience and mealtime pleasure.

PERFECT LIGHTING

Splendid Fixtures, Wiring Work of C. N. Coker.

C. N. Coker, at 1407 Lee street, S. W., is responsible for the beautiful lighting fixtures and expert wiring which add so much to the appearance and permanent serviceability of the "New American" home.

General Electric wiring systems and equipment are used by the Coker firm, whose years of experience in installation and home wiring create one of the features of the "New American" home.

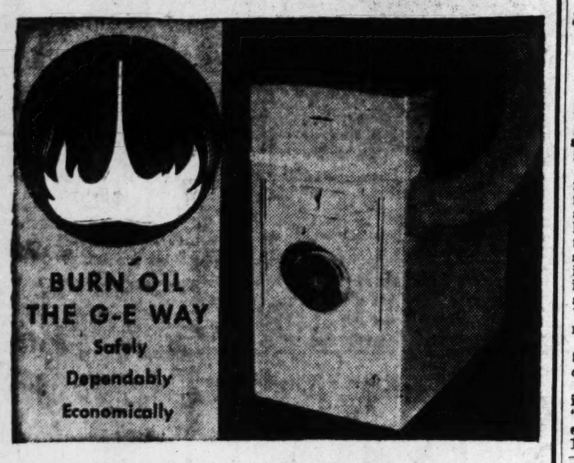

Convenience, comfort, economy and safety are the watchwords of the expert installation men of the Coker organization, according to its officials, who declare these factors may be arranged either in modernization of a home or in its original construction.

DECORATIONS OF HOME BY DUFFEE-FREEMAN

Artistic Job of Furnishing Done by Experts of Company Staff.

Furnishings and decorations in the "New American" home have been artistically and skillfully arranged by experts of the Duffee-Freeman Furniture Company. Each room carries its own scheme of color and design, with beautiful effects that surprise as well as please.

Classic modern furnishings have been chosen throughout the "New American" home in keeping with its air of modernity.

The color scheme of the living room is brown, pale yellow and chartreuse. The walls are painted in pale yellow. The pleasingly arranged lamps are in pale yellow and silver. The furniture is in brown tones and the draperies are of heavy corded cellophane in check design with chartreuse and silver mirror cornices.

Peach and Green.

The master bedroom, with its twin beds in mint green and golden brown, presents a veritable picture of beauty in design and color. The walls and accessories are in peach, with the modern voile draperies in mint green. Duffee-Freeman has done a master job in furnishing the master bedroom.

The guest bedroom carries with it an air of freshness and cleanliness, with its walls in white and the furniture in brown. The draperies are in white cellophane.

The bathroom and kitchen draperies are of white rubber cloth, pleasing in appearance and serviceable to the last degree.

Garage Sun Deck.

The garage sun deck has been furnished by Duffee-Freeman with white wrought iron furniture. The rubber cloth cushions are impervious to rain and sun alike.

Much of the success of the beautiful furnishings and decorations found in the "New American" home is to be credited to Byron Akin, who has had much experience in the home furnishings business in Atlanta, and to Ruby Thompson, an expert interior decorator recently added to the Duffee-Freeman staff.

With the wide range of modern and period furniture in the new Duffee-Freeman store to select from, they have done a thorough job of making the "New American" home pleasing in every detail of its furnishings and decorations.

VAUDEVILLE ACTRESS FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Agnes Tibbetts, former vaudeville actress who appeared in an act known as the Neilson sisters, was found dead in a West 43rd street hotel where she had been living.

At the offices of the actors' fund, it was said she was about 60 years old and had been born in Norfolk, Va., where a sister, Mrs. B. C. William, is believed to be living.

She was known on the vaudeville stage as Agnes Neilson, touring from 1894 to 1920. Later she appeared in motion pictures and recently had a part in the WPA theater project's "Living Newspaper."

One of Anthony Trollope's novels was barred from circulation as immoral because one of its characters danced!

MODEL RESIDENCE CHOSEN BY 'JURY'

Home Is Pick of 2,040 Plans Entered by Noted Architects in Contest.

The "New American" home which has just been completed on Coventry road, in Decatur, is the direct outgrowth of the most far-reaching architectural contest ever conducted in this country.

The plans for this example of a new era in home building are the result of a contest conducted by the General Electric Company to stimulate the design and production of small homes, in which could be realized the fullest advantages of modern progress.

2,040 Plans Entered.

From the 2,040 plans entered in the national contest, 52 were finally selected as embodying the highest skill and creative genius of American design.

The "New American" home in Decatur is one of approximately 300 homes which have been built, or are in the process of construction, in various cities of the country, according to the plans of the 52 winning designs in the nation-wide architectural contest.

At the announcement of the contest last year, the more than 2,000 architects whose plans were submitted went to work to create plans for a home that would give the maximum of comfort, convenience and healthfulness, coupled with a beauty of design that would make living at home a real pleasure.

The cream of these 2,000 entries is represented in the 52 winning designs.

Distinguished Judges.

In orderd to remove local or regional prejudice, the jury which presided in the General Electric Company contest for architectural designs was chosen from several fields of activity and from all parts of the country.

Included in the body were Ralph T. Walker, architect; Katherine Fisher, home economics expert of the Good Housekeeping Institute; Franklin O. Adams, architect; Harold D. Hynds, engineer and contractor; Charles T. Ingham, architect; Grace Langdon, child training expert; Hugh Potter, realtor, and Ernest A. Grunsfield Jr., A. Roy Kelley, Charles W. Killam and Eliel P. Saarinen, architects.

Designed As Unit.

The presentation of the "New American" home means infinitely more than just another "model home." It is not that at all. It is an event of paramount importance to every American householder. Literally, these homes typify the modern ideal, electrically equipped, with radios, refrigeration, air conditioning; different, too, because for the first time homes are built for their equipment, not the equipment for the homes.

Terraces, decks for open-air enjoyment, kitchens built for "use-sequence," elimination of waste and a maximum of comfort—these are some of the features of the "New American" homes.

The freedom and livability resulting set a new standard in American life—and yet the cost is not beyond ordinary reach.

Approved by FHA.

This building program enjoys the fullest co-operation of the Federal Housing Administration.

Stewart McDonald, of Washington, FHA administrator, said in a recent letter to J. F. Qu lan, national manager of the program of which the new home in Decatur is a part:

"This year the opportunity is even greater. More people aspire to home ownership. Improvements in residential planning, equipment and materials have set a new standard of living. You may, therefore, expect millions to visit the "New American" homes. Here they will find an actual demonstration of the way to up-to-date living, making for comfort, health, convenience and entertainment.

"You may be assured of the continued co-operation of our Washington headquarters and of our representatives throughout the United States."

That is the background of the work which has been done to bring to citizens of this section a fine example of "New American" living, embodying health, comfort and pleasure in a home of moderate price. Do not fail to visit the "New American" home on Coventry road during its 30-day inspection period.

14,850 HOMES AIDED IN GEORGIA BY HOLC

Total of Loans for State Set at $33,664,632.12 as Lending Ends.

Distressed home owners in Georgia obtained 14,850 loans, amounting to $33,664,632.18, from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, through midnight, June 12, the date on which lending operations of the corporation were ended in accordance with an act of congress, according to a report submitted yesterday by State Manager Frank A. Holden to Erle Cocke, state director of the National Emergency Council.

Of this amount, $2,056,152.95 was bisbursed to city and county tax collectors in payment of delinquent taxes and $2,951,547.72 was disbursed for repairs and reconditioning of homes.

As a result of the program, foreclosures which were being made at the rate of 1,000 a day for the nation in 1932 and the early part of 1933, have been reduced to a minimum and confidence in home ownership is again evidenced.

Mr. Holden said, "The Home Owners' Loan Corporation will continue to serve home owners now indebted to us. We will give them every assistance, advice and co-operation necessary to solve their home financing problems. We feel that our major task is done, and well done, and now we ask that our borrowers keep faith with us as we have done with them by fulfilling their obligations to the Home Owners' Corporation."

The break-down for lending districts is as follows:

District	Loans Made	Total Amt. Loaned
Atlanta	8,452	$20,387,030.61
Savannah	2,207	4,892,384.83
Macon	2,193	4,746,127.14
Albany	1,998	3,639,089.60
Total—	$14,850	$33,664,632.18

KEY INVITES ECKENER TO FLY TO ATLANTA

Mayor Key yesterday invited Dr. Hugo Eckener and his famous dirigible, the Hindenberg, to visit Atlanta on the next trip to America.

Key's action was in concert with Governor Olin D. Johnston, of South Carolina, and mayors and executives of cities on the proposed southern short route from Norfolk, Va., to Texas.

The message was addressed to Dr. Eckener in care of Commander C. E. Rosendahl, Lakehurst, N. J.

Proponents of the short route hope to make it available for road and air travel. If the invitation should be accepted, Atlantans would be given the opportunity of seeing the world renowned Hindenberg and Dr. Eckener.

BERLIN LAKE BARS JEWISH CHILDREN

BERLIN, June 20.—(AP)—Jewish children from the east side of Berlin found themselves unexpectedly barred today from Bad Klingenberg on Lake Rummelsburg, close to the capitol.

"Jews not wanted," said a sign erected just as the summer vacations of Berlin public schools began.

NEW HOMES DEMAND MODERN LAUNDERING

Germ-Free Service Suited to Finest Residences Is Introduced Here.

With health and cleanliness taking a prominent place in the features of the "New American" home, the question of laundering and dry cleaning becomes an important one.

Clothes, linen and draperies are sent out and are returned germ-free and thoroughly cleaned—or otherwise. It all depends on where they are sent, according to the Gold Shield Launderers & Dry Cleaners.

That name, incidentally, makes its first appearance in Atlanta today and encompasses the following laundies: American, Capital City, Decatur, Excelsior, Guthman, May's, Piedmont, Trio, and Troy-Peerless.

Health Protected.

"We use protective methods on both laundering and dry cleaning," says the organization. "Disease germs are killed in our process and this protects the health of our customers. Careful handling and scientific knowledge of cleaning processes protects the clothes and the household furnishings sent to us for cleaning.

"Soil which has permeated the fibers of material used for upholstered furniture, curtains, draperies, pillow tops, tapestries, table runners and the like cannot be removed by vacuum cleaning. But our process of cleaning carefully and skillfully restores the freshness of color as well as removing all foreign matter.

Huge Plant.

"Our rug-cleaning department and our storage facilities are the largest in the southeast. Our modern equipment and methods enable us to return all rugs, from the most unassuming domestics to the finest orientals and other imports, thoroughly and skillfully cleaned and looking like new.

"Our storage vaults are moth-proof, fire-proof and burglar-proof. A preliminary treatment, entirely harmless to furs and fabics, kills all moths, moth larvae, moth eggs and disease germs."

A. C. Hopkins, in charge of the organization's rug and carpet-cleaning department, has been in the business for more than 30 years and is known as an expert in rug cleaning and dyeing in the best homes of Atlanta and its suburbs. One of Mr. Hopkins' services is his expert advice and his skill in dyeing rugs to harmonize with other furnishings to create new color cshemes in any room in the home.

PAINT OF QUALITY BEAUTIFIES HOME

Benjamin Moore's Products Are Used Exclusively at Model Residence.

The house paint for interior and exterior which carries with it the recommendation of its use in the buildings of Radio City, the Park Central hotel, New York, and many federal buildings in Washington and other cities, is certain to give the satisfaction of more service than that bargained for, in the opinion of the builders of the "New American" home.

For this season, Benjamin Moore paints were selected for the General Electric "New American" home. The users of this paint have come to expect more durability and lasting beauty and, as a consequence, greater economy.

The Campbell Coal Company, at 240 Marietta street, is the distributor here for Benjamin Moore's higher grade paint products and supplied the interior and exterior finishes for the "New American" home. This is another feature you will want to observe on your visit of inspection.

NEW IDEAS IN LIGHTING EYESIGHT CONSERVERS

Decorative and Vision Values Combined in 'New American' Home.

When homes were lighted with candles and gas jets, there was some excuse for glare spots and dark corners. Today, with the cost of electricity coming down all the time, and with the improvement in electric light bulbs and lamp designs, there is no reason for any family to cheat their eyes of the light they really need.

Proper home lighting today supplies light for seeing as well as decoration, providing for the eye tasks of every member of the family. Dark shades are definitely a thing of the past, and puny little colored bulbs are being confined to fixtures that are used only for decorative purposes.

In general, the new lamps have greater height for better spread and utilization of light; their shades have white linings for greater efficiency and increased quantities of useful light; their shades are open at the top to contribute larger amounts of illumination throughout the room. These virtues combine to help achieve softness in lighting result.

Perhaps most noteworthy of the features of these new lamps is the diffusing glass bowl, which provides better quality and control of light, permitting some of the light to go downward to the book, newspaper or sewing, and the remainder upward into the room where it helps to illuminate the area surrounding the chair, desk or divan.

Cove lighting is becoming increasingly popular, particularly in new homes. Here the light comes from a cove or trough built around the ceiling, with concealed bulbs shedding a soft radiance throughout the room. When combined with appropriate floor and table lamps, a lighting flexibility that assures maximum eye comfort and convenience is obtained.

No room can rightfully call itself a living room—in the fullest sense of the term—unless every chair has a lamp either directly beside or near by it. For perfect comfort depends upon the ability to see without eyestrain, and good seeing is impossible without good lighting.

Eye comfort and convenient lighting have been given serious consideration in the construction of the "New American" home. Every lighting outlet has been placed for flexibility of room arrangement and lamps and shades have been selected for comfort and convenience.

Advice and counsel of experts of the Georgia Power Company have been utilized in making the "New American" home the last word in scientific lighting, with the result that plentiful light is supplied without making occupants of the home conscious of its artificial source.

The same effects can be accomplished in any home equipped with electricity, according to the power company experts, at small effort and cost.

ADVERTISING CLUB TO CLOSE SEASON

Motion Pictures To Feature Luncheon To Be Held Next Wednesday.

The Atlanta Advertising Club will hold its final luncheon meeting of the 1935-1936 season at the Atlanta Athletic Club at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday with a program of motion picture entertainment and a surprise feature in honor of delegates to the national convention of the Advertising Federation of America in Boston next week.

The national convention there will pay special tribute to Samuel C. Dobbs, of Atlanta, former president of the national advertising federation, on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of the launching of the "Truth in Advertising" movement under his leadership.

Delegates from the Atlanta club to the national convention were announced yesterday by James W. Petty Jr., president, to include Oscar Strauss Jr., J. S. Roberts, Robert E. Martin, L. D. Hicks, past presidents of the Atlanta club; George Ripley, Bill Bradley and John Minter.

CONCERT AT EMORY ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Presenting several of Atlanta's most gifted artists under the direction of Margaret Hecht, the first musical program of the Emory University summer season will be given at 8:15 o'clock Thursday night in Glenn Memorial auditorium, according to Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey, professor of fine arts and director of the glee club.

Among the artists appearing on the initial program are Patricia Makinson, soprano; Douglas Rumble Jr., basso; J. T. Pittman, pianist; Lucien Thompson, harpist; George Lindner, viola; Robert Harrison and Bowen David, violinists, and Dr. Dewey at the organ console. The public is invited to the concert.

SPEAKER TO EXPLAIN COLOR PHOTOGRAPHY

With illustrations by lantern slides and colored motion pictures, Herbert Johnson, of Rochester, N. Y., will speak on "Recent Achievements in Colored Photography" at a meeting of the Atlanta Camera Club at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night in the Atlanta Gas building.

While displaying his photographic results of a trip to Bermuda, Mr. Johnson will explain the theory of color as applied to photography, speaking directly to the layman. The public is invited free of charge.

MILTON HIGH SCHOOL PROJECT COMPLETED

Improvements and additions to the Milton High school at Alpharetta, Ga., have been completed by the Works Progress Administration in cooperation with the Fulton County Board of Education, it was announced yesterday by T. J. Durrett Jr., district WPA director for Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Three class rooms, a forge shop, tool store room, coal storage room and a boiler room are included in a vocational training building, newly-constructed. Other improvements are an enlarged auditorium in the main building and a covered walkway between the two buildings. The project cost about $34,000, of which WPA furnished approximately $28,000.

Automatically, without a thought or care on your part, an Automatic Electric Water Heater brings you plenty of hot water at the turn of the tap. Customers of this Company pay, on the average, less than $2.30 a month for this luxurious service.

Visitors to our Colossal Circus of Sensational Values are applauding the Electric Range as a star of the first magnitude. Because it frees them from the dull routine of range watching, it gives them vacations from the kitchen every day in the year. Foods on the surface units need none of the guarding required by any other method of cooking, as with flameless electric heat they will not burn or scorch. A big meal can be cooked at one time in the large oven—it's completely automatic. This means 1000 hours of extra leisure every year. But this new freedom is only part of the story. It's the world's coolest range. All the heat goes directly into the food where it belongs. There is no flaming fuel to make hot kitchens. Because it cooks the "waterless" way with just ordinary utensils, minerals and vitamins stay in the food. Nourishing elements are not poured down the sink with excess water, because foods are steamed, not boiled. The modern Electric Range is spotlessly clean. There is not a particle of soot or grime to blacken pots or pans and smudge walls or curtains, causing unnecessary labor and expense.

RICHARD ANNOUNCES FOR ALDERMANIC POST

Enters Fourth Ward Race Against Callaway; Ball Also Expected To Run.

Walter L. Richard, Atlanta business man, yesterday formally announced as a candidate for the aldermanic nomination from the new fourth ward, composed of the old seventh and tenth wards.

Richard will oppose Roy Callaway, who already has announced for the position. The Richard entry furnishes the first contest for the forthcoming municipal primary, September 2. Alderman John Ball, of the old tenth, also probably will be a candidate.

Text of Announcement.

Text of the Richard announcement follows:

"At the request of many of my friends through the city, I have consented to make the race for alderman from the new fourth ward.

"In making this announcement, I want to say in the beginning that I deeply appreciate the testimony of confidence and respect that comes from those who have made this request. I am not a politican and know nothing of conducting a political campaign. I have never held a public office, and, therefore, am not allied or connected with any political faction or group in either city or county; therefore, I have no political obligations to satisfy. If my friends feel that I can be of service in this capacity, I shall be glad of an opportunity to become a servant of the people of my city.

Outlines Policies.

"With the feeling that no man should offer for public service who does not have defenite and strong convictions of the type of service to be rendered, I should like to make the following statement.

"If elected, I shall endeavor at all times to promote a clean economic government in every department.

"I believe that the city should have an adequate and efficient police force, freed as far as possible from political pressure.

"I believe that the school department should be supported and that every advancement and enlargement and expansion that is necessary for the proper education, training and development of the children of the city should be fostered as far as will be financially possible.

"I believe in adequate playgrounds and parks, under proper supervision, for the use of the people of the city for educational and recreational purposes.

"I believe in sufficient sanitary measures and service to safeguard and promote the health of the people of the whole city.

"I believe in the continuation and expansion of the service at Grady hospital to the end that it may meet the demands for service made upon it by those who are not able to provide medical aid and treatment for themselves.

Advocates Relief.

"I believe in a relief program that would undertake to provide work at a reasonable wage for the unemployed, limited by the appropriations made for this purpose. If possible the works program for the unemployed should be enlarged and expanded to include plans for improving, developing and beautifying all parts of the city.

"I realize that the city government cannot do all things that are needed, and certainly not all things that will be asked of it. But I believe also that an honest and efficient administration can go far toward meeting a reasonable program of improvement and advancement for the city and its citizens, and it will be my purpose to help carry out such a program as far as possible.

"I have lived in the city of Atlanta for the past 20 years. I am a member of Park Street Methodist church, West End Business Men's Association, City Salesmen's Association and the Traveler's Protective Association. I am southeastern representative for the Amerocan Calendar company.

"I shall appreciate your support, and, if elected, shall endeavor to render a service that will not be a betrayal of your confidence."

LOWMAN TO SEEK BOARD RE-ELECTION

Asks Votes of New Fifth Ward in September Primary.

George Lowman, member of the Atlanta Board of Education from the eighth ward, yesterday announced his candidacy for the post from the new fifth ward, composed of the present fourth and eighth wards, subject to the September 2 municipal primary.

Text of Lowman's announcement follows:

"A substantial number of the patrons of the schools in the eighth ward having expressed their wish that I continue to represent them on the school board, I have decided to offer for re-election at the September primary. My position and policies are fairly well known, and I have been given ample assurance that they meet with the approval of my constituents.

"As chairman of federal aid committee I took leading part in bond campaign. Though a member of the minority group of the present board, declined to join the other members of this group in refusing committee assignments under President Cook, and am now chairman of athletic and military committee, and also member of the textbook and rules committee. President of the Boys' High Athletic Alumni Association."

POLAND SENTENCES 113 NAZIS IN PLOT

KATOWICE, Poland, June 20.—(AP)—Charges of subversive activities against 113 persons were answered today by court sentences varying from 18 months to 10 years and by 14 acquittals.

The defendants were accused of membership in a secret nazi organization which had as its goal the union of Upper Silesia, Poland, with Germany.

J. T. OZBURN ENTERS COUNCILMANIC RACE

West End Civic Leader Will Seek Newly-Created 4th Ward Post.

James T. Ozburn, leader in the civic and political life of the West End section of Atlanta, for many years chairman of the city democratic executive committee and former member of city council, yesterday announced his candidacy for one of the two altedmanic seats from the newly-created fourth ward, composed of the old seventh and tenth wards.

Ozburn's candidacy is subject to the municipal primary, which will be held September 2.

For 32 years, Ozburn has held a responsible position with a local optical firm. He is a 32nd degree Mason, a Shriner and a member of the West End Business Men's Association.

Independent Candidate.

He is not a member of any slate or combine, Ozburn said, and seeks the support of the "citizens of the new fourth ward on a business platform."

"I propose to keep myself free of any entanglements which would prevent me from casting a conscientious vote for the best interests of the people of my ward and the citizens of Atlanta," he said. "I think the people of Atlanta and especially my section of the city want a businessman as a member of city council. I promise a businesslike administration. Later I shall announce a more specific platform."

Ozburn spent four years as a member of city council, and served under former Mayors Walter A. Sims and I. N. Ragsdale.

Planned Sewer Work.

He served as a member of the police committee of council under both Sims and Ragsdale, and was a member of the sewer committee, assisting in laying the groundwork for the consummation of the plans for modernizing and improving the sewer system of Atlanta and the metropolitan area.

During his service as a member of the sewer committee, he succeeded in enlisting the co-operation of other members of the delegation and other members of council in obtaining many important sewer improvements for his ward.

Among the major sewer improvements which came to the section under Ozburn's guidance were the extension of the White street, Oakland City and West End park trunk lines.

Other improvements which Ozburn was instrumental in bringing to the ward include the construction of the Mozeley park swimming pool and bath house and the Frank L. Stanton school.

He also served as a member of the streets, water and parks committees.

He lives at 432 Mathewson place, southwest.

LIQUOR FREES MAN IN TRAIN WRECKING

Christmas Eve Drinks Impelled Illinoisan To Take Engine for Ride.

CHARLESTON, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—The Christmas Eve drinks which Maurice Spurlin claimed caused his predicament with the law had him neatly out of the predicament today and free of a malicious mischief charge.

Circuit Judge George W. Bristow, acquitting the defendant yesterday, held that because of the drinks the state's accusation that he took a locomotive for a joy ride with "specific intent" to tamper with railroad property was not substantiated.

The locomotive chugged out of the Mattoon, Ill., yards in a snow storm and five miles up the tracks collided head on with a slow-moving freight. Nobody was injured.

The 28-year-old Mattoon poultry man defendant testified he quaffed "about a dozen drinks" that night and accompanied a railroad switchman to his shanty.

"I remember going to the shanty but I don't remember leaving it," Spurlin told the court. "I don't remember being in any engine or being in any wreck."

Judge Bristow interrupted the defense testimony to announce his acquittal verdict.

ROOSEVELT'S COUSIN IS GIVEN FINE OF $50

WESTFIELD, Mass., June 20.—(AP)—J. Forbes Amory, 36, of Cambridge, who said he is a cousin of President Roosevelt, paid a fine of $50 in district court today for operating an automobile after his license had been suspended.

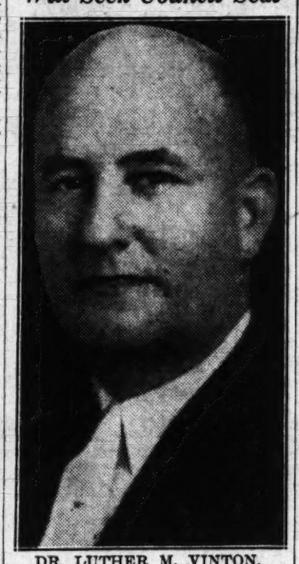

Amory, operator of a travel bureau agency, told police he was en route to Washington to visit the President when taken into custody early today. Police said they found in his possession a telegram from an assistant secretary to the President, confirming his statement.

JAMES T. OZBURN.

Will Seek Council Seat

DR. LUTHER M. VINTON.

DR. LUTHER M. VINTON ENTERS COUNCIL RACE

Widely Known Physician Seeks Seat From Newly Created Sixth Ward.

Dr. Luther M. Vinton, resident of the old ninth ward for the past dozen years and of Atlanta for 26 years, yesterday announced his candidacy for one of the two councilmanic posts from the newly-created sixth ward, subject to the September 2 muncipal primary. The new ward is composed of the old ninth and thirteenth wards.

Dr. Vinton said that if elected he would consider his post an honor, and would never betray the duties that go with office.

He received his medical education at Emory University Medical school. He is now a member of the Fulton County Medical Society and of the Greenfield Masonic Lodge.

He lives at 466 North Highland avenue, N. E.

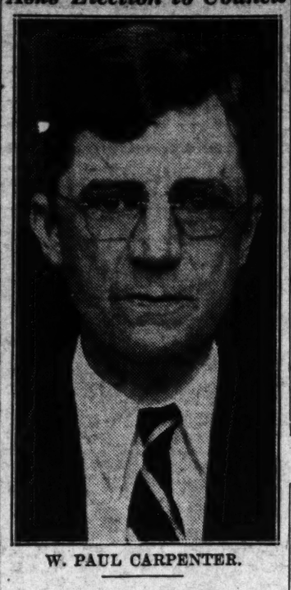

DRINK-SERVING 'COP' IS SUSPENDED IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Patrolman George A. Heidt, who testified at the vice trial of Charles "Lucky" Luciano, that he had bought drinks for some of the prostitutes who were witnesses in the case, was suspended from the police department today.

At the same time a report from the commissioner of accounts' office declared Heidt banked $83,500 between 1926 and 1933, inclusive, although his salary was never more than $3,200 a year.

The accounting report said Heidt said he had received and additional $9,000 from an inheritance, and first claimed he had no other income, but later claimed his large deposits were the result of gambling.

Asks Election to Council

W. PAUL CARPENTER.

CARPENTER REQUESTS ELECTION TO COUNCIL

Lawyer Says People Want "Men of Broad Vision" in Body.

W. Paul Carpenter, well-known Atlanta attorney and former ninth ward councilman, yesterday announced his candidacy for one of the two councilmanic posts from the newly created sixth ward, composed of the old ninth and thirteenth wards, subject to the September 2 municipal primary.

Carpenter has been active in civic and political circles of his section of the city for many years, and in entering the lists said his friends and neighbors believe the ward reduction program makes it incumbent that "new blood should be put in our city government, and men of broad vision, and men of courage and experience in the matter of law making, should be placed in council."

Text of his announcement follows:

"My friends and neighbors, and the other good people of the ward in which I have lived almost my entire life, have been telling me that I should let them run me for council from the new sixth ward, which includes the present ninth ward and thirteenth ward. They seem to think that on account of the reduction in number of wards and personnel of city council, that new blood should be put in our city government, and men of broad vision, and men of courage and experience in the matter of law making, should be placed in council.

"Having been born and reared in Atlanta, spending my entire life in the city, and being educated in the public schools of Atlanta, and being vitally interested in everything that is good and honorable for our city, and with a sincere feeling that I can be of real service to my community, I have agreed with my neighbors and friends, and the other good people of the ward, and do now agree, to offer for one of the two seats vacant in the city council, subject to the white primary in September.

"I respectfully call upon all good and law-abiding citizens of our ward, who believe in an honest, intelligent and courageous representation in our government, to support my candidacy for council from the sixth ward. I shall serve courteously and faithfully, and shall always be on the job to serve my people, and shall at all times be anxious and willing to do the best that is within me.

"I earnestly ask your consideration."

NON-PARTISAN LEAGUE IS HEADED BY TILLER

Labor Leader To Serve as Temporary Chairman To Aid Roosevelt.

J. Sid Tiller, Atlanta labor leader and chairman of the board of public welfare, has been named temporary state chairman of labor's non-partisan league dedicated to re-elect President Roosevelt.

Five other Atlanta residents are on the state committee of 11 members. They include T. D Harper, 1449 Belmont avenue; Dick Hudson, Hurt building; Jerome Jones, editor of The Journal of Labor; Miss Allie Mann and O. E. Petry.

The group will work under the direction of George L Berry, of Washington, national president.

Other state committeemen are I. F. Hegwood, 145 Greenwood place, Decatur; H. G. Sanders, Douglasville; J. D. Linville, Waycross; Thomas F. Blount and M. E. Scott, of Savannah.

Berry's Announcement.

President Berry's announcement, in part, said:

"We have set up in every state in the Union a state committee for action in carrying out the objective of labor's Non-Partisan League for 1936, namely, the re-election of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, and I am pleased to advise that the organization has been practically completed.

"It must be obvious to all concerned that we shall be confronted with a fight this year for the re-election of President Roosevelt and we shall be confronted with a fight to secure further remedial legislation under his leadership following his re-election.

Readjustment Seen.

"It is quite apparent to all also, that in 1940, there will be a very complete readjustment of political alliances. There will be a very substantial breakdown in present alignments and it is the purpose of labor's non-partisan league to be in a position to act intelligently in conserving the progressive idealisms as fostered by President Roosevelt in his first and second terms as President.

"All these matters are of such importance as to challenge the energetic activity of all forward-looking persons, and for this reason I am calling upon all members in this state to give their best efforts in holding our lines for the protection and furtherance of human progress."

SIMS' CONDITION GOOD FOLLOWING OPERATION

BOSTON, June 20.—(AP)—Deaconess hospital authorities said today Rear-Admiral William S. Sims, 77, commander of United States naval forces in European waters during the World War, passed a "comfortable night" following an operation yesterday. His condition, they said, was "very favorable."

JOHN A. WHITE SEEKS COUNCIL RE-ELECTION

Proponent of City Manager Form of Government Backs Changes.

John A. White, veteran fourth ward councilman, yesterday announced his candidacy for one of the two councilmanic positions from the newly created fifth ward, composed of the old fourth and eighth wards, subject to the September 2 municipal primary.

Recognized as one of the most progressive and active members of the city's governing body, White holds several important committee assignments.

He is vice chairman of the important finance committee, chairman of the public buildings and grounds committee, sponsoring the remodeling of the auditorium-armory, now under way; chairman of the Steiner hospital committee; chairman of the special safety commission, which is studying revision of traffic laws in Atlanta and reduction of the accidents, and holds several other important posts.

His announcement sets out that he will continue to insist on a business-like management of city business. He is author of the proposed council-city manager form of government, which he hopes to submit to the voters in the municipal primary.

Text of his announcement follows:

"Please permit me to ask you for your vote and support for councilman from your ward in the primary of September 2.

"If you elect me, I will continue to advocate honest, efficient and business-like administration of your affairs, as I am free to express my views at all times on all matters, not being affiliated with, or obligated to any individual or organization that would prevent me from advising you if things do not go right.

"I am at present councilman from the fourth ward and have at all times voted to expend your monies and carry on the affairs of the city in the best business way possible under the present system, advocating balanced budgets, living within the income, opposing tax increases and helping preserve the credit of the city.

"The administrative functions of the city government must be reorganized if the city is to maintain the necessary services for the citizens and the employes are to have full restoration of their salaries and the credit maintained, or a tax increase of some kind or other must come, as the mayor and council that take charge for three years in January, 1937, cannot carry on during that period without either reorganization of a tax increase and certainly we cannot ask the citizens to pay more taxes. Whenever a city like Atlanta or any business firm reaches the point that it cannot pay the current bills, cannot pay its employes throughout the year except in script, and both bear interest and carried from one year to the next its main deficit is steadily increasing with salaries reduced and improvements eliminated and all expenses cut to the bone, it is time to reorganize, and I advocate a city manager plan.

The money collected from the taxpayers and deposited to the credit of the city for services, should be expended under a well-organized system that would render them the very best at the lowest possible cost, and this is impossible under our present charter and it is my duty in asking for your vote to advocate and agree to assist in the reorganization.

The city of Atlanta, will on the first day of January, have a cash deficit of $3,000,000, and any person that offers for office knows that this condition cannot continue and must be remedied at the earliest possible time and if you elect me to serve on your board of directors my full co-operation will be given.

"I favor the setting up of a director of public safety for the police department, as such will work in co-operation with the city manager plan. I also favor the proper traffic laws and completion of the auditorium-armory, schools and sewers, and a well-planned program for public improvements to be extended over a period of years.

"I want to let you know in advance that if elected I shall not agree to any increase in the water rates as now constituted, and neither shall I agree or consent to any increase in the assessments of real estate, or the ad valorem rate, nor increases on stocks of merchandise, and shall cooperate to have law enacted at the session of the general assembly in 1937, for the assessment of money, stocks and bonds at a fair valuation for taxable purposes.

I. K. HAY NAMED HEAD OF SI-DE-KA CLUB HERE

I. K. Hay, assistant United States attorney of the northern district of Georgia, was elected president of the Si-De-Ka Club, at a dinner Friday night at the Robert Fulton hotel.

The Si-De-Ka Club is an organization of the Atlanta alumni of the Sigma Delta Kappa law fraternity. Hay succeeds Sam Heard, who was president during the last year. Lane Hubbard was elected vice president to succeed Gordon Thurmond and Al Mohr was elected secretary and treasurer to succeed Hubbard. Plans were discussed for the national convention of the fraternity which will meet in Atlanta late in December.

Appointed Midshipman

George Donnell Axford, of Selma, Ala., who recently entered the United States Naval Academy, is the son of Mrs. Axford and the late John Hall Axford. Mrs. Axford, who now makes her home in Washington, D. C., was before her marriage Miss Georgia Donnell, of Atlanta and Decatur. White studios, Washington, D. C.

TICKETS GOING FAST, NOMINATORS REPORT

Ponce de Leon Park Secured for Rally and Sports Contests Saturday.

The Roosevelt Nomination drive was in full swing yesterday throughout the fifth Georgia district and leaders of the drive stated that loyal democrats in all sections were buying tickets, council chamber at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Meetings scheduled for tomorrow and Tuesday included one called by Mayor Key for all department heads of the city at 11 o'clock tomorrow and a similar meeting called by Dr. C. R. Adams of the county commission to be held during the early part of the week. There will also be a meeting of the entire Fulton county membership of the committee at city hall council at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Tickets on Sale.

Tickets were on sale at a number of community centers throughout the county, and business establishments that desire to co-operate in the campaign to the extent of having tickets placed on sale are requested to notify headquarters at Room 816 of the Henry Grady hotel.

The committee has arranged to secure Ponce de Leon park for the rally on Saturday night. Among other features will be a baseball game between two of the best amateur ball clubs in the city, music by police and fire bands and at 9 o'clock the speech of acceptance by the President will be heard over the loud speakers.

Officials of the Atlanta baseball club issued a statement yesterday that the park was a semi-public place and all organizations could arrange for renting it under terms similar to the arrangements that had been made with the Roosevelt Nominators committee.

Only Official Group.

Albert Hardy, of Gainesville, chairman of the Roosevelt Nominators, issued a statement yesterday calling attention to the fact that the Nominators are the only official Roosevelt fund raising organization in Georgia, asserting that the national committee is not selling buttons or badges of any kind.

Tickets for the celebration here may be obtained at Mr. Hardy's headquarters at the Henry Grady hotel, or at Trammell Scott's store, 66 Broad street. These tickets also are in the hands of the county chairmen, G. Everett Millican for Fulton county, Scott Candler for DeKalb county and Senator Clarence Vaughn for Rockdale county.

Mr. Hardy also announced yesterday that he had been furnished with a list of 10 committeemen named by the Weltner convention to aid the Roosevelt Nominators over the state.

This committee is composed of the following:

Leonard Rountree, of Graymont; J. Henry Howard, of Sylvania; C. E. Binns, of Butler; Ralph R. Turner, of McDonough; W. C. Turpin, of Macon; Harllee Branch Jr., of Atlanta; W. B. Trippe, of Cedartown; Abe Minchew, of Pearson; Frank Gross, of Toccoa, and J. K. Golstein, of Comer.

RIVIERA HOTELS CLOSE WHEN WORKERS QUIT

Kinsman of King of Greece Is Forced To Hunt for a Snack.

PARIS, June 20.—(AP)—A general strike of hotel and restaurant workers closed the doors of fashionable Riviera resorts in Cannes today and forced a prince to hunt for his lunch.

The Riviera strike coincided with the first move by Paris rightists to eject idle workers occupying their place of employment. The rightists, numbering 20 under the leadership of Deputy Raoul Sabatier, smashed into a restaurant, threw seven strikers into the street and occupied the place themselves.

Sabatier said it was the start of a "counter-revolution."

Since the labor occupation movement hit the Cote D'Azus early in the season, there were few guests, but the strike came just as Cannes heard King Edward VIII of England would arrive late in July for his summer vacation.

It also provided a bad day for Prince Andrew of Greece, uncle of King George, who was living at one of the affected hotels.

The prince had a hard time finding some luncheon, finally obtaining a snack in a small cafe on a back street.

Employes of all the major establishments took off their uniforms and remained in the buildings, awaiting negotiations between their leaders and their employers.

The strike spread elsewhere in the provinces, halting street car and bus transportation in Bordeaux and closing hotels and restaurants in Nancy as the workers sought the same benefits won for labor in the Paris region.

Roger Salengro, minister of the interior, failed to achieve an accord between workers and employers in Paris department stores, involved in the last important strike in the capital.

He hoped, however, to settle the difficulties at a conference tomorrow.

DEADLINE IS NEARING FOR TALMADGE MOVE

Lull in Gubernatorial Race Expected as Rivers, Fortson Attend Convention.

Although the democratic national convention at Philadelphia this week will be the center of attention, state politics likely will come in for its share of the spotlight, particularly from the Talmadge side of the picture as the time is growing short for the Governor to decide what he is going to run for himself and who will be the Talmadge candidate for governor.

Two of the five announced candidates for governor, Speaker E. D. Rivers of the house of representatives and Judge Blanton Fortson, of Athens, the nominee of the Weltner convention, will be delegates to the Philadelphia convention and consequently there will be a lull in their campaign activity until the convention is ended.

Rivers Speaks July 4.

Speaker Rivers is to open his campaign at Gainesville on July 4, but he has been busying himself with precampaign activity. Judge Fortson, who has not yet qualified as a candidate probably will do so immediately on his return from Philadelphia. Entering the race only a few days ago the Athens judge has not yet mapped his campaign and the necessity for him being absent from the state doubtless will delay all of his personal campaign plans until his return, although his backers, like those of Speaker Rivers, undoubtedly will continue their activity.

Meanwhile former Congressman W. W. Larsen, of Dublin, is continuing his speaking tour over middle Georgia. Judge Larsen has a heavy schedule laid out for hte week.

Talmadge Still Silent.

The Talmadge status remains unchanged, as far as could be learned yesterday. The Governor has not given his closest friends any indication of his plans but most of them, including those who hope to succeed him in the gubernatorial chair, are of the opinion that he will oppose Senator Richard B Russell Jr., who has announced his candidacy for re-election.

The formal declaration of his intent is not expected to be made by the Governor until a few hours before the entries in the September 2 primary close at 11 o'clock on July 4.

The Governor will speak at McRae July 4 and has announced that on that date he will make public his full slate of candidates all of whom already are known, except his candidate for the senate and the governorship.

Two Seek Governorship.

With such a status existing in the Talmadge ranks, two strong lieutenants of the Governor are making active plans for entering the governorship race, Senate President Charles D. Redwine and Hugh Howell, chairman of the state democratic executive committee. If Talmadge runs for the senate one or both of these lieutenants will seek the governorship.

Activity in other statehouse races has been lagging but doubtless will open up soon. Outside of the senate and the governorship, major interest seems to be in the race for commissioner of agriculture in which Columbus Roberts, of Columbus, is opposing the incumbent, Tom Linder.

There have been numerous announcements for other offices and some of those who have announced have qualified but are marking time awaiting developments.

HUGH HOWELL LAUDS LEADER AT CUTHBERT

State Chairman Says He'll Follow Talmadge Policies If Made Governor.

CUTHBERT, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—Hugh Howell, chairman of the state democratic executive committee, in a political speech here today, said "If the people should call on me to succeed Gene Talmadge" he would preserve the Talmadge principles of government.

Howell calls himself the Governor's "Henchman, Number One." In some quarters the chairman has been mentioned as the possible gubernatorial candidate of the Talmadgeites.

The address was one of a series Howell has been delivering in the interest of the Governor, who is to announce his future political plans at McRae July 4.

Reiterates Pledge.

Howell reiterated that he and the Governor are pledged to support the national nominees of the party selected at Philadelphia and that they "do not intend to let any self-seeking man run us out of the democratic party."

Attacking "crooked politicians, who want to create useless jobs," the "fixers" and "care-free spenders" and a "few banks," Howell said:

"These enemies of Talmadge have visions of plundering and looting the state treasury if they can only get control of the state government by putting Talmadge out.

"Hungry as Wolves."

"They are as hungry as starved wolves and they are as mad as a bunch of wet hornets because Eugene Talmadge has kept them from looting our treasury and robbing our people.

"Every time you hear one of them letting out a hoot and howl about Talmadge, you may know he is cursing our Governor because he kept the crooked politicians away from the public trough.

"If that gimme crowd should put their gang into control in Georgia, you can look for them to undo everything that Talmadge has done.

"You can count on that crowd of Talmadge enemies to throw to the four winds every campaign promise that they make."

CHILDREN AND ADULTS TO ATTEND SERVICES

A series of services for both children and adults will be held this week at the Longley Avenue Christian church. The program will be based on educational evangelism. Glenn Carter, of the College Park Christian church, will direct the work of adults; the Rev. Harry Berry, of the Christian church of Fitzgerald, will be in charge of young people, and Mrs. L. O. Turner, secretary of women's work for Georgia Christian churches, will direct the work of the intermediates.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS WILL STAGE PICNIC

The Knights of Columbus will hold a picnic with the Catholic orphans of Georgia next Sunday at the Catholic orphanage at Washington, Ga.

Members of the organization and their families will motor to Washington, where the picnic lunch will be spread on the grounds of the orphanage. The automobiles of the party will leave the corner of Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue at 8 o'clock next Sunday morning.

MODEL A-87 . . . A four-band console for those who demand above-the-average radio reception. The tuning range of this receiver embraces all standard broadcast frequencies as well as foreign shortwave, police and amateur signals. In addition there is an extra long-wave band on which weather and aircraft signals are heard. Eight metal tubes.

MODEL A-83

8 Reception Bands • American and Foreign Broadcasts • 8 All-Metal Tubes.

The New Metal Tube
A new radio miracle has come out of the "House of Magic" . . . the Metal Tube—a development so important that a completely new radio has been built around it.

Sentry Box
Of the thousand and one radio waves rushing upon the receiver, all demanding entrance, the Sentry Box selects and allows only one wave to pass—the station frequency to which you are dialed.

Permaliners
These air trimmer condensers maintain permanently the perfect factory alignment of all circuits. Because of their remarkable construction, they individually seal out those twin enemies of distant reception—moisture and dirt.

Stabilized Dynamic Speaker
Especially developed as a result of years of experimentation and research by General Electric "House of Magic" engineers, this new dynamic speaker provides a remarkably faithful tone quality at all volumes.

Sliding-Rule Tuning Scale
This outstanding feature is an exclusive General Electric development. It lists all stations in a straight line, using a separate scale for each band. "Easy to read as a ruler"—because only one band is visible at a time.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

'My Marriage' on Capitol Screen; 'Broadway Rhythm Revue' on Stage

Peering behind the headlines, the picture, "My Marriage," brings a startling and romantic drama to the Capitol theater with Claire Trevor heading a stellar cast. As the heroine of the picture Miss Trevor is a girl who has been reared in the stronghold of society, happy, envied until a racketeer's bullet strikes her father down—reveals that he was a racketeer himself. Although she seeks to run away from the aristocratic young Kent Taylor, she eventually capitulates to his pleas that he marry her. His family seems to shield her, but all the while they are working to destroy the romance. Events come to a head rapidly when husband and wife are alienated, and Miss Trevor turns to Paul Kelly, an old friend of her father, for aid.

In the startling climatic scenes, the girl comes face to face with the terror of the underworld, discovers the secret of her father's death—one that would shake society at its foundation—but conceals it for the love of her husband. The close of the film brings a reconciliation and a happy solution of the problem. Helen Wood, lovely southern brunet, receives her first important assignment in "My Marriage," which also features Thomas Beck, Pauline Frederick and Noel Madison.

On the stage the Capitol presents "Broadway Rhythm Revue," a show that offers an unusual combination of talent which has been recruited from the stage, screen and radio. Among the participants are Delores and Del Roy, assisted by Jerry De Lee, who have appeared in several Hollywood pictures. Billy Farrell with May and June, a delightfully surprising trio who offer a series of humorous episodes of a diversified nature; Sylvia Tucker, whose singing is second only to her famous aunt, Sophie Tucker; Al Mardo and Pal, a comedy surprise act; Jima the gay deceiver ,and the Rhythm Masters' orchestra, which will be augmented by Enrico Leide and his Capitolians. The show is a well balanced presentation with an elaborate wardrobe and special scenic and lighting effects.

'Florida Special' at Paramount Stars Jack Oakie and Sally Eilers

Sprightly Jack Oakie and charming Sally Eilers are well teamed in Paramount's "Florida Special," the new mystery thriller comedy now playing at the Paramount theater.

In this story of romance and intrigue, a heterogeneous lot of characters are thrown together on a speeding train, bound for the south, and the adventures they experience are alternately comic and hair-raising.

Jack Oakie, as a star reporter, and Sally Eilers as a train hostess, give an excellent account of themselves in their exciting roles.

"Florida Special" is a fast-paced tale of an eccentric millionaire who chains a box filled with precious gems to his secretary, and with his niece embarks for Florida. Before he has gone very far, he realizes he has a newspaper reporter, a drunken playboy, a detective on his vacation, and two gangs of crooks on his heels.

Things begin to happen when the secretary is murdered, the jewels stolen, and the millionaire vanishes.

For anyone who wants action and comedy mixed in his films, "Florida Special" has enough to satisfy his appetite. In support of Miss Eilers and Oakie are Kent Taylor, as the playboy who falls in love with Sally; Claude Gillingwater, as the cranky millionaire, and Frances Drake as his niece. Sam Hearn, the "Schlepperman" of radio fame, appears in his first screen role in the picture while Sidney Blackmer is seen as the head of a gang of international jewel thieves.

"Florida Special" was directed by Ralph Murphy from the Clarence Budington Kelland story.

To complete this delightful program, Paramount theater again brings the latest issue of the "March of Time."

PONCEY SHOWING 'EXCLUSIVE STORY'

Shirley Temple and Mae West Also Starred on Week's Program.

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater will present "Exclusive Story" with Franchot Tone, Madge Evans, Staurt Erwin and Robert Barrat. This is an exciting mystery and adventure story concerning a young reporter who conducted an investigation and expose of the notorious "number racket." It is filled with action from beginning to end. As a special added attraction the Ponce de Leon will also offer "Major Bowe's Amateurs on the Screen."

Tuesday and Wednesday Shirley Temple will be in "The Littlest Rebel" with John Boles, Jack Holt, Karen Morley and Bill Robinson. It is a touching drama of a pretty little girl whose life was almost wrecked during the great War Between the States.

Thursday and Friday "Klondike Annie" will feature Mae West and Victor McLaglen. It is a spicy story of the gold rush in the klondike.

For Saturday only the Ponce de Leon will show "The Lone Wolf Returns," starring Melvyn Douglas. It is a fast-moving mystery story.

BUCKHEAD PLAYS 'EXCLUSIVE STORY'

George Arliss and Mae West Films To Be Shown This Week.

As timely as the black headlines from which it is fashioned is the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Exclusive Story," featuring Franchot Tone and Madge Evans and coming today and tomorrow to the Buckhead theater. Written by ace reporter Martin Mooney, it is a dramatization of his crusade against the racketeer overlords of New York, dealing in particular with the notorious "policy game," which is said to rob citizens of millions each year. Heading the cast are Stuart Erwin, J. Farrell MacDonald, Louise Henry and Raymond Hatton.

The picture for Tuesday is "Mister Hobo" featuring the suave, debonair George Arlis as a plain hobo. The story concerns a lovable vagabond whom circumstances elevate to affluence, through no fault or virtue of his own. Viola Keats and Patrick Klowles, in the supporting cast, portray the love interest.

The wise-cracking Mae West comes to the screen Wednesday and Thursday in "Klondike Annie," a breezy story of San Francisco's Barbary coast and the fabulous Alaskan gold rush. Mae is again a gay and ornamental gal of the 90's, and Victor McLaglen is her principal foil.

Friday offers James Gagney, Pat O'Brien and Stuart Erwin in "Ceiling Zero" a thrilling story of three flying war buddies. June Travis and Isabel Jewel play the feminine leads.

The attraction for Saturday is "Powdersmoke Range," an all-star romance of the pioneer west, with Harry Carey, Hoot Gibson, "Big Boy" Williams, Bob Steele, Tom Tyler and Boots Mallory.

The 11th chapter of "Adventures of Rex and Rinty" and selected short subjects complete a bill of fine entertainment.

"LORD FAUNTLEROY" SHOWING AT CENTER

Today and tomorrow Freddie Bartholemew and Dolores Costello Barrymore are costarred in "Little Lord Fauntleroy," charming picturization of the world-famous Frances Hodgson Burnett story, at the Center theater. The story follows the familiar adventures of the little American boy who became a nobleman and went to England to live in Derincourt castle with his grandfather, the irascible old earl.

Tuesday brings "Her Master's Voice," with Edward Everett Horton and Peggy Conklin.

Wednesday's offering is "Navy Wife," with Claire Trevor and Ralph Bellamy. Against the glamour and excitement of navy life, the picture tells the story of a strang wedding and of the powerful love that grew out of a loveless match.

On Thursday and Friday "Klondike Annie," with Mae West and Victor MacLaglen, will be shown. As its title indicates, it is concerned with the fabulous Alaska gold rush.

Saturday, Eddie Cantor in "Strike Me Pink," lavish million-and-a-half-dollar production, featuring Ethel Merman, Sally Eilers, Parkykarkus and a glorious new array of Goldwyn girls, is the attraction.

PALESTINE DECREES DEATH FOR SABOTAGE

JERUSALEM, June 20. —(Palcor Agency)—The Palestine government today extended the death penalty to crimes of sabotage as it fought to end the violence and destruction which, in the last nine weeks, have resulted in more than 20 deaths of Jews, Arabs, and Christians.

The new measure provides the death sentence in criminal assizes, and five years to life in district court for anyone possessing, or on whose property there is found firearms or explosives or incendiary material for which no license has been issued.

FAMILY TRAITS STUDIED.

Peculiar family traits which may have been handed down from one generation to another are being sought by the newly formed bureau of human heredity in London. The bureau aims to build up a storehouse of information about inherited characteristics.

Five Superlatively Fine Screen Attractions Now Playing

Grace Moore Now in Second Week In 'The King Steps Out' at Rialto

Now in its second week at the Rialto theater, the new Grace Moore picture, "The King Steps Out," bids fair to set new records for popularity and length of run at Manager W. T. Murray's popular uptown theater. That is, judging by the size and enthusiasm of the audiences through the first nine days of the run.

Capacity crowds have been found in the theater every day from soon after noon on through the afternoon and night shows and already patrons who have enjoyed the delightful picture once are returning for a second visit.

With Franchot Tone doing delightful work in the leading masculine role, that of the handsome young king of Austria, and with music by Fritz Kreisler that sets every audience to humming, the picture could be nothing less than smashingly popular, to say nothing of the charm and vivacity and glorious voice of Grace Moore, the star.

Von Sternberg directed this production and he has succeeded in presenting a more beautiful, a more glamorous and a more delightful comedienne than any other director who has handled a Grace Moore picture.

His art is also evident in the delightful handling of the picture throughout, with its emphasis upon effective minor developments in plot and the fast tempo with which the frolicsome romance is told.

The supporting cast includes many famous players in its roster, with Walter Connolly as a duke and connoisseur on beer and with Herman Bing as the proprietor of an inn leading the roster of fun makers. Nothing funnier than Bing's puzzlement over his own whistling has been seen on the screen, by the way.

With no knowledge of how long Manager Murray can keep "The King Steps Out," it will be wise to see it as quickly as possible. And then, having seen it, you'll want to see it again and take all your friends.

And, with the feature, you'll see some excellent short subjects that make every minute of the show thoroughly enjoyable.

"FOLLOW THE FLEET" FOR TENTH STREET

"Follow the Fleet," starring the popular team of Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, will be at the Tenth Street theater today and tomorrow. This, their latest picture, is a festive seagoing story of romance, dancing and comedy, featuring several of the season's most popular song hits. Randolph Scott and Harriett Hilliard head the supporting cast.

Wednesday brings "She," Marian C. Cooper's spectacular story of a young scientist who goes in search of a mythical land of wonders. The story is from the widely read book by H. Rider Haggard.

Thursday and Friday brings "13 Hours by Air," a dramatic heart-stirring romance. Fred MacMurray and Joan Bennett head a cast of stars.

"Freshman Love," coming Saturday stars Patricia Ellis, Warren Hull and Frank McHugh in a romantic tale of young love on the campus.

Marion Davies and Dick Powell In 'Hearts Divided' on Fox Screen

Never has the beautiful star, Marion Davies, appeared in a more entertaining and gripping romance than in her latest Cosmopolitan production, "Hearts Divided," now showing at the Fox theater. This story of the wooing and winning of the brilliant and beautiful Betsy Patterson, of Baltimore, by Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the French emperor, is a real heart throbbing drama.

While the romance is predominant, the picture has an historical background, with Jerome Bonaparte in America as the agent of his brother to negotiate the sale of the Louisiana territory. It brings in many noted characters of the period, including Napoleon himself, President Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, John Marshall, Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton.

The picture is a lavish one, with mammoth sets and colorful backgrounds, while the women are costumed in the gorgeous empire gowns of the period. Picturesque scenes take place in the Patterson mansion and estate and in the palace of the emperor of France.

The picture is enlivened by catchy songs written by the famous team of Harry Warren and Al Dubin and sung by Dick Powell, who has the leading masculine role opposite Miss Davies. Other delightful music is furnished by the Hall Johnson choir who sing the spirituals of the negro slaves quartered on the Patterson estate.

Never has Miss Davies been more pleasing, nor more charming than as the beautiful belle of Baltimore who loses her heart to Jerome whom she knows only as her tutor in French and music.

Claude Rains does some exceptionally fine acting in the role of Napoleon Bonaparte. Charlie Ruggles, Edward Everett Horton and Arthur Treacher add some fine comedy touches in their roles of three indefatigable suitors of the beautiful Betsy, who mocks them and laughs at them and loves them as the kindly, blundering, elderly men they are.

Frank Borzage made an exceptionally fine production of "Hearts Divided." His fine directorial touch can be seen throughout the picture. The screen play is by Laird Doyle and Casey Robinson, based on the story by Rida Johnson Young.

Sylvia Sidney and Spencer Tracy Co-Star in 'Fury' at Loew's Grand

A new and highly effective romantic team—Sylvia Sydney and Spencer Tracy—are presented in "Fury," the fiery and dramatic entertainment now offered at Loew's Grand theater. This virile tale of a man's fight for revenge against cruelty, his sweetheart's gentle influence upon his character, and excellent characterizations by a supporting cast which includes Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, and Frank Albertson, has been most impressively directed by Fritz Lang, imported from Vienna, and showing the decided abilities which led him to be imported to Hollywood.

Tracy gives probably his finest performance as a young American who sets out in his automobile to join sweetheart (Sylvia Sidney) who had gone west to take a job. En route his automobile is stopped by a posse hunting a criminal. His car is of the same model as that the criminal used, and moreover Tracy in a general way answers the description of the man sought. He is arrested and lodged in jail.

Public sentiment has been strongly aroused against the criminal. Soon a mob, excited by hatred, gathers outside the jail, determined to lynch the arrested man. When they are unable to reach him, they set fire to the jail and Tracy presumably perishes. Actually, by sheer accident, he gets away, a bitter and resentful man. Soon after, when the real criminal is captured, the injustice done Tracy becomes apparent.

He swears vengeance upon the mob leaders. Working under cover, for he is legally "dead," Tracy takes part in the arrest and conviction of 22 men and women who set fire to the jail. The influence of his sweetheart, and her efforts to change his determination, provide the tense climax to a film of extraordinary timeliness and dramatic strength. Miss Sydney's feminine grace provides a notable contrast to the grim and masculine quality of Tracy's performance, and Walter Abel, as district attorney, and Bruce Cabot, as a mob leader, add impressive characterizations.

HILAN NOW OFFERS 'EXCLUSIVE STORY'

Racketeering Thriller on Screen With Tone and Madge Evans.

Today and tomorrow the Hilan theater will present "Exclusive Story" with Franchot Tone, Madge Evans, Stuart Erwin and Robert Barrat. This is an exciting mystery and adventure story concerning a young reporter who conducted an investigation and expose of the notorious "number racket." It is filled with action from beginning to end.

Tuesday only Mae West will be costarred with Victor McLaglen in "Klondike Annie," a colorful story of the famous Klondike during the gold rush. A few of the songs sung by Mae West are "I'm An Occidental Woman," "Mr. Deep Blue Sea" and "Little Bar Butterfly."

Wednesday only Edward Everett Horton and Peggy Conklin will be in "Her Master's Voice," an excellent domestic comedy.

Thursday and Friday George Arliss will be seen in one of his most outstanding hits "Mister Hobo." In this picture the inimitable Arliss is seen as a wandering hobo who finds an opportunity to help a young boy and girl.

Saturday only "A Thousand Dollars a Minute" will feature Roger Pryor, Leila Hyams and Edgar Kennedy. This fast-moving comedy was adapted from a famous Saturday Evening Post story.

POLICE NOT HOLDING CREW OF "GOLD SHIP"

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, June 20. The crew of the Girl Pat, formerly a 25-ton fishing trawler but more recently a treasure-seeking craft, remained under police protection today.

Four English fishermen, accused by an agent of Lloyd's Insurance Company of having fled Grimsby with the ship last April, were reported "not under detention."

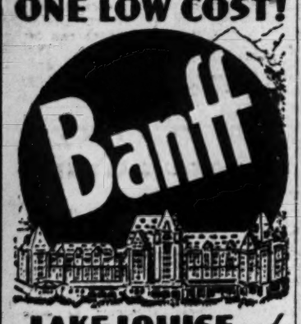

The seekers after pirate gold were first said to be under arrest after the Girl Pat was towed in by the government vessel Pomeroon yesterday. Later, however, Inspector General C. P. Windup denied the fishermen had been taken into custody. "They have put themselves under police protection," he said.

"EXCLUSIVE STORY" ON EMPIRE SCREEN

Romantic Thriller To Be Shown There for Today and Tomorrow.

Romantic and exciting is the new M.-G.-M. picture "Exclusive Story," the feature at the Empire theater today and tomorrow, with Franchot Tone and Madge Evans co-featured in the leading roles. The story is a swift-moving tale of the crusade and capture of modern-day public enemies by a daring young attorney, with the help of a beautiful girl, herself the daughter of a racket victim. Stuart Erwin plays the role of the not-so-dumb newspaper reporter with customary finesse and humor. Others featured are Margaret Irvin and Robert Barratt.

Tuesday presents "The Lady Consents," with Ann Harding playing the roles of the discarded wife who fights for her husband, Herbert Marshall, and wins him back.

Wednesday and Thursday brings "The Country Doctor," with the famous Dionne quintuplets. Jean Hersholt is the doctor. Others featured are Jupe Lang, Slim Summerville and Dorothy Peterson.

Bette Davis comes to the Empire Friday in her latest picture, "Dangerous," with Franchot Tone as her leading man and Margaret Lindsay as her rival.

"The Eagle's Brood," is the attraction for Saturday with William Boyd as the star. Boyd has the role of a peace officer in the great southwest. Jimmy Ellison is seen. Newsreels and short subjects will complete the program.

PRIMARY FINANCING IS PROBLEM HERE

Fulton Committee Will Seek Solution to Threatened Cash Shortage.

Faced with a shortage of at least $2,000 for holding the democratic primary in Fulton county on September 9, the Fulton county democratic executive committee will meet at noon Tuesday to seek a solution of the dilemma.

Based on audits of previous years, officials of the Fulton organization yesterday said it costs $6,000 to hold a primary in Fulton county. Estimated receipts from entrance of candidates, because of the low figure fixed by the state committee, is between $1,500 and $2,000. The committee has a balance of approximately $2,000 now. This leaves the deficit to be made up in some manner.

The state committee let down the thickly populated city counties of the state, it was said yesterday, despite assurances, which it was claimed Hugh Howell, chairman of the state body, gave that fees would be larger in populous counties to provide funds for holding the primary.

"Exclusive Story" at Four Theaters Today

Scene from the M-G-M thriller, "Exclusive Story," which is playing today and tomorrow at the Hilan, Ponce de Leon, Buckhead and Empire theaters, with Franchot Tone and Madge Evans in the principal roles.

HIGH COURT ORDERS P. S. C. RULING OBEYED

The Georgia supreme court yesterday upheld the power of the Georgia Public Service Commission to force the Georgia Power Company to furnish electric service to the town of Andersonville in Sumter county.

The court reversed an injunction granted the power company in Fulton superior court holding the order of the commission null and void.

The decision was 4 to 2. Justice Bell and Superior Judges Graham, Worrell and Gardner upholding the majority opinion, Presiding Justice Beck and Justice Gilbert dissented.

BONUS CERTIFICATIONS ARE CONCENTRATED

Veterans who wish to cash their bonus bonds this week must apply either at certification desks in the corridors of the old postoffice building on Forsyth street or at similar desks in the lobby of the new federal annex, near the Terminal Station, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster Lon Livingston.

Practically all veterans who applied for their checks last week will have them by Monday, Livingston said. clerks have been added to the force of regular employees to expedite preparation of the checks.

MERGER STUDY SET FOR HEALTH UNITS

Citizens' Commission Will Meet Tomorrow Night for Reports of Experts.

Proposed merger of Atlanta and Fulton county health departments will be discussed at a meeting of the citizens' merger commission to be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night at the grand jury room of the Fulton county courthouse, it was announced yesterday by George W. McCarty, chairman.

State, county and city health officials have been invited to attend the session and present their views on the proposed consolidation.

Similar meetings by the commission, which was appointed on the recommendation of the January-February grand jury, have been held to discuss merger of police, school and taxing departments of city and county.

H. C. Mizell, secretary of the group, said invitations have been sent to the following:

Chairman C. R. Adams, of the county commission; County School Superintendent Jere A. Wells, Dr. W. L. Gilbert and Dr. Bolling Gay, representing the county; Samuel C. Dobbs, chairman of the Grady hospital board of trustees, and Grady Superintendent John B. Franklin, Dr. Guy Lunsford and L. M. Clarkston, of the state health department, and members of city council's sanitary committee.

VACATION AT BOTH SUMMER AND WINTER

MIAMI BEACH IS CALLING YOU

• SPECIAL SUMMER RATES •

MARINE TERRACE HOTEL

JOHN B. REID, MANAGING DIRECTOR

ON THE OCEAN AT 27TH STREET.

"THE MOST EXCLUSIVE SECTION OF MILLIONAIRE PLAYGROUND"

DEAR VACATIONIST:

Miami Beach, Florida's, newest ocean front hotel, open the year round, WITH PRIVATE BEACH DIRECTLY ON THE OCEAN, where cool breezes blow, invites you to take advantage of the exceptional low rates offered at this time of $17.50 a week per person, two occupants to the room; $22.50 a week single, meals included. These same rooms during the winter season were in demand at $16.00 per day and up, European plan, and many letters are in our hands evidencing a clientele highly satisfied with our unique service.

You are privileged to enjoy these same accommodations during this summer at only a fractional part of this cost in a new hotel which caters to a discriminating clientele.

You can visit Tropical America, virtually a foreign country, different to other sections in 17 hours from Atlanta, at reduced transportation rates. As for climate, 90 degrees is unusual and on the ocean front it is always lower.

Can You Imagine a More Pleasant or Economical Vacation? With the ATLANTIC OCEAN AS YOUR OWN FRONT YARD—with your living quarters (surrounded by spacious veranda and lounge) within a few steps of the water's edge; breakfast in bed if you like, private beach, life guard, fishing, boating, golfing, dancing, see the Pan-American Airways giant clipper planes coming into the magnificent airport on Biscayne Bay and many other interesting things that will make your vacation pleasant and inexpensive.

WE EXTEND TO YOU A HEARTY WELCOME. OUR REPRESENTATIVE IS IN ATLANTA NOW. PLEASE GET IN TOUCH WITH HER, OR WRITE FOR BOOKLET. HAVE HER TELL YOU JUST HOW LITTLE THE COST OF THIS WONDERFUL TRIP WILL BE.

Summary Slaying of 400 Natives Restores Peace to Addis Ababa

Picture of Ethiopian Capital Today Is One of Tranquillity, Enforced by Curfew and Executions; Jackals Haunt Ruins of Business Section.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.
(Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press.)

ADDIS ABABA, June 20.—(AP)—It is so quiet now in Addis Ababa, where 800 dead lay on the streets May 5, that everyone yawns through the day and talks through the night.

The pacification, following four bloody days which preceded the entry of the Italian troops, cost probably 400 more native lives. The normal population is about 150,000.

On May 6, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the Italian commander, issued his proclamation of martial law. He called for the surrender of all firearms to carabiniere headquarters in four sections of the city.

Natives were told to stop looting, on pain of death. The same penalty was reserved for those who continued to hide either arms or loot. An 8 p. m. curfew, for natives, was established.

For days the arms and loot piled in. But there still was shooting in the ruins at night. Men caught looting were confined in an empty warehouse. Dozens of murderers were caught.

The carabiniere non-coms sat with interpreters all day long, settling native claims. The court martials sat all night. They heard the evidence in the worst cases, sentenced 50 men to die in one group, 20 in another.

The doomed natives were shot at the edge of the flying field, and, when two tried to break away, the captain of the firing squad was caught in the line of machine-gun fire. He saved himself by dropping on his face.

Then the marauding stopped. The city became as peaceful as a country village.

Now the ruined business section is haunted at night by only the fighting dog packs, the jackals and the hyenas.

MANY HOUSING LOANS MADE IN COBB COUNTY

MARIETTA, Ga., June 20.—Erle Cocke, state director of the National Emergency Council for Georgia, stated today that through April 30 the federal housing administration had insured 196 modernization loans amounting to $54,415.96 in Cobb county, and had accepted one mortgage for insurance amounting to $6,500, making a total of $60,915.96 for the county.

The volume of loans in Cobb since these figures were compiled has shown a substantial increase, he said.

CHARLES HAYES DIES AT MILWAUKEE HOME

Charles Hayes, field director of the American Foundation for the Blind, died yesterday afternoon at his home in Milwaukee, Wis.

He was a frequent visitor to Atlanta, working on behalf of the blind, and was well known here.

16TH BODY FOUND IN NEW YORK CRASH

Officials Launch Probe in Apartment Building Cave-in.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—The body of the 16h victim of an apartment building collapse was dug out of the debris tonight with six feet of wreckage holding the possibility still more may be found in the mass of twisted girders and crumbled stone.

A dozen others were in hospitals, two seriously injured.

City and county officials had launched a many-sided investigation into the cave-in of the apartment building in Mosholu parkway in the Bronx, which still was under construction when the roof and seven floors of the building fell through Friday.

Attached to the standing walls were banners which proclaimed the structure, ironically, "The House of Tomorrow."

"We can't lay this to an act of God," said Patrick J. Reville, commissioner of buildings in the Bronx. He said he did not think heavy rains of the last week had been responsible for weakening construction.

"It may have been caused by overcrowding. There is a human element in this," he declared. Reville suspended two inspectors pending a grand jury investigation.

The victims were workmen, most of them bricklayers who had gone to the roof to get their pay within a few moments of quitting time.

JENKINS WILL SPEAK AT YEOMANS' REUNION

SWAINSBORO, Ga., June 20.—Judge W. F. Jenkins, of the court of appeals, will be the principal speaker at the annual reunion of the Yeomans' clan of Georgia, Thursday, July 9, at Swainsboro, R. H. Riner, secretary of the clan, announced today.

An invitation has been extended to Senator Walter F. George and he is also expected to be present. Attorney General M. J. Yeomans will introduce Judge Jenkins.

A feature of the reunion will be a basket dinner served in the city park of Swainsboro. Several thousand persons are expected to attend.

JOHN C. HAYES, 56, DIES AT MANSFIELD HOME

COVINGTON, Ga., June 20.—John C. Hayes, 56, of Mansfield, died at his home there today after a long illness. He was a prominent Mansfield businessman.

He is survived by his wife and four brothers, H. C. and Howard Hayes, of Mansfield; S. J. and W. G. Hayes, of Covington.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at Carmel church, with Rev. George D. Godard officiating. J. C. Harwell & Son in charge.

CRASH NEAR CONYERS INJURES 2 ATLANTANS

Mrs. Nell Cushing and her 6-year-old grandson, Jack Cavender, both of 514 Waldo street, were slightly injured early last night when they were struck by an automobile being driven out of a driveway at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Masters, near Conyers.

They were treated at Grady hospital, both suffering cuts and bruises of the legs and body. According to police reports, the woman and boy had just stepped from a vehicle when it was struck by an automobile driven by J. D. Masters, 20.

In the car which the woman and boy had left at the time of the collision were the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cavender, and Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Cavender, of 234 Gibson street.

GEORGIAN IS SELECTED FOR BUDAPEST SESSION

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Representative B. T. Castellow, representing the third Georgia district in congress, has been appointed a delegate from the American group of the interparliamentary union to their meeting in Budapest, Hungary, from July 3 to the 8th, he said here today.

The delegation will consist of Senators Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, president of the American group; Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah; Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, and Representatives Thomas S. McMillan, of South Carolina; William E. Richardson, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Castellow. Dr. Arthur Deerin Call, executive secretary of the American group, will also accompany the delegation.

LIMB ON PHONE WIRE BRINGS ODD ACCIDENT

An attempt to remove a tree limb which had fallen across a telephone wire resulted in injury at about 9 o'clock last night to J. U. Goolsby, of 347 Richardson street, when a ladder upon which he was standing was struck by a truck.

He was taken to Grady hospital, where he was treated for injuries to the head and a dislocated left shoulder. According to police reports, the ladder was struck by a truck driven by Humphrey Burley, negro, of a Taliaferro street address, as his vehicle was proceeding east on Richardson street in front of Goolsby's home.

CAR CRASHES TROLLEY; DRIVER IS HURLED OUT

His automobile crashing into the rear of a street car, a man listed as Collie Cain, 45, of 142 Fair street, suffered a possible fractured skull at about 11 o'clock last night when impact hurled him from the automobile on Fair street, near Cherokee avenue.

He was taken to Grady hospital. A technical charge of drunken driving was placed against him. J. C. Cochran, of 82 Bains street, Egan Park, operated the street car, which was proceeding west on Fair street. Cain was admitted to the hospital.

The automobile was badly demolished and the street car was slightly damaged.

20 OFFICERS ALLOWED TO RECEIVE MEDALS

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—The War Department announced today that 20 officers had been authorized to accept foreign decorations under terms of legislation passed recently by congress.

The officers and the countries from which the decorations were made, include:

Lieutenant Colonel John E. Ardery, of Fort Mill, S. C., Ecuador; Lieutenant Colonel Hans R. W. Herwig, Alexandria, Va., Ecuador; Lieutenant Colonel Troy H. Middleton, Baton Rouge, La., France, and Major John A. Weeks, Lexington, Miss., Bolivia.

T. Q. BUSBEE PASSES AFTER ILLNESS OF WEEK

T. Q. Busbee, for many years an employe of the Atlanta Gas Light Company, died last night at the residence, 72 Baker street, N. W., at the age of 79 years.

He was stricken ill a week ago. Surviving are two sons, J. T. and O. B. Busbee. Sam R. Greenberg will announce funeral arrangements.

CAPONE IS ELIGIBLE FOR PAROLE NOW

Having Served 3 of the 11 Years' Sentence, He Asks Freedom.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)— Al Capone, America's No. 1 prisoner, today is eligible for parole from prison.

He has already petitioned for his freedom, the Department of Justice said today, and his petition has been denied. The application for parole was filed and turned down last September, a litle more than three years from the day he began serving his 11-year sentence.

Capone's plea for release from the government's "Devil's Island," Alcatraz, was made under federal parole regulations which provide that applications for release may be made after a prisoner has served one-third of his maximum sentence.

Applying for parole and getting one, the Department of Justice indicated today, are far different things. Past records of federal prisoners weigh strongly against mitigation of the sentences of hardened mobsters.

CAR PASSES STOP SIGN; TWO WOMEN INJURED

Two women passengers were slightly injured at about 9 o'clock last night when the taxicab in which they were riding was struck broadside by a machine that overran a stop sign at DeKalb and Moreland avenues, according to police reports.

The women, Mrs. H. R. Straberg and Mrs. A. R. Bergholz, both of the Cox-Carlton hotel, were treated at Georgia Baptist hospital. They suffered cuts and bruises and were dismissed following treatment.

Bob Troy, 45, of 2460 Boulevard drive, driver of the car, was also cut and bruised. Following treatment at Grady hospital, he was arrested on charges of drunk and reckless driving. He was later released under $200 bond.

According to police reports, the crash, which badly damaged both vehicles, occurred as the cab, driven by Dewey Sheriff, of 979 South Boulevard, was proceeding south on Moreland avenue. The other vehicle was going west on DeKalb avenue.

Max's Last Workout---Louis Finds German's Defense a Puzzle---Braddock Sees Ring Upset

A Guest Column By Jack Troy

Figgers, human and otherwise, do not lie.

I will leave it to Colonel Ralph McGill, who is on the high seas without a carrier pigeon and figured it might be a potent idea for one of the office help to supply a guest column for today.

EMIL MAILHO.

Anyway, some few fans have been expressing worry over the batting of Emil Pierre Mailho, American-born French center fielder of the caper-cutting Crackers.

Mailho, coming to the Crackers on option from the Philadelphia Athletics to replace Peck Hamel, had been used all season in a pinch-hitting role. Any ball player who has been playing regularly and getting his base hits the same way, will tell you that pinch-hitting is the toughest job of all.

The season before Mailho had a batting average of .353 for 172 games with Oakland in the Pacific Coast league. Emil broke into the Cracker lineup a couple of hours after his arrival by auto from Philadelphia. He faced Dick Lanahan, a tough left-handed pitcher. Mailho swings, of course, from the port side. (That's a fine old nautical term and is used, in this case, because of the proximity to the sea of the regular conductor of this palladium of the public weal.)

As said, Mailho virtually leaped from auto to diamond and worse, for he faced a virulent southpaw. The next day he faced another southpaw, Syd Cohen.

During the 11-day home stand of the Crackers Mailho faced both left and right-handed pitchers, most of them good ones.

Consequently, he was not hitting a great deal more than his weight when the club departed for Little Rock. As a matter of fact, his batting average was only .216.

This naturally would cause a casual observer to lift an eyebrow and inquire as to Mr. Mailho's claim, if any, to fame, and why did not the Crackers get an outfielder with a punch?

But figgers, amigoes, do not mislead.

Mailho murdered Arkansas Traveler pitching Friday night. He collected seven hits in ten times up. He got three for five in the first game of the double-header and four for five in the second game, just by way of showing that it was no mere flash in the an-pay.

And so today the Crackers have another .300 hitter in the lineup, answering to the name of Emil Pierre Mailho. He raised his batting average 103 points in the two night games, which is no small jump, either in batting or pole vaulting or what have you.

Mailho is just now settling down to the pace. He needed time to become accustomed to every day play again. He's all set now. Mr. Mailho will be getting his hits with something akin to regularity.

Some will point out the difference in the caliber of Pacific Coast and Southern league pitching. The latter is the best, it is true. But any time a young man hits .353 for 172 games in any organized league, he is going to show you something sooner or later.

You may lay to that.

THOSE CRACKERS ARE SLIPPING—AHEAD.

With Paul Richards batting himself into the home run lead of the league and the double-play combination of Chatham to Lipscomb to Hooks forging to the front, those Crackers are beginning to assert themselves in other departments than the mere standings.

Richards hit homer No. 10 over the long left-center field fence and passed Earl Webb, of Knoxville. The Cracker infield pulled two double plays in each game of the double-header and boosted the season's total to 65, two more than Nashville.

Then, too, Sheriff Dave Harris, who has been hanging in there in stolen bases, pilfered two more sacks to run his total to 12, only one behind the leader, Leo Nonnenkamp, of the Travelers. We are doing right well, it seems.

The boys are due for another slump or two before the season ends. But the club is so well balanced that slumps of more than a few days' duration are very unlikely. And they usually manage to have a lead of such extent that a slump is of little consequence.

THEY PICKED SCHMELING.

Henry McLemore, former Atlanta boy and now a featured sports writer with the United Press, and Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, picked Schmeling.

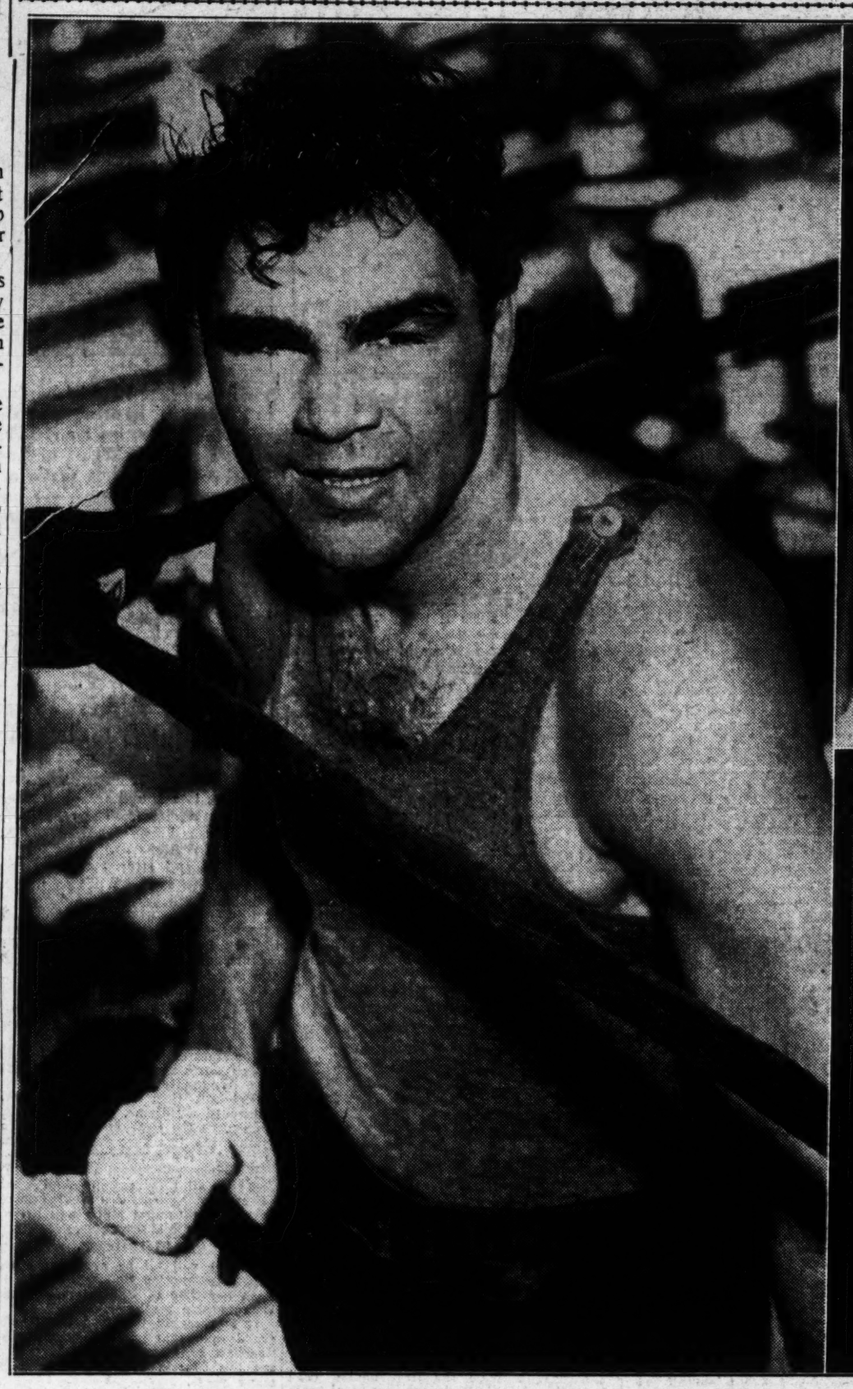

McLemore picked the German by the process of elimination. Since Louis has been fighting professionally, McLemore has taken his opponent in each fight. And so Friday night, McLemore finally was right. He picked Schmeling.

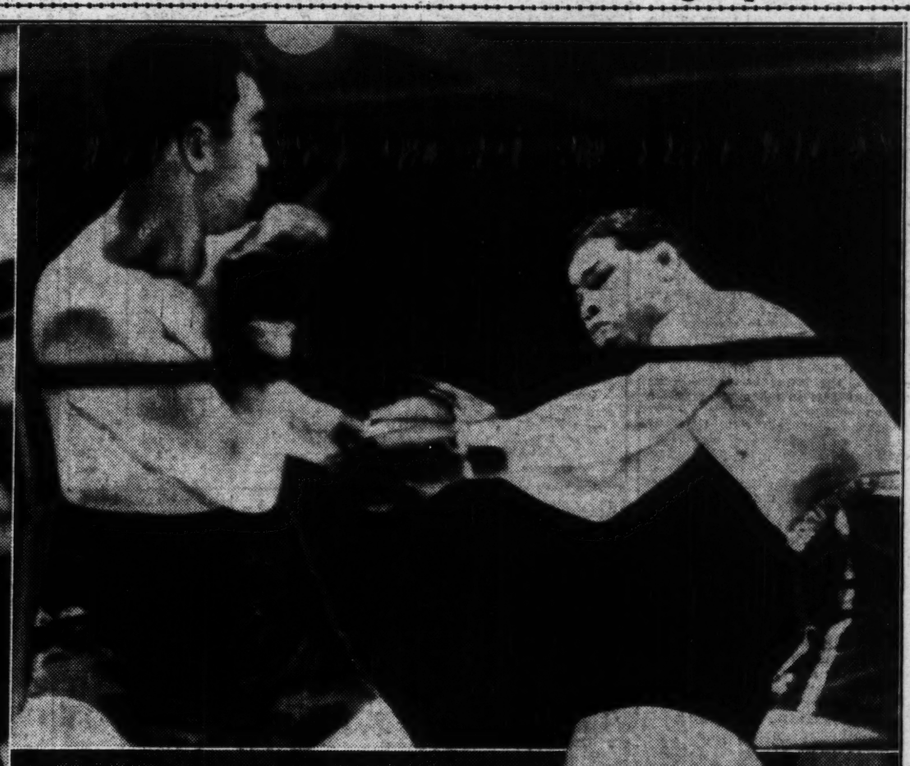

As to Mr. Mann, it is very difficult to conceive why he picked Schmeling, unless it was because he wanted to be different. Anyway, he had a profound hunch from the beginning that the Black Uhlan would blast the Brown Bomber. He picked up some nice odds from a couple of sports writers, including yours truly, and now has a fight on his own hands trying to collect. Which is fair enough. The sports writers are willing to take a bet that Mann couldn't go four rounds on a motor-driven bicycle.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN.

It has been brought to the attention of Pro Bono Publico that eight years ago marked the peak in boxing of Herr Maxmillian Schmeling. Eight years later he knocks out the current heavyweight sensation of the country, a colored boy acclaimed

Max Schmeling, the new idol of the boxing world, is pictured at the left as he concluded what later proved to be a perfect training siege. The German's face radiates the same confidence that was demonstrated Friday night when he cut Joe Louis to ribbons. Jim Braddock, the champion, was an interested—and amazed—spectator, as the German staged one of the greatest upsets in ring history. With Braddock is J. Edgar Hoover, boss of the G-men. Braddock must risk his title against the amazing Max in September. At top, right, we see the principals in boxing's latest drama as they sparred in Schmeling's corner. Louis is baffled by Max's defense. Note how the German's deadly right is cocked for action. He connected successfully more than 60 times with this weapon. Louis couldn't get away from it. Braddock Tells Teuton To "Take Good Care of His Right—He'll Need It."

Associated Press Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Leaving unsettled for the time being the question as to whether Joe Louis, the bombed bomber, was more shell-shocked today than the survivors of the 99.9 per cent wrong club, the fistic world surveyed the results of the upheaval created by Max Schmeling's smashing 12-round knockout victory.

Between alibis and headaches it was determined:

(1) That Schmeling will fight Champion James J. Braddock for the world's heavyweight title, probably the last week in September at the Yankee stadium.

(2) That it's still uncertain whether Madison Square Garden, with Braddock under contract, will wage a promotion battle with Mike Jacobs, who has signed Schmeling, or whether the rivals will patch up their differences and jointly conduct the match.

(3) That Schmeling will return to Germany via the Zeppelin airliner, Hindenburg, leaving here next Tuesday night, to receive the plaudits of his countrymen and see the Olympic games in early August before returning to the United States.

BRADDOCK TOPS.

(4) That Braddock, with his judgment of Louis and the negro's vulnerability sustained, stood at the head of the heavyweight class without any apologies being offered for him, for the first time since he knocked the crown off the curly head of Max Baer a year ago.

(5) That Louis, despite the shocking unexpectedness of his downfall, is by no means "through" and will start a come-back campaign, possibly by August, with a view of fighting his way back into the championship picture by 1937.

(6) That the sports writing fraternity, while ungrudging in its tribute to Schmeling for his great fight and

AMERICA WINS POLO TROPHY

Youthful "Big Four" Takes Cup Tenth Time From England, 8-6.

LONDON, June 20.—(AP)—Slowed down by a spongy turf but clicking magically when it counted most, America's youthful "big four" successfully defended the international polo cup today, winning the second and deciding match, 8 to 6, on the famous Hurlingham Club field.

Replying with two first-period goals after Hesketh Hughes, England's sharpshooting No. 1, had electrified the crowd of 12,000 by scoring on a pass from Gerald Balding in the first 25 seconds of play, the Americans—Eric Pedley, Michael Phipps, Stewart Iglehart and Winston Guest—never were headed thereafter.

The victory was the United States' tenth consecutive cup match triumph since 1914 and enabled the Americans to defend the trophy for the fourth successive time.

A third and final game will be played Wednesday to complete the series, but it will be only an exhibition. The big silver cup was presented to Guest, captain and back, by the Duchess of Gloucester. He took it to the dressing room where it was filled with champagne by Bobby Strawbridge, chairman of the United States Polo Association, and the rival players sipped it dry.

Sultry heat and a field drenched by last night's downpour greatly retarded the players and their mounts and the match fell far short in excitement of the opener, won by the Americans, 10 to 9, on June 10. Under these conditions the English were slight favorites.

OLYMPIC POLO.

HURLINGHAM, Eng., June 20.—(UP)—Robert E. Strawbridge, of the victorious United States polo team, announced today that he was attempting to organize and enter an American polo team in the Olympic games.

WELSH DEFEATS REESE FOR TITLE

Frankie Parker Meets Riggs in National Clay Net Finals.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—Frankie Parker, of Milwaukee, a former titleholder and the nation's seventh ranking player, will match strokes Sunday with Robert Riggs, of Los Angeles, for the national clay courts tennis singles championship.

Parker, who won the title in 1933 and was runner-up last year, swept through the semi-finals today by whipping John McDiarmid, of the University of Chicago, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-2. Parker, steady after dropping the first set, solved his opponent's chop-shot attack in the second set and then opened up with a hard-driving offense that forced the Maroon star to numerous net faults.

Riggs, seeded sixth, compared to the top rating given Parker, scored over Vernon John, of the University of California, in straight sets packed with action, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4. Riggs depended to a great extent on accurate lobs to stop John's rushes to the net.

Bernard Welsh, of Washington, D. C., defeated Billy Reese, of Atlanta, Ga., for the New England states singles title, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3, 1-6, 6-4. The tourney was held in Hartford, Conn., but in order for the finalists to compete in the clay courts meet the New England championship was decided here. Both players displayed sparkling tennis. Welsh suffered an ankle injury in the fifth set and Reese won the next four games before Welsh steadied to take the title.

In the doubles, McDiarmid and Eugene McCauliffe, of New York, will clash with Riggs and Wayne Sabin, of Hollywood. McDiarmid and McCauliffe eliminated Art Hendrix and Gardner Mulloy, of the University of Miami, Fla., 6-3, 6-3, 6-3, while Riggs and Sabin trimmed Wilbur Coen Jr. and William Kiley, of Kansas City, 6-2, 7-9, 7-5, 12-10.

Teams End Series With Two Today

Traveler Pitcher Whiffs 11 Atlantans To Win Second Game of Season From Champions.

By Ben Epstein.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 20.—Some kind of a Roman holiday was staged here tonight from a baseball standpoint when the Travelers thrilled a ladies' day crowd by whitewashing the leading Crackers, 4 to 0. It was the first time the Prothro pack defeated the Georgia gangsters here and the second time this season.

Statistically speaking, the real reason Little Rock pulled the diamond "Schmeling" is because of the superb pitching of Jennings Poindexter, a young lefthander who got his start in the east Texas oil fields, and Sammy Liberto, a juvenile Arkansas clouter from Fort Smith.

Where the Traveler pitchers of Friday were uncles to Moore's maulers, Poindexter was "Papa" spelled with an italic "P." In brief he climaxed a brilliant five-hit performance by fanning 11 Crackers, something to crow about if you ask the citizenry in this centennial state.

MAN ON SECOND.

The closest the Crackers came to making a run was a man on second and third in the first and on second and first in the eighth.

Liberto's single in the third scored Little Rock's first pair. The Italian's double in the fifth drove in Poindexter. Liberto came home when Lipscomb muffed Williams' grounder for the fourth run.

The victory really is something to whoop about in these parts as a loss down Atlanta way probably is attributed to the law of averages. As a matter of fact it enabled the Pebs to prance back into first division, thanks to the Vols walloping the Pels.

A double-header is billed tomorrow, with Schmidt and Thomas probably going for the Crackers. Sharpe and Rogers are slated for the Travelers.

The Crackers got two aboard in first inning, but failed to score. Mailho beat out a hit to first, Hill flied to Nonnenkamp. Hooks hammered a double down the right field foul line but Harris fouled to Malay and Griffiths threw out Lipscomb.

Griffiths, first up, beat out a slow hit to short but Lindsey retired Nonnenkamp, Liberto and Williams in order.

Atlanta was easy in the second as Poindexter struck out Browne, Galvin and Chatham. Lindsey also retired the Travelers—one, two, three.

MAILHO HITS AGAIN.

After Poindexter fanned Lindsey for his fourth straight strikeout in the third, Mailho beat out his second infield hit but Hill hit into a double play engineered by Griffiths.

Little Rock got to Lindsey for a pair, with one away Poindexter singled and stopped at third on Griffiths' two-bagger. Nonnenkamp grounded out

Leonard Expected To Arrive Today

Emil Leonard, right-handed pitcher recently secured by the Crackers from Brooklyn, is expected to arrive here today.

Leonard will report to President Earl Mann and the two of them will leave Atlanta tonight and join the Crackers in Memphis Monday.

Cubs Defeat Dodgers for 14th Straight; Tigers Blank Yankees

CARDINALS BOW TO GIANTS, 7-6; BEES TRIP REDS

St. Louis Lead Over Chicago Is Trimmed to Only Half Game.

BROOKLYN, June 20.—(AP)—Young Ken O'Dea's pinch-single in the ninth with the bases loaded gave the Chicago Cubs a 6-to-4 victory over the Dodgers today, stretching the Cubs' winning streak to 14 straight.

Up to that time, Larry French and Tom Baker had engaged in a tight pitching duel, after relieving bill Lee and Lefty Clark, respectively, in the second inning.

Each club had scored four runs in the first two innings the Cubs getting one in the first and three in the second, while the Dodgers put together four hits for as many runs in a second-inning drive against Lee.

The win pulled the Cubs up to a game from the pace of the league-leading St. Louis Cards.

Stan Hack, Cubs' third-sacker, hurt his hand in a collision with Ray Berres at the plate in the first inning, and was forced to retire from the game in the next frame. Woody English was switched from shortstop to fill in for him, and Bill Jurges took the job at short.

The Giants lopped the St. Louis Cardinals' National league lead to a slim one-game margin as Carl Hubbell chalked up his ninth victory of the season with a 7-to-6 triumph over the Gas House gang.

He held the Cards to six hits and one run for the first seven innings before they found the range for three tallies in the eighth and two more in the ninth, the latter two coming on young Stu Martin's homer with a mate on base.

A ninth-inning rally gave the Boston Bees a 7-to-6 victory over Cincinnati and evened their present series with the Reds.

Hal Lee's single in the final frame, with two out and the bases loaded, sent Bill Urbanski across the plate with the winning run.

The Reds tied up the game at six-all in their half of the ninth.

The Phillies and Pittsburgh divided a twin bill, the Pirates winning the first game 6-0 behind the four-hit shutout pitching of Cy Blanton, while in the second the Phillies bunched three of their five hits off Jim Weaver in the seventh to push two runs over the plate and gain a 2-1 triumph.

New Shoot Slated At West End Today

A new angle skeet shoot is scheduled today at the West End Gun Club, Clint Davis announced Saturday. The shoot will begin at 9 o'clock.

A special prize will be the reward of the first shooter breaking a perfect score on the new layout.

Regular ham prizes will be given to the winners in divisions one and two.

Mann's Personality Chart

Save Cracker Autographs And Learn About Players

By Jack Troy.

Earl Mann, who picked Schmeling to beat Louis and now will have a real fight on his own hands to collect from the sports writers, is presented today in the series of Crackers, giving fans a picture, autograph and personality sketch.

The genial Cracker president and personality man is a keen judge of baseball players. In fact, not one of Mann's selections for the Crackers has flopped.

Mann is one of the most popular presidents in the Southern league. He's the youngest and, perhaps, the most respected. He's recognized as a canny judge of talent and a trader of real ability.

Up to the Schmeling-Louis fight, Mann was regarded as a real friend of the sports writers, who now are beginning to suspect that he is a sort of wolf in lamb's frock.

Mann's handwriting analysis follows:

Handwriting Analysis.

By Elaine.

The handwriting of Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers, shows power of application, strength of will and force of character. His writing would indicate that the base of his nature is originality, combining new inventive ideas with the sensitiveness of the true artist.

His signature shows one possessed of straight thinking qualities that make for excellency in organization as well as leadership. There is a natural endowment of great perseverance, tenaciousness, but no resignation. What he would ask for would be the material, and all success won in material matters. He would prefer reason to instinct, peace to war. He would not be quarrelsome, but determined in opposition.

This writing shows much capacity for detail, inasmuch as it is always interested in the processes by which results are obtained.

There is natural born leadership, together with quickness of perception, which enables him to make a point and see a point almost intuitively.

This is the type writing that is keenly sensitive to the tragedies of life and the misfortunes which beset others. The same writing bespeaks sympathy, generosity and impulsiveness.

This signature indicates that Earl Mann will always hold his place in the sun through the force of his personality and the right application of his talents.

TWO-GAME SITE.

AUBURN, Ala., June 20.—Montgomery is the only city in which the 1936 Alabama Polytechnic Institute football team will play two games. Auburn's 1936 grid forces will open their attractive 10-game card for next season against Birmingham-Southern at Cramton Bowl in the Capital City Friday night, September 25, and will lower the curtain on their schedule clashing with Florida in the Cradle of the Confederacy on November 28.

GermansLaud Max; Rerun Broadcast

BERLIN, June 20. — (AP) — Max Schmeling's place among Germany's sport immortals was secure tonight as a result of his amazing knockout victory over Joe Louis.

Throughout the reich the Black Uhlan's comeback formed the sole topic of conversation. So keen was the demand for an eye-witness report of the fight that the nation-wide broadcast of the early morning hours was repeated, from wax impressions, at the more convenient hour of 7 o'clock tonight.

The relatively few who stayed up for the original broadcast were well rewarded. The German announcer sometimes almost forgot to continue the round-by-round description in his excitement. At other times his voice was drowned out by the bedlam at the ringside, but in the main German listeners were given an excellent picture of Schmeling's sensational triumph.

Chancellor Hitler himself headed a long list of persons high in German political life who sent congratulatory messages to the boxer. Among these were the crown prince, Freidrich Wilhelm, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, and Hans von Tschammer-Osten, reich sports commissioner.

The telephone in the home of Anny Ondra, Schmeling's actress wife, rang so continuously that Anny, and later her maid, went into hiding.

There was very little betting on the fight in Germany. Germans generally considered it unpatriotic to bet against Max and his chances were rated so low that it was thought unwise to place too much money on him.

Boxing promoters put out initial feelers to learn whether Schmeling's proposed title match with Jimmy Braddock could be held in Germany.

Dawson, Bronwood Share League Lead

DAWSON, Ga., June 20.—Bronwood and Morgan went into a tie for second place in the Southwest Georgia Baseball league by virtue of their wins in games played Thursday afternoon.

The Bronwood boys nosed out Parrott on the Bronwood diamond by a score of 7-5 with hitting honors about evenly divided.

Morgan beat Richland by the score of 13 on the Morgan diamond.

Softball Game Set At Plains Thursday

AUBURN, Ala., June 20.—Headlining a busy athletic program at Auburn for the week, the softball teams of Martin Dam and Auburn faculty will clash in a return engagement here on Chemistry field Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The faculty tossers won the first game with Martin Dam by a 10-4 margin.

No changes will be made in Auburn's starting lineup for the second tilt with Martin Dam. Barnett will open in right, Travis Brown at third, Hargreaves at first, Jordan in center, Morgan at second, Robinson in left, Powell at short, McCollum at shortfield, Kirtley Brown behind the plate and Salter in the box.

Abel Sought As Referee For Bout

Matchmaker Doc Lanford is making a special effort to obtain Jake Abel, former welterweight contender, to referee his main event and semi-wind-up on his initial 32-round boxing card to be staged Thursday night at the ball park. The first preliminary will start at 8:30.

It will be the first boxing card staged at the ball park in several years and will feature Joe Lipps, Ty Ty, Ga., heavyweight, and Bob Hoover, of Charlotte, in the main event.

The remainder of the card features Bob Allison and "Bunker" Hill in the 8-round semi-windup and Kid Murphy vs. Tiny Gaston in the 4-round bout. Another 4-round bout will complete the card. Young Allen will fight Harold Glymph in a 6 rounder.

Bob Hoover will arrive here Wednesday for the show. He is training daily at Charlotte. He has been winning right and left since the first of the year. In his last seven fights he has won three by knockouts.

Lipps has been a sensation in the east where he has been under the guiding hand of Jack Dempsey. He has been working daily here for the fight. He reports he is in good condition and will weigh around 180 for the fight. Lipps, who has been fighting two years, is only 24 years old.

Hoover's record also is impressive for a young fighter.

Allison recently won the middleweight championship of the Carolinas and this will be his first appearance in an Atlanta ring. Tickets are now on sale.

Milo Steinborn Meets Roche Wednesday Night

Frank Speer, the old Georgia Tech tackle, who is doing a fine job as heavyweight wrestling matchmaker in Atlanta, announced yesterday that Milo Steinborn, famous German strong man, and Dorve Roche, formidable coal miner, would headline his Wednesday night show at Ponce de Leon park. Speer offered a great match last week in the Strangler Lewis-Orville Brown bout, and thinks he has obtained another topnotch attraction.

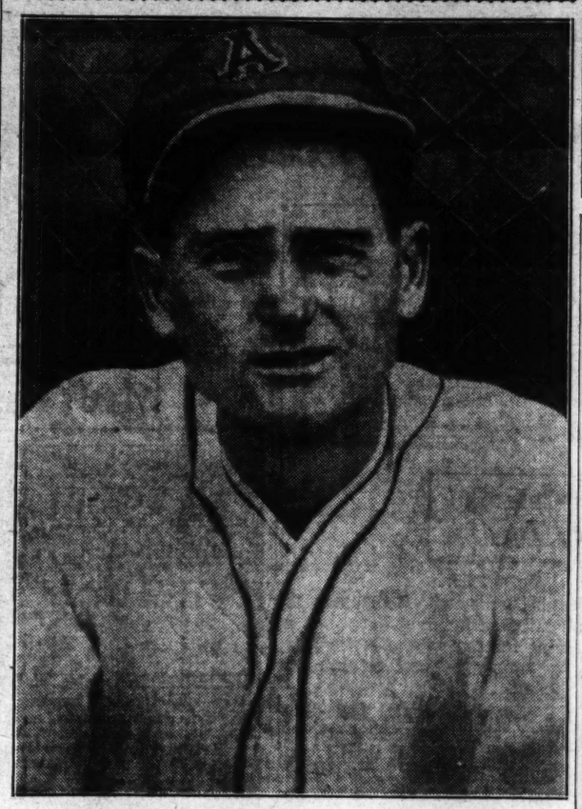

Steinborn, who holds the world's record for the squat in weight lifting, and whose strong-man feats are known the world over, has campaigned on the Pacific coast for the past year and will be making his first local appearance in 14 months.

Steinborn was offered the role of the Great Sandow in the picture, "The Great Ziegfeld," while in Hollywood, at a salary of $1,500 per week, but a conflict in contracts prevented his accepting the part, which was played by Nat Pendelton. Milo's great physique and his experience as a weight lifter made him an ideal character for the role. He had trained diligently for the part and today weighs 210 pounds, which means that he is in grand condition.

Milo is one of the most remarkable athletes ever to come out of Germany, and that includes Max Schmeling, the man who has done the impossible. As for Roche, he needs no introduction. Time and again he has met the best promoters could put into the ring with him here. His record speaks for itself.

Dick Raines, the 230-pound brute who conquered Eddie Newman last week, will meet Casey Berger, a smart and capable matman, in the semi-final. Rudy La Ditzi, who drew with George Hagen on the last card, opposes Cliff Thiede, a fast-stepping newcomer, in the opener.

Takes Home Run Lead

Pound 'Em Paul Richards, who ranks as the best receiver in the league, has forged to the front as the home run leader by virtue of blasting No. 10 Friday night at Little Rock. Richards passed Earl Webb, of Knoxville, who has hit nine. The Cracker catcher has made a big difference in the Cracker catching department. He has been largely responsible for the improvement of Al Williams, rookie right-hander. Staff photo by George Cornett.

Williams' Pitching Rise Due to Richards' Help

Cracker Catcher Takes Fellow Townsman in Hand, Teaches Him Tricks of Trade.

By Jack Troy.

There is a sound reason for the recent improvement in the pitching of Almon Williams. The reason: Pound 'Em Paul Richards.

Credit Williams' rapid advancement to the patience and extra-duty instruction of Richards.

Before and after practices, Richards has taken Williams aside and worked with him. Williams had no change of pace. Richards worked with him until he developed one.

Williams was inclined to be a bit wild. Richards patiently drilled him in taking more time. He made him quit firing the ball down the middle and aim for the corners.

WINS LAST THREE.

Consequently, Williams has won his last three starts. He has pitched good ball in all three games.

The story of Richards and Williams is well worth repeating. They're both from Waxahatchie, Texas, of course.

Richards, then with the A's, recommended Williams, a high school pitcher, to the Crackers. During the winter, the Crackers trade Williams to the A's for Richards.

Williams will remain with the Crackers all this season. And when he reports to the A's next spring, chances are Connie Mack will be delighted with his prospects.

A BIG HELP.

And it will all be due to the excellent instruction and willingness to work overtime of Paul Richards, the Waxahatchie walloper.

It is recognized around the Southern league that in Richards the Crackers have one of the best receivers the Martin circuit has seen in many years.

And in addition to his wonderful handling of pitchers and his rifle throwing arm, Richards is a long-distance hitter. He holds the home run lead of the league at the present time, having taken the lead from Earl Webb, of Knoxville. Richards hit homer No. 10 Friday night at Little Rock.

A real receiver is Pound 'Em Paul Richards, the Waxahatchie walloper.

Special Swim Class Offered by Y.W.C.A.

As a special feature during the summer months the Y. W. C. A. is offering a special swimming class for small boys between the ages of 6 and 8. The class meets every Thursday at 10:30 and a dip period for boys is held on Tuesdays from 3:30 to 4:30.

A new class in life saving for girls will be opened as soon as a sufficient number have registered. The class is open to any young woman who can swim and is interested in life saving. Instructions will be offered for both juniors and seniors.

JIM FOXX RAPS HIS 18TH HOMER AS MATES LOSE

Harry Kelley Allows Chi-Sox Four Hits To Win His Sixth Game.

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP)—Tommy Bridges just about knocked the New York Yankees' reputation as heavy hitters into a cocked hat today as he pitched the world's champion Tigers out of a seven-game losing streak with a 5-to-0 shutout over a very docile murderers' row.

The slim right-hander held the clouting league-leaders hitless for six frames, limited them to five safe blows altogether, handed them their first shutout since May 12, struck out 11 men, and snapped Lou Gehrig's consecutive game hitting streak at 18.

He failed, however, to cut the Yankees' American league edge from five games, since the second-place Boston Red Sox also were defeated, but his win pulled the Tigers up from sixth to fifth place.

Five home runs featured the Browns-Boston game with St. Louis claiming three of them and defeating the Red Sox, 7 to 5.

Harlond Clift, Browns' third baseman, hit two into the left field seats and Jimmy Foxx put his 18th circuit clout of the season in the same place to establish himself more firmly as the league's leader in that department. Dusty Cooke and Sammy West chose the roof of the right-field pavilion to park their long drives.

Mel Harder pitched the Cleveland Indians into a third-place tie with the Senators today as Cleveland defeated Washington the second time in two days, 2 to 1.

Harder held the Senators to five hits, three of them by Ralph Kress, while the Indians took Joe Cascarella for eight. It was Harder's eighth win of the season.

Bob Johnson's ninth home run of the season was the deciding factor of a thrilling pitchers' duel between Harry Kelley and "Sugar" Cain and gave the Athletics a 2-to-1 victory over the White Sox today.

Towns Wins in 14.3; Owens Eclipses World Mark in 100 Meters

FEAT IS INVALID DUE TO 2.5 MILES WIND VELOCITY

Dusky Comet Beats Draper by 3 Feet; Georgian Wins Easily.

By Charles Dunkley.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—Sweeping over a field studded with prospective Olympic stars, athletes from the University of Southern California ran rampant in the national collegiate track and field championships at Stagg field today, in which four world's records were eclipsed in the two days of competition.

The Trojans, scoring in 14 of the 16 events, amassed a total of 104 1-3 points to annex their second successive championship. Ohio State, led by the sensational negro star, Jesse Owens, who won four events himself for 40 points, was second with 73 points. Indiana was third with 42 and Stanford fourth with 32. Thirty-three teams gathered points in the meet, which produced the most sensational performance since its inauguration 15 year sago. Ten thousand spectators witnessed the thrilling races and field events.

The winners of the first two places in each event, plus others whose performances warrant, will compete in the finals at New York next month when the team to represent Uncle Sam in the Olympic games next August will be chosen.

Bettering the world's mark in the 100-meter run, Owens was the individual star of the meet, giving him the unparalleled distinction of winning four events in two successive national collegiate meets against the greatest collegiate athletes of the nation. He opened up his afternoon's performance by winning the broad jump with a leap of 25 feet 10 7-8 inches, captured the 100-meter in 10.2 seconds, went to the victory stand for the third time after winning the 200-meter run in 21.3 and concluded his day's efforts with a victory in the 220-yard low hurdles.

RECORD QUESTIONABLE.

Whether Owens performance in the 100 meters will be applied for as a record is questionable. His time equals the time established by Ralph Metcalfe, of Marquette, made in 1932, which never obtained recognition. The accepted world and Olympic mark is 10.3 held jointly by Percy Williams, of Canada; Eddie Tolan, of Michigan, and Metcalfe.

A new world's record went up in the discus when Ken Carpenter, of Southern California, sailed the platter out into space for 173 feet, more than a foot better than the mark of 171 feet 11 3-4 inches set by Harald Andersen, of Sweden, in 1934. It was just 10 feet farther than the current national collegiate record held by Henri Laborde, of Stanford.

National collegiate records were established in the 1,500-meter run, the javelin and the pole vault.

Alton Terry, of Hardin-Simmons, Abilene, Texas, champion of the Texas and Drake relays, tossed the spear 226 feet 2 3-4 inches to break his own American mark of 222 feet 8.8 inches, established in the Drake relays this year. The N. C. A. A. record is 221 feet 3 1-8 inches, made by Charles Dongloff, of Pittsburgh, last year.

TWINS TIE.

The sky-sailing "twins" from Southern California, Earl Meadows and Bill Sefton, zoomed up in the air in a tie to clear the bar in the pole vault at a height of 14 feet 1 3-4 inches, to beat the N. C. A. A. record of 14 feet 1 1-8 inches, which they jointly held last year.

Archie San Romani, Kansas State Teachers' College, Emporia, Kan., romped to victory in the 1,500-meter run in 3:53, erasing the mark set by Glenn Cunningham, of Kansas, in 1932. The race produced the early surprise for it resulted in the defeat of Don Lash, sensational Indiana distance star, who a week ago ran the fastest two miles a human being has ever accomplished outdoors, 8:58.3. He finished a poor third, with San Romani beating Charles Fenske, of Wisconsin, by 25 yards.

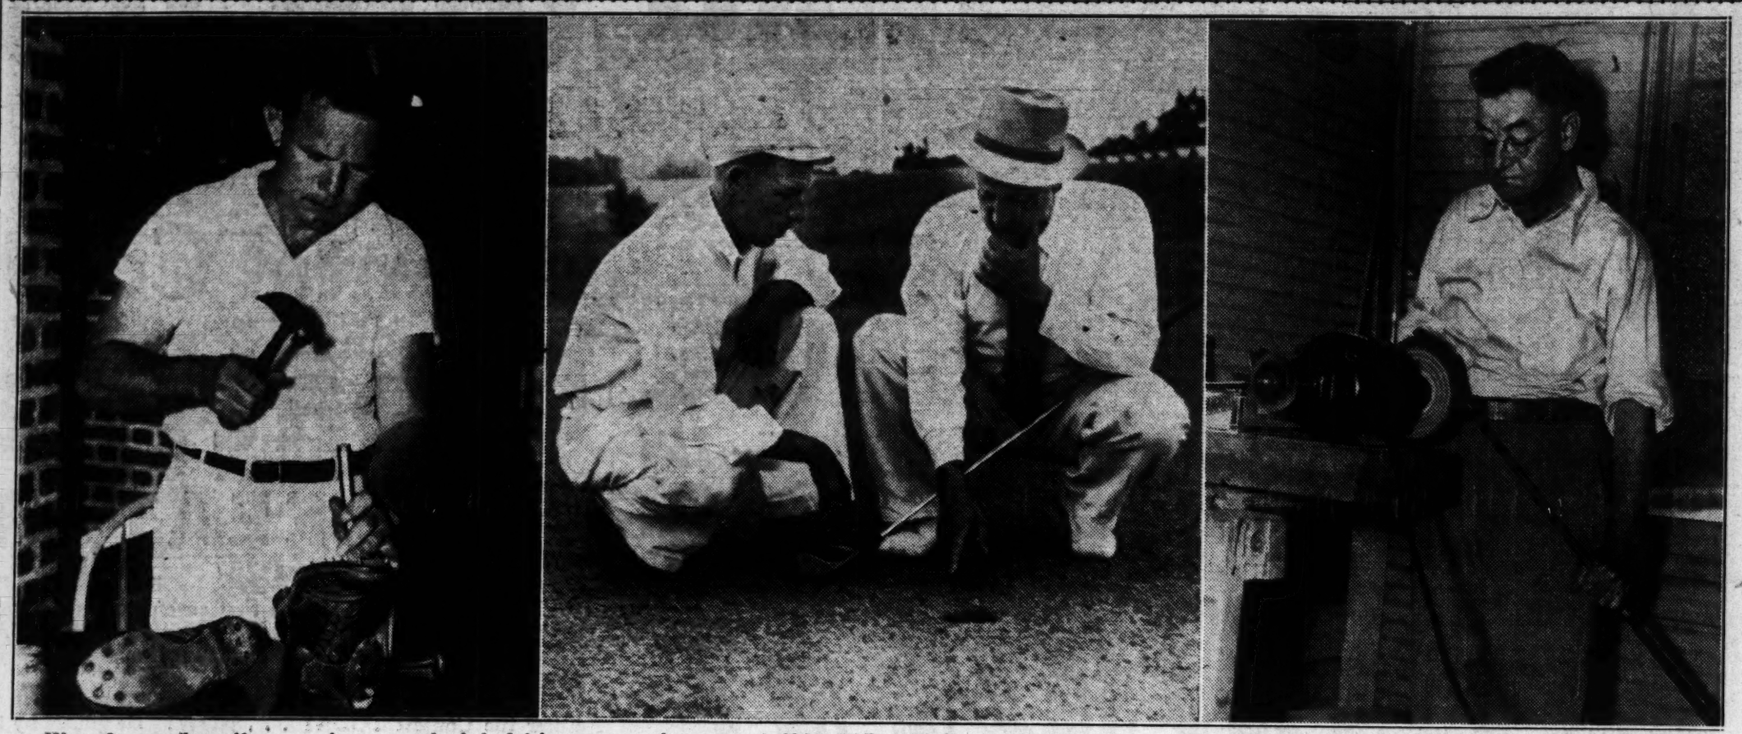

Lash, however, came back in his role as the iron man and ran away with the gruelling 5,000-meter run. He lapped the field and closed with a great burst of speed to win the event in 14 minutes 58.5 seconds. While Lash did not endanger records, the crowd gave him an ovation as he sprinted on the last lap, passing one straggler after another.

Forrest Towns, the amazing Georgian, skipped over the 110-meter high hurdles slower than he did in the trial yesterday, but he won without trouble, breaking the tape ahead of Caldemeyer, of Indiana, in 14.3. Archie Williams, California, the newest quarter-mile sensation, nabbed the 400-meter championship, but in no romp.

It was only in the last 10 yards that this negro lad, who yesterday cracked the world's record, managed to nose out Fitch, of Southern California, in 47 flat. Charles Beetham, of Ohio State, unmistakably proved his superiority among the half-milers, winning the 800 meters by 8 yards, going away in 1:53.

The Trojans, with their well-balanced team, established a record in running up the point total of 104 1-3, the biggest in the history of the meet. They picked up points in every event except the 400-meter hurdles and the 1,500-meter run.

With the Pros---Shoes Play a Part On Baked Fairways---Inspecting Grass Around Cup---Buffing An Iron

Worn-down spikes offer no resistance to the baked fairways of the city's golf courses. R. M. Hubert, pro at the John A. White course, is shown putting new spikes on a pair of shoes. There's many a slip, otherwise. Ray McLemore, greens keeper, and Chick Ridley, Piedmont pro, are shown in the center picture inspecting the grass around a cup. The dry weather has made it extremely difficult to keep greens in tip-top shape. At the right, G. H. A. Thomas, pro at Black Rock, is shown buffing an iron. The busy pros find many things to occupy their time besides teaching. Indoor work finds favor because of the intense heat. Staff photos by H. J. Slayton.

JUNIOR GOLFERS WILL OPEN PLAY AT ANSLEY PARK

Qualifying To Begin Monday; Luke Barnes Defends Crown.

By Roy White.

Atlanta's annual junior golf championship tournament will be played this week over the Ansley Park course, with a record entry expected to compete for the crown now worn by Luke Barnes, the youngest member of a family of well-known golfers.

Qualifying rounds over the 18-hole route will be played Monday morning, starting at 9 o'clock, with match play following each morning at the same time. The finals in all flights are scheduled to be played Friday morning, and only 18 holes will be played for the championship.

The tourney is being sponsored by the Atlanta Golf Association, and will be free to all youngsters under 16 years, five months and 29 days of age. Trophies and prizes will be given to the winner and runner-up in each flight and there will be as many flights as necessary to take care of every entry.

Tommy Wilson, the Ansley Park professional, will be in charge of the tournament for the association. Keith Conway, president, and Milton Dargan Jr., secretary, of the golf association, will assist Wilson in handling the tourney.

INCREASED INTEREST.

There has been a larger increase in play by Atlanta's youngsters than in any other city in the south and it is due to the many free classes by the local professionals that the juniors have shown so much interest in recent weeks.

And there is any one of a dozen players who is likely to crash through and win the 1936 title. Barnes may be rated a slight favorite due to his winnig last year and being a member of Tech High's undefeated city, state and southern prep golf champions.

Allen Yates, Charlie's young brother, will be a tough player to beat. He has had plenty of experience, particularly in stronger competition in the weekly dogfites on the No. 2 East Lake course, and is as steady as the day is long.

Weldon Branch, another of East Lake's younger players is another who has played in the weekly dogfites and has been through the mill of experience in keen competition.

ANSLEY THREAT.

Otis Garrard, James Reed, runner-up to Barnes last year in the finals at West End; Bobby Adair, C. Benton, Cotton Elcock, Dick Carroll, J. C. Burnett, Joe Sommers, Harry Moffett, H. Brown, Robert Lindsey, Jack Evans, Harold Crew, Joe Whittenton, Billy Hall and Ned Mellett are others who have been playing well and are certain to be heard from.

Billy Caye, who recently defeated W. O. Cheney in an Ansley Park tourney, will be Ansley's chief threat. Young Caye had a much higher medal score than Cheney, but being a great match player he took advantage of every opportunity and beat one of the club's best southpaws. And Caye will be plenty tough to get along with on the Ansley Park course this week.

There are others who did not practice at Ansley, but who will enter Monday morning and many of the late entries were out Saturday morning taking some final instructions from their own professional.

Vols Give Butzman His Initial Defeat

Barons Slug Way To Win Over Lookouts; Smokies Rally To Trim Chicks.

By the Associated Press.

The Nashville Volunteers went berserk in the fourth inning of yesterday's game and when things became a little more normal seven runs were marked up for the vicious Vols and Jonas Butzman, Pel hurler, was charged with his first defeat of the season, 9 to 3.

Joe Dyer and Poco Taitt were the most troublesome to the Pel hurlers, each garnering a double and two singles in five trips to the plate. Collectively Nashville got 12 hits off the three Pelican pitchers.

Roy Weatherly returned to the Pelican lineup in centerfield, having been out since May 11 with a broken arm, but his debut didn't help the locals much.

Birmingham's Barons found their batting eyes and snapped their five-game losing streak with a 12-3 victory over Chattanooga.

The Barons raked the offerings of 16 safe knocks, seven for extra bases, while George Darrow was holding the Lookouts to 10 well-spaced blows. Manager Riggs Stephenson connected for a homer in the first; Bud Clancy and Legrant Scott paced the Baron attack; Wright hit his second homer in two games in the third.

A three-run rally in the ninth inning gave the Knoxville Smokies a 7-to-6 victory over the Memphis Chicks in a loosely played game.

Knoxville used three pitchers and the Chicks two, but none were effective. Kirby Farrell, young Chick first baseman, led the hitting with two doubles and a single in four trips to the plate.

Munger Beats Haas For Southern Crown

Texan Takes Lead at Third Hole and Never Relinquishes It To Win Title, 3-2.

By Kenneth Gregory.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 20.—(AP)—In a striking display of competitive spirit, Jack Munger, of Dallas, Texas, 22-year-old Southern Methodist University student, won the southern amateur golf championship today.

To the acclaim of 1,000 perspiring spectators, the stockily built Texan led throughout the 36-hole finals match to defeat young Freddie Haas Jr., of New Orleans, champion two years ago, by a margin of 3 and 2.

Fighting an uphill battle, the 20-year-old Louisiana State University golf captain rallied gamely on two occasions to trim the Texan's lead to one hole. That was the margin after 18 holes, during which Munger at one time held a four-up command. The smiling, slender Louisianan dropped three holes behind on the outgoing nine of the afternoon round, but again rallied to reach the 27th green one down.

Down the final stretch Munger was too deadly. He collected two birdies and won the 33rd hole easily with a par when Haas knocked shots into the rough and a bunker, and the former champion was down 3. They halved the 34th and there the struggle ended.

"Jack, you're one of the finest golfers I ever played with," said young Freddie as he rushed over to congratulate the new champion.

The sun-tanned Munger, smiling for the first time since the gruelling match started, shook Freddie's hand lustily and remarked:

"It was a tough battle. I never saw anyone fight as gamely as you did. It was tough for you to lose, but one of us had to take it on the chin."

THE THIRD TIME.

Munger was playing in the southern tournament for the first time. He was the underdog in his match against Haas, who jumped into the favored role after establishing a new record of 139, one under par for the 36-hole qualifying rounds.

The bespectacled Texan was three over par for the 34 holes, while Haas, previously two strokes ahead of regulation figures for earlier rounds, was six over.

Executing several nice recoveries when his drives or approaches missed the target, Munger threatened to make a runaway of the contest from the start. He amassed a four-up lead through the 14th hole, but Haas pulled one of his spectacular rallies to win three of the next four holes with par golf.

The Louisianan, although having an edge over Munger in getting off the tees, was unable to control his short game. His putting appeared well-directed but they wouldn't drop. On the other hand, Munger fired accurate approaches and was deadly on the greens.

Haas was a keen favorite with the unruly gallery. Time after time, as Munger played slowly in the sweltering heat, boos echoed from the spectators. At times, some of the followers cheered when the Texan smacked a ball into the rough or a bunker.

SPECTATOR YELLS.

On one occasion, a galleryite sent up a whoop as Munger was blasting out of a sandtrap. The shot was short and cost him the hole. Haas hurriedly offered to let the Texan replay the shot, but Munger declined.

The attitude of the gallery apparently did not shake the Texan, however, as he went about winning the championship in his first shot at the southland's aces. He was cool and collected throughout, but took his time around the greens and was rewarded by a fine putting exhibition, among them five that dropped from 10 to 15 feet.

From Memphis, the champion and the runner-up depart in opposite directions to seek further laurels on the links.

Munger plans to go to Oklahoma City for the trans-Mississippi tournament, while Haas and three of his Louisiana State classmates departed by automobile shortly after the finals to enter the national intercollegiate tournament at Chicago.

Results of final matches at 18 holes in the lower flights follow:

SECOND FLIGHT.

Frank Stiedle, of Helena, Ark., defeated Junie Birbaum, of Memphis, 4 and 3.

THIRD FLIGHT.

Don Zimmerman, of Bogalusa, La., defeated Jennings Gordon, of Rome, Ga., 1 up, 19 holes.

FOURTH FLIGHT.

Wright Adams, of Baton Rouge, La., defeated E. E. Joyner, of Memphis, 4 and 2.

FIFTH FLIGHT.

James Watts, of Lynchburg, Va., defeated J. W. Busick Jr., of Jonesboro, Ark., 2 and 1.

SIXTH FLIGHT.

Dr. W. P. Peak, of Nashville, Tenn., defeated Billy Bethea, of Memphis, 6 and 5.

McCullough Brothers Faces Warren Today

McCullough Brothers faces the Warren Company team on the latter's diamond in the feature game of the last series of the first half of the City league race. Warren has already clinched the first-half championship. But this will be the first meeting of these clubs, the McCullough team replacing Norcross in the league.

East Point and Miller Service clash at Grant park in what should be a hard-fought battle. Both clubs have added new stars for the last-half race and they are expected to be in the lineup in this game. A. & A. Cleaners meet Atlanta Woolen Mills in the other game of the series.

THE SCHEDULE.

East Point vs. Miller Service at Grant park. Umpire, Sikes.
McCullough Brothers vs. Warren Company at Warren field. Umpire, Anchors.
Atlanta Woolen Mills vs. A. & A. Cleaners at Piedmont park. Umpire, Street.

BREAK O' DAY

as a perfect fighting machine and a great bet to become the next champion of the world.

Such a come-back rocks boxing history and merely emphasizes the old adage that in sports anything can happen. A weak hitter is feared when he's up at the plate swinging. He might connect.

The same holds true in other branches of sport. Swinging sparring partners have floored champions and the incident has been carefully hushed.

Joe Louis was knocked down many times as an amateur. He perfected a defense that was impregnable up to the Schmeling fight. Schmeling went into the fight with a butcher right hand and kept swinging. He finally connected. And then it was that the fighting machine became a human begin again and fear, perhaps for the first time, was born and confidence shaken. Schmeling's knockout victory was surprising. For, even as champion, he never was regarded as a great fighter. He was recognized as having a great heart and unlimited courage.

BRADDOCK IS NEXT.

Champion Jim Braddock, sitting at the ring side with G-Man Edgar Hoover, may enlist the services of the noted criminal crusher when the time comes for Braddock to meet Schmeling.

Schmeling, staging one of the greatest come-backs in the history of boxing, seeks to regain the championship which he won on a foul from Jack Sharkey and later lost by decision to Sharkey, when Joe Jacobs emitted his famous cry, "We wuz robbed!" The German seems determined to achieve what no other fighter before him has been able to achieve.

And so Braddock may need protection. Chances are, however, the Irish lad who rose from rags to riches overnight will successfully defend his title. Baer kayoed Schmeling, Braddock decisioned Baer. Louis kayoed Baer and Schmeling kayoed Louis. Truly, anything can happen.

THE RULES

1.—The "GREAT NAMES" contest is open to every reader of the Atlanta Constitution, being a bona fide resident of either the state of Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama or Florida, with the exception of employees of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION and members of their families and with the further exception of any person who has won $1,500 or more in any previous newspaper contest.

NOTE—You do not need to be a regular subscriber. You may purchase The Atlanta Constitution each day at your newsstand.

2.—Beginning Sunday, June 14, 1936, and continuing each day for 13 weeks, The Atlanta Constitution will publish a cartoon. Each cartoon will in some way suggest or represent a name. The name may be that of a person, city, state, nation, book, song or motion picture.

3.—The Atlanta Constitution will award a first prize of $4,000 as part of $6,000 in prizes to the person or persons submitting the best or most appropriate name to each of the 84 cartoons and in all other ways conforming to these Official Rules. The person or persons submitting the best or most appropriate names to all 84 cartoons and otherwise complying with these Official Rules shall be eligible for First Prize. The person or persons submitting the next nearest correct solution to the 84 cartoons and otherwise complying with all these Official Rules shall be eligible for additional prizes in the order of the correctness of their answers.

4.—Neatness will not count. Do not decorate your answers. Just name the cartoons in accordance with the rules.

5.—In case of ties, as many prizes will be reserved as there are persons tied before any prizes are awarded for a less correct solution; that is, if two or more persons tie in submitting the correct or nearest correct names to the 84 cartoons, the first two or more prizes will be reserved for them and will be awarded in the order of the correctness of such contestants (without cost) to a second and if necessary, a third or fourth series of cartoons. In the event of final ties, a prize identical with that tied for will be awarded to each tying contestant.

6.—To expedite filing, answers or solutions in this contest should be submitted as follows: At the end of each week, during which a series of seven cartoons will have been printed in The Atlanta Constitution, the contestant is requested to mail or bring the answers to the seven cartoons to the Great Names Editor, care of The Atlanta Constitution, in a unit. Solutions to this contest are to be submitted in a series, seven at a time. The answers to the cartoons printed during any week may be submitted during the following week.

7.—In order to qualify for a prize, the contestant is required to accompany each of the 12 series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin in payment for a special print of the week's featured cartoon, purchase of which is a condition for entering the contest. The Special Prints, suitable for framing, will be mailed to the contestant in one set, at the close of the contest.

8.—Any person upon entering the contest, and by the submission of answers, agrees to accept as final the decision of The Atlanta Constitution and the contest editor, on all matters affecting the conduct of the contest, the making of the awards, and procedure and policy, with regard to the acceptance of submissions during the contest.

9.—Answer forms to which no names are signed will not be considered nor will any claims to the ownership to such answers be recognized. The Atlanta Constitution will not be responsible for answers or communications unduly delayed or lost in transit either from the contestant to The Atlanta Constitution or from The Atlanta Constitution to the contestant.

10.—A contestant is permitted to submit as many sets of 84 solutions as he or she chooses, provided same are properly qualified, and each will be judged as a unit, but no person will be awarded more than one prize. When submitting additional sets of answers, all series must be identified as Set A, B, C, etc.

As you proceed from cartoon to cartoon, studying the puzzle, detecting clues and finally arriving at what you feel is the right name, be sure you go over carefully every single name in the list of suggested names below each cartoon before writing the name you select in the Answer Form on the right-hand corner of this page.

When you have named and submitted your answers to the first seven cartoons, you are up to date in the game. All you need do in order to continue is to get The Atlanta Constitution each day to obtain each of the remaining cartoons.

You have until midnight Saturday, June 27th, to send in your answers to the first seven cartoons. Be sure to enclose ten cents in coin with these seven answers. It is suggested that you fill in the seven answers on the Answer Form and get them in the mail without delay. This clears the way for the fun of continuing with the new cartoons as they appear each day in The Atlanta Constitution. Address your answers to the "GREAT NAMES EDITOR, The Atlanta Constitution."

Joe Dwyer First Player in Southern To Obtain 100 Base Hits

VOL STAR HOLDS TO BATTING LEAD WITH .390 MARK

Has 106 Safeties; Taitt Leader in Runs Batted In.

Joe Dwyer, Nashville outfielder, who last year was a member of the New York-Penn league all-star team, became the first and only Southern league player to obtain 100 or more hits, by rapping out three hits on June 14, and retained the Southern league batting lead thereby. Dwyer has 106 hits to his credit for a mark of .390.

Conker Triplett, Nashville, .376; Fred Sington, Chattanooga, .368; Jim Wasdell, Nashville, .364, and Willie Duke, .360, follow close behind Dwyer.

Poco Taitt, Nashville, increased his runs batted in to 60 to hold that lead, while Paul Richards, Atlanta catcher, and Earl Webb, Knoxville, are tied for the home run lead with 9 each.

Leo Nonnenkamp, Little Rock, continues to set the base-stealing pace with 13 thefts.

Luther Bud Thomas, Atlanta, and Byron Speece, Nashville, share the pitching lead with 11 victories and one defeat each. Bill Schmidt, Atlanta, was beaten Thursday by New Orleans and dropped to second place with 11 wins and two losses. Ray Davis, Nashville, and Kola Sharpe, Little Rock, are other pitchers who have won 11 victories.

Here's How New Skeet Layout Is Arranged

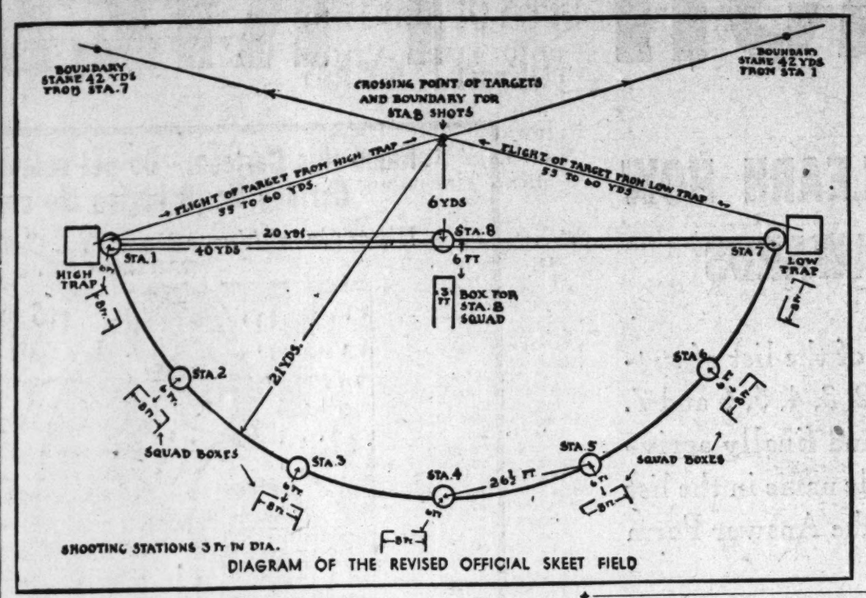

DIAGRAM OF THE REVISED OFFICIAL SKEET FIELD

New Skeet Layouts Open This Week-End

Changes by National Association Make Shooting More Difficult, More Like Hunting.

By Clint Davis.

Atlanta shooters will be offered an opportunity of trying the newly revised system of skeet shooting over the week-end. Several changes have been made by the National Skeet Shooting Association in the original field lay-out, traps have been shifted in the trap houses so that the targets will be thrown at an angle instead of the old straight-away system.

In the past a target from the No. 1 trap house would fly directly across the field and pass over the opposite point at No. 7. The No. 7 trap was vice versa, both targets crossing the center station, which is No. 8. The revision calls for the targets to cross a point 6 yards from No. 8 station, directly away from the semicircle.

This revision is expected to create more interest in the sport by giving additional natural field shots as well as eliminating quite a number of dangers.

In standing at position 1, a shooter instead of firing directly across the field toward station 7 will fire at the target going at a left hand angle. On firing at the target from the opposite trap house, the well-known easy floating incomer will become a much harder target to hit.

The No. 1 and No. 7 stations remain as they were on the old lay-out, while the remaining stations are drawn in on a new semi-circle which swings from the point 6 yards beyond station 8.

The new semi-circle is drawn at 21 yards instead of the original 20 yards, this adds one yard distance to each shot. Stations 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 are somewhat harder due to the increase in distance to the target and the change ein the angle. No. 8 position, which is the target flying directly overhead, is changed more than any other station.

Shooting the No. 1 target at station 8, you receive a fast overhead target flying to your right. On shooting No. 7, you shoot a lower target which angles to your left, both of these shots come nearer matching field conditions than previously.

Advantages which are credited to the newly revised field are the possibility of placing more skeet fields on a smaller area of ground, which makes it a much better tournament game, elimination of shattered targets falling on shooters, lessening the possibility of spectators being shot accidentally and also the decrease in the number of ricocheting pellets.

Both of Atlanta's skeet clubs have completed the new revision and shooters were offered a special event at the Capitol Gun Club yesterday afternoon.

All shooters are invited to the West End Gun Club today.

BUDGE SHARES IN THREE TITLES

LONDON, Eng., June 20.—(UP) Donald Budge, of California, America's top-ranking Davis cup player and its chief hope in the all-England championships at Wimbledon next week, shared in three titles today when the finals of the Queens Club tennis tournament were decided.

The coast red-head won the men's championship with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over David Jones, of New York and Cambridge, and then teamed with Gene Mako, fellow Californian, to defeat the veteran American cup pair, Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn, 6-3, 6-4, in the doubles wind-up.

Following a brief rest the tireless youngster returned to the courts with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, of Boston, and conquered Charley Hare, of England, and Jadwiga Jerzejowska, of Poland, 3-6, 6-2, 6-0, in the mixed doubles final.

The women's championship went to Miss Jerzejowska, who conquered Suzan Noel, English squash star, 6-2, 6-4. America shared in a fourth title when the Franco-American team of Sylvia Henrotin and Mrs. Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., turned back the Belgians, Nellie Adamson and Madame Josane Demeulmeester, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Jones gave Budge a bit of trouble in the opening set with what is generally regarded as the most punishing service in tennis. The big Rhodes scholar hit the ball so hard on service that the Californian simply couldn't get it back in play. Games followed service until the red-head, aided by Jones' double-fault, broke through to take the tenth game and set.

Cochrane Leaves For 2 Weeks' Rest

DETROIT, June 20.—(UP) Manager Mickey Cochrane, of the Detroit Tigers, world champion baseball team, left here tonight by plane for Billings, Mont., for a convalescent rest in northern Wyoming.

He will leave Billings by automobile on a 150-mile drive to a "dude" ranch near Valley, Wyo., owned by Max Wildejn, a friend of the ball player. Cochrane plans to stay there at least two weeks. He is convalescing from a collapse 11 days ago in Boston.

Local Boxers, Florala Vie June 24

FLORALA, Ala., June 20.—Sport fans of Alabama Florida and the near-by states are promised one of the biggest boxing exhibitions perhaps ever seen on any single occasion when the selected team of the Pensacola Y. M. C. A. champions meet seasoned fighters and champions from Atlanta, Fort Benning, Memphis, Mobile and elsewhere in the specially-constructed open air ring at the 65th annual Masonic Day celebration in Florala, Ala., Wednesday, June 24, next, scheduled for 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Pensacola aggregation of boxing champions is composed of the following selection: John McGrath, 100 pounds, S. E. A. A. U. champion; Buddy Fernandez, 111 pounds, S. E. A. A. U. flyweight champion; Frankie Barberi, S E. A. A. U. bantamweight champion; Louis Edwards, 137 pounds, city lightweight champion; Herbert Lockwood, 135 pounds, runner-up S. E. A. A. U. 1935-36; Sam Whitwell, 147 pounds, city welterweight champion, captain of the University of Florida boxing team; Joe Fields, 160 pounds, southern golden glove and city light heavyweight champion; Ray Stearns, 160 pounds, city and southern golden glove champion, 1935; Bob Breslin, 147 pounds, University of Florida, 1935-36 and S. E. A. A. U. welterweight champion.

The Pensacola Y. M. C. A. champs will be matched with champions and ring favorites from other sections, among whom are: Sonny Cannon, 105 pounds, Mobile, Ala., rated as the best in and around Mobile; Francis Scheurmann, 135 pounds, best of Mobile lightweights; Bob Dillard, 121 pounds, Atlanta, Ga., semi-finalist S. E. A. A. U. Georgia golden gloves champion; Jimmy Hearn, 160 pounds, Atlanta, Ga., S. E. A. A. U. semi-finalist, two years; Glenn Lawson, 147 pounds, Atlanta, Ga., golden glove champion and runner-up S. E. A. A. U., Fort Bennin and Memphis, 1935-36.

This boxing exhibition was arranged as a free attraction by the sports committee, of which Curtis Cannon is chairman, for the 65th annual Masonic Day celebration at Florida—no tickets or admission charges.

Late Returns Give Dizzy Poll Lead

BOSTON, June 20.—(AP)—A carload of votes from the midwest poured in today to give the colorful Jerome (Dizzy) Dean the lead in the fans' choice for National league pitchers in the all-star game here July 7.

Today was the last day for balloting and the results will be made public June 27.

Dean, talkative twirler for the St. Louis Cards, was running a poor third to the stalwart Carl Hubbell, of the New York Giants, and Van Mungo, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, until league officials tallied latest returns.

Still in fourth place was Lon Warneke, rounding out the quartet that will probably be available to Manager Charley Grimm when the teams take the field.

Meanwhile, the contest for second base position on the National team remained in doubt. League officials chalked up what they believe would be enough votes to land Bill Herman, young infielder for the Chicago Cubs, second place position. Votes rolled in, however, for Stuart Martin, of the Cards, presenting the likelihood that he too would be sure of an infield post on the all-star team.

Pinky Whitney held the edge for the third sack but new votes gave Stanley Hack, of the Cubs, an outside chance.

In the American league, Joe Di Maggio continued to pile up a lead over rival outfielders.

With Lefty Grove, of the Boston Red Sox, and Lefty Gomez and his teammate, Monty Pearson, of the New York Yankees, already sure of pitching positions on the American team, Schoolboy Rowe, of the Detroit Tigers, and Ted Lyons, of the Chicago White Sox, continued to battle for the fourth position.

NEW TYPE BOGEY AT DRUID HILLS

A new type of blind bogey was inaugurated at Druid Hills Saturday afternoon when the limits were set from 75 to 120 and the players were given the privilege of selecting their own handicaps.

And three players, J. C. Hodges, Dr. L. M. White and Claude McGinnis finished in a tie for first prize, one stroke away from the winning score. Harry Stephens, the club professional, drew 117 out of the golf bag, and no one was on the winning score.

A play-off for top prize will be held this week, assuring someone of a first prize.

Clark, Lundeen Win at East Lake.

Dr. J. J. Clark and J. W. Lundeen with net 72's won first prize Saturday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the two East Lake courses. It was the first time in several weeks that such a small number of players have been on the winning score.

Second place went to H. P. Bond, R. I. Reed and Fred Stevens, one stroke away from the winners.

Third place was won by B. M. Gatling.

Others near the winners were O. O. Ray, Lee Godfrey, V. Wilhite, L. F. Meng, H. T. Dobbs, C. C. Gray, F. H. Whitting, J. C. Malone, R. F. Hixon, H. H. Perry, R. E. Richards, W. W. Cole, R. E. Lyons, C. Y. Smith, S. E. Gill, Travis Johnson, Jackson Robertson, Keith Conway, F. E. Stevens, C. R. Gill, C. B Powers, W. P. Branch, Robert Ingram and J. R. McGehee.

George Fogg won the booby prize of one golf ball.

East Lake Golfers Play Summer Greens.

East Lake golfers went on the summer greens for the first time in the blind bogey Saturday afternoon. The greens have been open for several days, but Saturday was the first day on the Bermuda greens.

And today's dogfite on the No. 2 course will be played on the summer greens.

Dahlbender Wins Ansley Junior Title.

Gene Dahlbender Jr. was crowned champion of Ansley Park's junior golfers Saturday morning when he defeated Billy Caye Jr., 3-2, in the finals of the annual junior club tournament. The tourney has been in progress for two weeks, with Tommy Wilson, the club professional, in charge.

Young Dahlbender played one of his best rounds to beat Caye, and will be another of Ansley Park's main threats this week in the city junior championship tournament.

Five Divide Ansley Bogey.

A. O. Wilhoit, H. S. Rawlings, T. M. Smith, Billy Caye and J. M. French divided first prize Saturday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the Ansley Park course.

The winning score was 74.

Second place went to J. H. Johnston, one stroke away from the winners, with Guy Whitehead winning third place.

E. L. Robinson won the booby prize.

Ten Share Capital Prize.

Some Capital City golfer missed a golden opportunity Saturday to cash in a nice first prize in the blind bogey with a 74 score, but as no one was on the number, those with 73s and 75s divided top prize.

And was the top prize well taken cars of, for 10 players were one one side or other of the winning score.

LES TUTAJ TAKES SALLY BAT LEAD

Tutaj, Columbus' third-baseman, raised his average 18 points and took over the batting leadership of the Sally league with a rather low mark of .348.

Catcher Francis Healey dropped 5 points and remained in second place with .347. Sorenson, of Macon, continued third with .345. Prout, of Macon, with .344, and Early of Jacksonville, with the same mark are pressing the leaders very closely.

Garriott, of Columbus, continues to lead in stolen bases with 20, while Slaughter, of Columbus, and Tutaj lead in runs batted in with 51.

Lefty Judd, of Columbus, and Henry Bazner, of Jacksonville, lead the pitchers with 9 wins and 2 losses. Patchin, of Augusta, and Goat Walker, of Jacksonville, have each won 8 while dropping 2.

Art Evans, Macon southpaw, limited Jacksonville to 2 hits on June 14 and shut them out 2-0. He came back on June 18 to shut out Columbia 3-0, allowing only 5 hits.

S. MARTIN SLUMPS, BUT HOLDS LEAD IN SENIOR LOOP

Card Rookie Has .373 Mark—Diz Dean Tops Pitchers.

Freshman Stuart Martin, of the Cardinals, is still showing the veteran National leaguers how to hit and is again the leading batter with an average of .373.

The young second baseman's figures isn't what it was last week, but there's plenty of space between him and the second man, who happens to be idle Johnny Moore, of the Phillies, who has .360 for three weeks.

The nearest active man to rookie Martin is Gus Suhr, of the Pittsburgh Pirates, with .357, and incidentally, Suhr made his first error of the season at first base on June 16.

Following Suhr are Baxter Jordon, Bees, .356; Medwick, Cards, .355; Camilli, Phils, .352, and Demaree, Cubs, .351.

Demaree has batted safely in 15 straight games, including June 17.

Dizzy Dean is considerably ahead in games won and lost—12 and 2, with Tex Carleton, of the Cubs, running him second, 7 and 2.

Lee Stine, of the Reds, held Brooklyn to four hits on June 14 to win by 5-1 and on June 18 Bob Smith, of the Bees, stung the Cardinals, 4-0, with a two-hit performance.

Including games of Thursday, June 18.

Sarazen, Armour, Revolta U. S. Hopes in British Open Tourney

12 AMERICANS HOPE TO ATTAIN HOYLAKE GLORY

Qualifying Rounds Begin June 22; England Favored To Retain Cup.

By Bernard Darwin.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—The qualifying rounds of the British open golf championship will be played at Hoylake and the neighboring Cheshire course, Wallasey, June 22 and 23, and on the three following days the wheat having been duly sifted from the chaff, the championship proper will be played at Hoylake.

Something of particular interest attaches to this championship because the authorities of the Royal Liverpool Golf Club have made an effort—which is certainly resolute and may or may not turn out to be wise—to cope with the ever-further flying ball and the vast modern hitting. They hope that they have restored Hoylake to be the same test of golf as it was, let us say, a dozen years ago. They have therefore stretched the course to something over 7,000 yards and in order to do so have put some tees back to what seem, to the ordinary mortal, unconscionable places.

The carries have all been tested and found to be easily within the compass of modern professional driving and I am assured that in no case is a carry of over 200 yards demanded. Being so answered, I am bound to believe it and yet I am also bound to say that some of them looked a very long 200 yards.

Hoylake is a great course, with an especially tremendous finish, and if the players can do their 69s around it, good luck to them! No one will grudge them their figures. No scores, however brilliant, can "make a fool" of Hoylake.

In point of numbers, the American challengers amount to 12; but, with all respect to the others, the formidable ones are only three—Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Johnny Revolta. The first two are, of course, our old friends and have both won our championship. Revolta is new and the more interesting on that account. We are prepared for a desperate exhibition of the art of boiling down 2 strokes into 1 by means of a pitch and a putt.

It is not often that one of our invaders does his best at a first invasion—both Walter Hagen and Sarazen failed as newcomers—and therefore I am inclined to expect most of Sarazen, whose great power ought to have full scope over these Hoylake carries. I am always prepared to be afraid of Sarazen and to be glad if he wins.

Two American amateurs who played at St. Andrews, Dick Chapman and T. Dennis Boardman, will be trying their luck at Hoylake. There also will be Bobbie Lock, the open and amateur champion of South Africa, and Jim Ferrier, from Australia, who made such a great fight in the final with Hector Thomson. Locke was snuffed out in the first round at St. Andrews, but he is a very fine golfer and is likely to be first amateur on this occasion. Thomson is good enough to beat him, but I doubt whether any other amateur in the field is.

Sarazen Cards Sub-Par 71.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—(AP) Hoylake stewed under the blazing sun today as more than 250 contenders for Alf Perry's British open golf championship completed practice for the 36-hole qualifying round Monday and Tuesday.

Both the Hoylake and Wallasey courses, over which the qualifying round will be played, will be closed tomorrow and those in the starting field who want a final tune-up Sunday will have to find somewhere else for it.

"If this weather holds out," said one perspiring expert, "watch out for Gene Sarazen."

Sarazen heads an American delegation of ten in the championship, the others being Joe Ezar, Texas trick-shot artist; Ted Turner, of Pine Valley, N. J.; Fred Ball, of Tannersville, N. Y.; Errie Ball, of Mobile, Ala.; Hugh Shipping, of New York; Willie Goggin, of San Francisco; Robert Sweeny Jr., former New Yorker living in London; T. Dennis Boardman, of South Hamilton, Mass., and James McCoy.

Both courses were hard-baked and lightning-fast, particularly Hoylake, whose greens are as slick as those at Sandwich in 1932 when Sarazen captured the title.

Gene beamed his approval of the whole set-up after a sub-par 35-36—71 this morning on the Hoylake layout where the 72-hole championship proper will be played Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Sarazen's score was the best reported during the day but the leading English and Scottish contenders were engaged in their annual team match and thus found no time for practice rounds for the championship.

ROMANOFF TOPS KEY ARENA CARD

George Romanoff, the likable ape man wrestler, who has appeared here on numerous wrestling cards, will make his appearance once again Monday night to meet Count Von Hoffman, the rugged German, at the Key arena, in a return match.

The ape man states he is coming here for revenge, and intends to give the German the worst beating he ever had. Romanoff insists the flypaper the Count put in his whiskers and on his face the last time they fought will be remembered, as it took him one week to rid himself of it. This match has been agreed upon as a winner-take-all, no time limit affair.

The rugged German wrestler has not lost a match since coming here, and states he does not intend losing this.

Tarzan Jordan, the light-heavyweight champion of the south, the belt being given him last week when he defeated Jack Ross, former title holder, will meet George Wagner, Texas flash, in a match slated to be the most scientific fought here in a long while. The latter boy challenged the Atlanta grappler after he won the southern title.

John Dameron, a local favorite, will meet Billy Raburn, Florida star, in the opening 45-minute match.

Comely Young American Diving Star Takes Off

America's swimming stars heightened Uncle Sam's Olympic swimming prospects when they bettered one world and two American long course marks in the National A. A. U. swimming championships in Des Moines Saturday. In the above photo, Miss Marian Mansfield, of the Lake Shore Athletic Club, is shown just after leaving the diving board. Miss Mansfield captured a special three-meter spring board event yesterday. Associated Press photo.

U. S. SWIM ACES SMASH MARKS

One World and Two American Records Go Overboard.

DES MOINES, Iowa, June 20.—(UP)—One world mark and two American records dived overboard today in the national A. A. U. swimming meet at Birdland pool here.

It was the second day's assault on A. A. U. swimming records by the nation's top tank stars anxious to turn in impressive time in a bid for recognition before the national Olympic tryouts at Providence, R. I., July 10.

Adolph Kiefer, Lake Shore Athletic Club star, inaugurated the record-breaking spree by setting a new world mark of 1:06.5 in the 100-meter backstroke. Yesterday Kiefer lowered the world's long course record in the 100 meters, swimming lead-off man on the Lake Shore Club's medley relay team. His time was 1:06.9.

Taylor Drysdale, of the Detroit A. C., was second and Bill Beebe, of Chicago's Shawnee Country Club, came in third.

In the 220-yard breaststroke, Johnny Higgins, of the Olneyville Boys' Club, Providence, R. I., clinched the A. A. U. title for the second consecutive year in 2:43.3 to break the existing American long course record. The old mark of 2:44 was held by L. Spence.

Ralph Flannagan, of the Greater Miami A. C., finished seven yards ahead of the west coast star, Jack Medica, to win the 440-yard free style in 4:48.6, bettering Medica's American long course record of 4:50.9 in 1934. Ralph Gilman, Ohio State freshman, was third.

Marian Mansfield, blonde Northwestern University junior, won her second women's three meter diving title by a comfortable margin. She was crowned national women's indoor one-meter board champion this spring. Marjorie Gestring, a 14-year-old Los Angeles miss, indoor title holder, was second.

Yale University's 880-yard quartet had little trouble in annexing the A. A. U. title in the race and dethroning the Detroit A. C. team. Yale's time of 9:22.5 was 1.1 seconds short of the Detroit club's mark.

Tomorrow the A. A. U. water carnival ends with competition in the 880-yard free style, the 100-meter free style, platform diving and the 300-meter individual medley relay.

The summaries: 100-meter backstroke—Won by Kiefer, Lake Shore A. C., Chicago; second, Drysdale, Detroit A. C., and third, Beebe, Shawnee Country Club, Chicago. Time 1:06.5 (new world's record. Old record 1:06.9).

220-yard breaststroke—Won by Higgins, Olneyville Boys' Club, Providence, R. I.; second, Kaye, Detroit A. C., and third, Degman, Wesleyan University, Middleton, Conn. Time, 2:43.3 (New American long course record. Old record, 2:44).

44-yard free style—Won by Ralph Flanagan, Greater Miami A. C., Miami Fla.; second, Jack Medica, Seattle A. C., and third, Ralph Gilman, unattached, Columbus, Ohio. Time, 4:48.6 (New American long course record. Old mark 4:50.9).

Women's three-meter spring board—Won by Mansfield, Lake Shore A. C., Chicago; second, Gestring, unattached, Los Angeles.

Kennolia Doubles Begins on Monday

The annual men's doubles tournament at the Kennolia Tennis Club begins Monday at 6 p. m., with D. J. McDaniel and Gene Allen meeting Champ Reese and Malcolm Manly in what promises to be the day's feature game.

This tournament bears the distinction of being the first tournament held in the city with doubles matches exclusive, which will tend to enliven competition as well as speeding up the playing.

Consequently a great deal of interest has been aroused.

Other matches Monday are as follows:

6 P. M.—Harry Anderson, Jack Teagle vs. Wink Mason, G. McConnell.

6 P. M.—Raymond Smith, M. Hirshberg vs. Jim Brandes, F. Fossenden.

7 P. M.—Glenn Dudley, G. Stacy vs. Jack Bledsoe, John Moore.

7 P. M.—B. C. Elrod, Red Griffith vs. A. Latimer, Z. A. Rice.

7 P. M.—Jack Elrod, L. Mundy vs. John Kenny, A. S. Florence.

Crawford To Rejoin Little Rock Today

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 20.—(AP)—Traveler Manager Doc Prothro announced today that Jim Crawford, outfielder obtained from Chattanooga during last season and realesed this spring, would rejoin the Little Rock club tomorrow.

Crawford, who has been playing semi-pro ball at Rockmart, Ga., will be used in center field until Leo Nonnenkamp recovers from an arm injury. Sammy Liberto will be withdrawn from the outfield and placed at third while Bill Andrus is recovering from a spike injury.

Provision Topples Dixisteel Team, 12-4

Gulf Defeats Standard, 4-0; Bereans Win; Brumbelow Is Big Star.

White Provision gave Dixisteel its first defeat of the season Saturday afternoon at Glenn field by 12 to 4 as the second half opened in the Atlanta Commercial Amateur baseball league. The Provision nine played heads-up ball, with Virlyn Moore pacing the hitters, 4 for 5. Harry Cooper and Red Cole were second best, with 3 for 5 each. Pope, Cooper and Carpenter starred in the field for White. A 7-run rally by White in the third drove Stapp from the mound. Pea Green held the Provision men under control after he relieved Stapp in the seventh, but it happened too late to win the game.

with no advance but Liberto singled, scoring Poindexter and Griffiths. Liberto stole and went to third when Galvin pegged into center, but Hill threw out Williams.

Hooks singled sharply to center to open the fourth but Poindexter made Harris, Lipscomb and Browne pop out.

Deal singled to start for the Travelers but Trent hit into a double play, Chatham on the front end of the twin killing.

JOE MALAY BUNTS.

Malay crossed up the Cracker infield by bunting down the third base line for a single. Browne backed up to spear Dickey's liner to right.

The fast ball of Poindexter continued to keep the Georgians guessing in the fifth. Galvin walked, but Chatham whiffed, Lindsey dribbled out and Mailho was his sixth victim via the strikeout route.

Little Rock made it 4 to 0 with another duo in the fifth. Poindexter tripled. Lindsey tightened to make Griffiths ground out and Nonnenkamp fanned with no advance. But Liberto doubled, scoring Poindexter. Sammy came home when Lipscomb let Williams' grounder go through him for a two-base error. Lindsey tossed out Deal to end the inning.

Race Owner Watches Former Horse Win

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP)—E. F. Seagram looked on wistfully today as Miss Dolphin, a filly he lost for $4,000 in a claiming race a few weeks ago, raced five and one-half furlongs in 1:05 to equal the Detroit track record and win the $5,000 added Moslem temple stakes.

The victory was worth $4,490 to Mrs. Creech, who now owns Miss Dolphin. Bennet Creech claimed the horse for her when Frank Gilpin, trainer for Seagram, decided after Miss Dolphin finished second in the St. Clair stakes that she was ready to break down. Miss Dolphin, which holds the five-furlong record here, paid $6 to win.

WESTERN LEAGUE.

Underwood Methodist defeated the Mt. Zion Methodist baseball team at the Waterworks diamond Saturday afternoon in the Western league by 9 to 6. Mt. Zion scored one run in each of the last four innings but were held scoreless through the first five innings as Underwood scored seven runs. Kelly, of Mt. Zion, hit three-for-five to lead the hitting of each club.

BEREANS WIN.

Gordon Street Berean Class, first-half winners in the Western league, took the lead in the last half Saturday at Mozley park as they defeated First Christian, 19 to 6, in what started to be a close game. The Bereans led, 3 to 2, through the first three innings, but the consistent hitting of the Bereans caused the Christians to falter and the Gordon Street team pounded its way to victory. McConnell, Berean catcher, took honors with four-for-five, closely followed by Youngblood, of Berean, and Jones, of First Christian, who hit three-for-five each. Webb pitched a good game for the Christians and did well in the field after being relieved by Whittington. The Bereans and the Christians were previously tied for the league lead.

SCOTT LEAGUE.

Fulton Bag went ahead of Scottdale by a margin of one run in the second inning and the scoring was done. Fulton won 2 to 1. Both pitchers were working fine, Harper holding Scottdale to three hits and Austin giving Fulton Bag just five. One double play went George to Holcomb, and another Hewell to Price to Woods.

WHITTIER BUMPED.

Whittier Mills lost to Clark Thread Mill, 7 to 4, Saturday. Clarkdale jumped on the offerings of Cowart for five runs in the third inning and the game was on ice. Only four hits were allowed by Cowart, but they were in the wrong place. Whittier hit Williams 11 times, but could push around only four of them.

ATLANTA LEAGUE.

Central Cafe kept the lead in the Atlanta league by winning from Avondale, 5 to 3, in an unexpectedly close game. Central started banging them out in the first inning and had a five-run lead at the end of the second. A. Driver hit a home run for the losers. Two double plays by Avondale helped keep the score down.

PARKS TOURNEY BEGINS JUNE 29

Champion Ineligible; Champ Reese, Manley Appear Best Bets.

By Betty Mathis.

Atlanta's first important tennis tournament of the year begins on Monday, June 29, at Grant park as the annual public parks tourney, not open to club members, gets under way, managed as usual by Ted Zuber and Jack Mooney.

The winners in both singles and doubles events will receive a trip, with expenses paid, to the national public parks tournament, to be held this summer in Boston. Runners-up will be given tennis rackets.

Champion Louis (Red) Enloe will not be able to defend his title this year because of his membership in the Atlanta Tennis Club. The same applies to Preston Chambers, outstanding public parks player of the past few years. Doubles champions, Tommy Tumlin and Bud Lindsay, will attempt to retain their title against some pretty stiff opposition.

REESE FAVORED.

Favored in a strong field for the singles bid will be Marion (Champ) Reese.

Malcolm Manley, Tech High star, also has an excellent chance to don Enloe's crown. Manley's game, which seemed to go to seed somewhat last summer, has been shaping up very well with lots of practice.

The usual list of players will compete in the event. Ben Hargrove, the surprise of a couple of tournaments last year, and Judson Fowler, both from Candler park, may make things a little difficult for the seeded boys. In fact, they may rate seedings themselves.

CLOSING TIME.

All matches up to the semi-finals will be completed by Friday of next week. The five-set contests will be held over until Saturday and Sunday of the following week, July 11 and 12. The reason for the delay is twofold. On Saturday the Champion Atlanta Crackers will play their Fourth of July double-header with the Nashville Vols. On Sunday they will play again. This, and the possibility that the players and a lot of others interested in the matches would want to go out of town for the holiday has prompted Zuber to postpone the final battles.

Entries should be made to Zuber at Parks-Chambers sports department by 5:30 on Friday, June 26.

Drawings will be announced in next Sunday's paper.

Washington Beats Navy in Regatta

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 20. (UP)—Washington defeated Navy by two lengths late today in the annual substitutes regatta on the Hudson. Rowing the mile course in 5:14 3-5, the Huskies took the lead in the first quarter and stayed out in front for the remainder of the race.

DRUID LINKSMEN OPEN QUALIFYING THIS AFTERNOON

Rainwater Won't Defend. East Lake Begins Handicap Tournament.

Druid Hills golfers will open the qualifying rounds this morning for the annual club championship tournament. The preliminary round was scheduled to start Monday and continue through next Sunday afternoon, because several of the member are going out of town next week, the opener was moved up today for those who desire to take advantage of the opportunity.

Crawford Rainwater won the championship last year, but will be out of the city for the next few weeks, leaving the title wide open.

Play in the championship flight will be from scratch, with handicaps applying in all other flights.

One round will be played each week and Harry Stephens, the club professional will be in charge of the tournament.

It will be the biggest tournament of the year for Druid Hills members and a record entry is expected to compete.

Trophies, prizes and golf merchandise will be given to the winner and runner-up in each flight and there will be as many flights as necessary to take care of every entry.

A special invitation has been issued to the new members of the club to participate and those who have no "pet" foursomes to play in can arrange for a qualifying partner through Stephens, the club professional.

Qualifying Begins At East Lake.

East Lake golfers will open the qualifying round for the annual club handicap championship tournament this morning and continue the preliminary round through next Saturday afternoon.

It is the one tournament of the year in which every player in the club has an equal chance to win. Full handicaps apply in the qualifying round as well as in each match throughout the tournament.

And every player having an equal chance, the largest entry of the year is expected to compete.

The tourney will be played over a period of several weeks so that every player will have ample opportunity to complete every match. One match will be played each week.

George Sargent, the club professional, will be in charge of the tournament and will be assisted by members of the golf and tourney committees.

The tourney will be played over either course, agreeable to the participants, although the No. 2 course has been designated for the event.

Ansley Park Opens Qualifying Rounds.

Qualifying rounds for Ansley Park's annual Nat Kaiser Memorial trophy tournament will open this afternoon and continue through next Sunday afternoon.

A few of the players who will be unable to qualify this week turned in cards Saturday afternoon.

Tommy Wilson, the club professional, will be in charge of the tourney and flights of 16 players will be arranged.

The tourney will extend over a period of several weeks and handicaps will apply in the lower flights.

Cleaners' Meet Enters Semi-Finals.

Quarter-finals in the Lloyd Cleaners' invitation golf tourney being played on the Candler Park municipal course will be completed this afternoon with several fine matches scheduled. Semi-finals will be played next week.

It is the biggest tourney to be played in Atlanta in several years and drew 131 entries to start. And only a few of the matches have been defaulted, so keen has been the interest, even in the lower flights.

Weyman Jones, the medalist with a 63; Teddy Hayes, Luke Barnes, Atlanta's junior champion; Cliff Eley, Jack Hale, E. T. Barnes and P. C. Wade, all with 70 or better scores in the qualifying round, are still in the running for the championship.

Wallace Lindquist, the club professional, is in charge of the tourney.

Harvey Pitner Joins Hole-in-One Club.

Harvey Pitner is the city's newest member of the hole-in-one club. Pitner sank a tee shot on the ninth green at Candler Park while playing with Norris Miller, Bill Terrell and Garland East.

The hole is 245 yards from the tee and is a par four and one of the most difficult of all holes in the city. It is near the club house and is an uphill drive all the way from the tee.

LET'S TALK SENSE ABOUT PERMANENTS

I have always thought, and believe most of you will agree, that to give a successful permanent wave, quality materials must be applied by experienced operators with use of strictly modern equipment.

That's the Point!

- Mackey's staff of operators are dependable, scientifically trained.
- Mackey's employs only quality materials.
- Mackey's equipment is entirely modern.

You are assured the best when you visit one of Mackey's Air-cooled shops. Phone today for an appointment.

REMEMBER! We take no chances and will not experiment with your hair. We will gladly give you a free test curl.

—No strong heat
—No sticky lotion
—No heavy pads
—No pulling
—No kinks
—No burns
—No dry hair
—No failures
—Self-curling ends
—Natural waves
—Just what you want

AUCTION
CAVE SPRING, GEORGIA
BUSINESS AND RESIDENTIAL PROPERTY. H. B. WATTS, Owner
TUESDAY, JUNE 23rd, AT 10 A. M.
Cave Spring Hotel, 24 rooms and all furnishings. The hotel has hot and cold water in every room. It is one of the best hotel locations between Atlanta and Birmingham—an ideal summer and winter resort—built out of the best material. All furniture and furnishings will be sold, either by the room or by piece. It will pay you to come for miles to attend this sale—some antiques. Also, one brick store 33x100, and one two-story brick building 30x60. These buildings are well constructed and well located. Three vacant business lots—one house on Love street. Also other valuable property will be sold.
Mr. and Mrs. Watts are advanced in years; their health is bad, and they have instructed us to sell their property without reserve to the HIGHEST BIDDER. If their health was good you would not have this opportunity. This is a golden opportunity to make a real investment. We consider this Hotel one of the best investments we have had the privilege of selling.

State's Disabled War Veterans Elect New Officers

Georgia Solons Busy This Session With Tornado and Flood Relief

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—Erratic weather that brought tornadoes, floods and drouth to the agricultural southeast kept Georgia senators and representatives busy in pursuit of relief measures during the five and a half months of the congressional session just ended.

A $50,000,000 appropriation for tornado and flood relief meant federal help in rebuilding homes and business houses destroyed by April storms in Cordele and Gainesville. Augusta was among cities benefiting from flood relief provisions of the same bill.

Late in the session congress enacted the omnibus flood control bill which authorized, among other projects, improvements costing $685,000 on the Augusta levee. The bill awaited the President's signature.

Still unsettled was the problem of southeastern drouth relief, but Georgians and others said they saw hope in an item of $85,500,000 included in the deficiency bill for aid to farmers.

A Little Help.

There was some help too—although southeastern congressmen called it but "a drop in the bucket"—through a liberalization of acreage quotas that may be taken out of cotton and tobacco production under terms of the soil conservation act. That policy serves to increase federal benefits to farmers who turn their land to the production of soil-building crops.

Dissatisfied with those relief measures, the congressmen turned to President Roosevelt with their problem.

Georgians in congress found their hands tied when county officials and others back home called upon them to aid in obtaining the release of funds withheld by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads because of a dispute over Governor Talmadge's "financial dictatorship." It took a state supreme court decision to settle the internal quarrel to start road allocations again.

The congressional delegation was able, however, to write a provision in the Hayden-Cartwright highway bill authorizing the bureau to deal directly with county officials in the allotment of funds for farm-to-market roads.

Measures looking to relief for the overburdened Atlanta federal court died on the calendar when the delegation divided on the means by which to proceed.

Bills seeking the creation of a new Georgia district court failed to get committee approval. Then Senator Russell, insisting that only an additional court could solve the problem, prevented senate action on the house-approved bill providing for a second judgeship in the northern district court.

The issue was believed certain to be revived as soon as the new session opens next January.

Naval Stores Benefit.

Georgia naval stores men will get a share of the benefits from a fund set up in the deficiency bill. Enactment of a measure to pay losses to persons who manufactured chemicals during the war meant more than half a million dollars to Georgia residents.

Development of the Fort Frederica National monument and park, on St. Simons island, obtained congress' approval, and additional work also was authorized at Chickamauga National park and Kennesaw mountain.

Authority was given for the construction of a bridge across the Savannah river to Fort Pulaski and for the transfer of title to Cockspur island, on which it is located, from the War Department to the Interior Department.

Congress sent to the President a bill removing difficulties in the operation of many low-cost housing projects, including two at Atlanta. The measure permits the city to provide police and fire protection and authorizes Secretary Ickes to fix rentals without regard to liquidation of the government's investment.

BENNING TROOPS END 4 WEEK'S MANEUVERS

FORT BENNING, Ga., June 20.—Six thousand soldiers are home from the war games, which have been under way here for four weeks.

They completed the annual maneuvers today in which infantrymen with auxiliary arms "conquered" both the "enemy" and the elements.

The infantry employed tanks as a supporting force. Unusual mobility, fire power, shock action and protection was displayed.

Engineer troops flung a pontoon bridge across the Chattahoochee river on which a regiment made a night crossing.

Many of the 6,000 men participating in the games plan to return to original posts tomorrow.

CLOUDY, BUT NO RAIN, IS SEEN FOR CITY TODAY

Partly cloudy weather for Atlanta today but no rain in sight was the word yesterday from the Atlanta Weather Bureau as brisk, mild winds fanned the temperatures to a level of 82 degrees during the afternoon.

Today the mercury is expected to range between 70 degrees in the morning and 94 in the afternoon.

A low barometer area was moving eastward into Georgia from Alabama late yesterday but actual precipitation was not forecast.

Light rains fell yesterday in Macon and Savannah.

SENATE PROBE SHOWS LIBERTY LEAGUE FUNDS

More Than Million Dollars Contributed to Body in Past 18 Months.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—The senate lobby committee said in a statement today that during the past 18 months a total of $1,064,604 was contributed to the American Liberty League and 13 other organizations and that much of it came from Du Pont, Morgan, and Mellon associates.

After naming the organizations, the statement said 90 per cent of the contributions of $924,974 were given as follows:

Du Pont family, $204,045; Du Pont associates, $152,622; Pitcairn family, $100,250; J. P. Morgan associates, $68,226; Mellon associates, $60,752; Rockefeller associates, $49,852; Hutton (E. F.) associates, $40,671; Sun Oil associates, $37,260; banks and brokers, $184,224; utility companies and associates, $27,069.

Organizations from whose files the committee said its investigators drew this information were the American Liberty League, American Federation of Utility Investors, American Taxpayers' League, Crusaders, Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy, Farmers Independence Council, League for Industrial Rights, Minute Men and Women of Today, National Economy League, New York State Economic Council, Repeal Associates, Sentinels of the Republic, Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution, Women Investors in America, Inc.

NABBED AS DRUNK, MAN DIES AT JAIL

Returned to Headquarters as Mental Case After Stockade Sentence.

A man arrested on a charge of intoxication, but later found to have been apparently suffering from a mental ailment, died in a cell on the third floor of police headquarters at about 7:30 o'clock last night.

He was tentatively identified as G. E. McCord, 43. According to police reports, he was arrested early Tuesday morning on a charge of intoxication and sent to the city stockade in lieu of a fine following a hearing in recorder's court.

There, according to police reports, his strange behavior continued, and he was sent to Grady hospital. Police said he refused food and water, and sat in a semi-comatose state.

Due to the fact that neither the city nor Grady hospital have facilties for caring for mentally ill persons, he was returned to police headquarters.

Doctors at Grady hospital said the cause of death was undetermined. There were no marks of violence, however, and the body was taken to the mortuary of J. Austin Dillon.

Search is in progress for relatives or friends. At the time of his arrest, McCord gave a Baker street address, which was found to be incorrect, according to police records.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BODY MEETS NEAR FORSYTH

FORSYTH, Ga., June 20.—The Monroe county Sunday school convention opened tonight at Dames Ferry Baptist church, near here, and will continue through tomorrow.

C. Pope Taylor, president, is presiding at the sessions. The theme of the convention will be "Facing Outward."

This meeting is under the auspices of the Georgia Sunday School Association, with Mrs. J. J. Simpson, of Atlanta, superintendent, and Mrs. W. B. Shipp, elementary worker, taking part in the program.

A basket dinner will be served tomorrow.

STALIN IS PALLBEARER AT GORKY'S FUNERAL

MOSCOW, June 20.—(AP)—Joseph Stalin placed the ashes of Maxim Gorky, soviet Russia's celebrated author, in the Kremlin late today while massed bands played the International.

Crowds, jammed into Red square for the solemn funeral ceremony, held aloft draped flags and pictures of the writer, who died of pneumonia Thursday.

Speakers lauded Gorky as one of the foremost figures of the Russian revolution.

Stalin and other members of the government acted as pallbearers. They carried the funeral urn through the square and placed it upon a catafalque erected before the tomb of Lenin.

His Parents Switch Live Snake for Toy One

Little Jack Bone, 17-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. S. N. Bone, of 119 Vannoy street, who picked up a small snake and bit off the reptile's head in the back yard of his home Friday afternoon, is shown in the photograph above. His mother wouldn't trust him with a live snake, so here he demonstrates with a toy one what he thinks of reptiles. Associated Press photo.

PLANT REOPENS

Marble Mill at Marietta Operates Again.

MARIETTA, Ga., June 20.—The Georgia Marble Mills today resumed operations here, but will not be running full time for "several weeks or more," A. V. Cortelyou, manager, reported. The mills have been closed for 18 months and usually employ about 300 skilled marble workers.

A contract for $500,000 worth of marble was let recently to the company, which will be used in a federal building at Washington, D. C.

HOURLY WAGE SCALE TO BE CHANGED BY WPA

New Program Will Be Determined by Local Communities.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—In a new move to decentralize the Works Progress Administration, Harry L. Hopkins announced at a radio "staff meeting" today that hourly wages under the new works program would be determined in local communities.

This action which gave to WPA a wage system almost identical with that of the old FERA, does not mean, however, that monthly wages would be increased. With the present $19 to $94 monthly rates continued, Thad Holt, assistant WPA administrator, explained the result would be a general reduction in working hours.

Administrators of WPA in 315 cities were gathered at their radios for the half hour explanation of how WPA's new $1,425,000,000 fund—to be available as soon as President Roosevelt signs the relief-deficiency bill—would be spent.

White Collar Projects.

Despite his remarks that white collar WPA projects had "gotten us into more hot water than everything else put together," Hopkins gave assurances that employment of needy artists, musicians, actresses and writers would be continued.

He made a similar statement concerning the National Youth Administration, which is to spend $75,000,000 instead of $50,000,000 next year.

Acknowledging that WPA labor was sometimes inefficient, Colonel F. D. Harrington, chief WPA engineer, who also participated in the broadcast, said this was because little labor saving machinery was used and many of the workers had to be trained.

Replying to a question by Chester Gray, of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Hopkins said WPA workers would be required to accept seasonal jobs if "decent wages" were offered."

Low Paid Jobs.

Hopkins emphasized, however, that "we are not going to kick anybody out of these low-paid jobs just so some bird can get a lot of cheap labor—and that goes not only for the farmer, but for any private employer."

Hopkins also reiterated that federal funds could not be used for direct relief, that no WPA employe was required to contribute to any political party, and that projects already approved would be continued after July 1 without new Washington approval.

Others participating in the broadcast were: Governor Earle, of Pennsylvania; Mayor Angelo Rossi, of San Francisco; Robert Dunham, Illinois WPA administrator, Aubrey Williams, Corrington Gill, Mrs. Ellen Woodward, assistant WPA administrators; and three Washington WPA employes who were said to be speaking for the 2,500,000 holding WPA jobs throughout the country.

DEPUTIES WATCH GASDEN MEETING

Pistol Goes Off and Hecklers Shout, But Workers Remain Quiet.

GADSDEN, Ala., June 20.—(AP)—A patrol of 165 special policemen stood "ready for any trouble" today as the doctrine of unionization was expounded here at a state labor rally called to launch an intensive organization drive.

Two arrests were made and some excitement was caused by a pistol report, but Chief of Police S. L. O'Brannon said "on the whole" the meeting was orderly.

The chief explained the pistol fired accidentally in the pocket of a special policeman.

As a major objective, union leaders set a drive for unionization of employes of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company plant here. The state rally was called after S. H. Dalrymple, Akron, Ohio, United Rubber Workers president, reported he was beaten following a meeting with Gadsden Goodyear workers two weeks ago.

Bursts of heckling punctuated speeches by William Mitch, president of the Alabama Federation of Labor, and a Birmingham attorney, and for a moment the crowd was tense as a surge of men moved toward the hecklers. But on appeal of a labor leader, the men returned to their places in the open air arena.

SENATE GROUP LASHES COMMERCE AIR BUREAU

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP) The special senate committee on air safety recommended tonight a reorganization of the Bureau of Air Commerce, which it charged with "grievous lack of co-operation."

The report recommended administrative personnel of the bureau be "improved," and expressed opinion that Eugene Vidal, its director, is "too amiable, lacking in iron, positiveness, and the determination to keep employes under his direction functioning according to schedule."

"Until there is greater firmness, greater experience with men, larger knowledge of the problems involved, there can be no hope of improvement in the bureau," the report stated. It added that the committee questioned the "professional equipment and preparation" of Rex Martin, assistant director.

SUPRESSION OF NEWS ASSAILED BY LANDON

TOPEKA, Kan., June 20.—(AP)—Governor Alf M. Landon, looking forward to the vacation trip he is to take to Colorado Wednesday, conferred today with leaders on plans for a special session of the legislature and made an address condemning "suppression of information affecting the public welfare."

Speaking to the Kansas Editorial Association, he observed:

"Much has been said recently about the freedom of the press. There is, however, another danger which should be guarded against, and that is the suppression of information affecting the public welfare.

"I don't like secrecy in governmental affairs.

"Suppression of news at its source is as dangerous to American institutions as governmental control of news at point of publication."

SHIP SUBSIDY MEASURE GOES TO WHITE HOUSE

Grants Will Be Direct Instead of Through Present Mail Contract Setup.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—A victory for senate filibusterers was recorded today with final congressional approval of legislation to expand the American merchant marine through direct government subsidies.

With that measure started to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature a senate group which had blocked by hours of talk approval of a conference report on the $992,620,872 treasury-postoffice appropriation bill, sat smiling while the supply bill was voted.

The speechmaking—aimed at holding up final action on the appropriation measure until the house acted on the subsidy bill—went on for several hours yesterday and last night and threatened plans to adjourn congress by tonight.

Started Friday.

It started early yesterday afternoon when the senate passed a substitute to a house ship subsidy bill. The senate measure provided for government grants up to 50 per cent of the cost of building vessels.

Shortly thereafter, Chairman Glass, democrat, Virginia, of the appropriations committee, sought approval of a conference report on the treasury-postoffice appropriations bill, which included $26,500,000 for ocean mail contracts under the present mail subsidy system.

A number of senators headed by Black, democrat, Alabama, and Clark, democrat, Missouri, promptly voiced a determination to talk as long as necessary to keep the appropriations measure from becoming law before the house had acted on the ship subsidy bill.

The filibusterers, vigorously opposed to the present practice of awarding contracts for transporting ocean mail, feared that if money for continuing it was provided, the house would not pass the subsidy measure.

Under procedure which required a two-thirds vote, the house last night refused, 118 to 83, to agree to the senate amendments. Today, however, it approved the senate measure, 225 to 21, with one minor amendment.

Roper Wants Bill.

Quickly Senator Glass—who had been awaiting that moment for several weary hours—asked approval of the appropriation bill conference report. That measure was sent to the White House without debate or record vote.

During the house debate, Chairman Bland, of the merchant marine committee, said he was authorized by Secretary Roper to say he wanted the bill "in order that we may get away from ocean mail contracts and get down to a basis providing employment in every state of the Union."

The measure would create a United States maritime commission of five members to administer the program which is intended to increase the amount of commerce handled by American ships and to provide additional vessels for use in the event of war.

SEC PLANS CAMPAIGN TO REFORM TRADING

Commission Would Force Separation of Broker and Dealer Activities.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(UP) The Securities and Exchange Commission, in a lengthy report to congress, indicated tonight that it would shortly launch a campaign to reform floor trading in securities and drive an opening wedge of separation between broker and dealer activities.

The full extent which this drive may finally assume was not indicated in the report. In a press conference, SEC Chairman James M. Landis announced he was "keeping the door open" for possible future requests for legislation.

The analysis and an additional volume of appendices were prepared at the request of congress in the 1934 securities exchange act. It was entitled a "report on the feasibility and advisability of the complete segregation of the functions of dealer and broker."

General Conclusions.

It came to two general conclusions:

1—"That the combination of the broker and dealer functions in the same individual or firm involves a conflict of interest which is provocative of abuse of the fiduciary relationship inherent in the brokerage function."

2—"That the survey made by the commission manifests the prevalence upon the exchanges of a type of dealer activity which exerts an undue influence on prices, incites public speculation, leads to disorderly markets and interferes with the effective fulfillment of the brokerage function."

In recommending that no additional legislation to remedy this situation was necessary immediately, the commission announced that it would begin a comprehensive administrative program under its own present powers.

What SEC Plans.

In general, the outline of this drive will be:

1—Stock traders working on the floors of registered exchanges will be forced to choose between confining their activities to those of either a "broker" or a "dealer." Under the 1934 act the former is defined as "a person engaged in the business of effecting transactions in securities for the account of others" and a dealer is described as "a person engaged in the business of buying and selling securities for his own account."

2—As "brokers," these security merchants will be prohibited from trading for their own account and they will not be able to initiate personal orders on the floors of exchanges.

3—As "dealers" they will be permitted to continue trading on their own behalf but they will be forced to show liquid resources sufficient to margin their maximum positions on the same level upon which the public has been placed by recent reserve system margin requirements—now equivalent to 55 per cent of the purchase price.

Self Trade for Cash.

4—Members of commission houses will be allowed to trade for their own account solely on a cash basis.

5—So-called "specialists" on the floors of exchanges would be exempted from the restrictions in securities they specialize in but otherwise would be subjected to the fully-margined requirements in trading on their own account.

It was indicated by Landis that these new regulations would be clamped down by the end of the summer, in all probability. They will come either in the form of revised exchange rules, issued by SEC request, or after hearings held before the commission and a resulting new set of SEC rulings.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 12.28 cents a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—(AP)—Cotton prices ran up from 50 to 75 cents a bale in active trading today stimulated by a heavy trade demand.

Every option on the board touched a new high for the season as October crossed its previous top of 11.45.

The advance ran into the customary week-end profit-taking and evening up operations but absorbed this without faltering and continued to move forward. There was a slight sell-off just before the final bell that cut prices down a few points from early highs.

October closed at 11.53, December at 11.46, January at 11.48 and May at 11.51. The July position was not as active as in Friday's trading but moved ahead 50 cents a bale to finish at 12.22. Spots at New Orleans gained 50 cents a bale with middling at 12.42.

Outside speculation appeared in the market, but most of the purchases were for trade account.

Reports from the east by the New York Journal of Commerce said that the cotton shortage at New England mills is becoming acute.

This authority predicted that spinners would be out of cotton by July 15 and either have to close down for lack of raw material or be forced to get cotton from the government.

It was this situation the trade asserted that was behind the current advance. Disregarding the possible impending "squeeze" in July the steady upward movement of new crops, in the opinion of most commentators, was the result of a small supply and a large demand.

Liverpool started domestic markets off in a good manner by reports of firm trading.

Much of today's buying came from abroad. The trade was said to be buying mostly for price fixing, although some of it was reportedly for next season's requirements.

The head of the cotton pool reported its holdings at 159,693 bales of spot cotton and 124,300 of October futures.

Port receipts 4,811; season, 6,976,548; last season, 4,390,280. Exports 135; season, 5,959,243; last season, 4,682,073. Port stocks, 1,484,343. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston were 36,813; last year, 71,129. Spot sales at southern spot markets, 9,963; last year 1,515.

NEW YORK COTTON ON NEW HIGH LEVEL

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Cotton again made new high ground for the movement during today's trading.

July sold up to 12.24 and October to 11.61, and closing quotations at the best of the day on most positions with the market steady at net advances of 9 to 17 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 3 to 6 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables, reports of continued strength in the cloth markets and covering by trade shorts. Considerable realizing was readily absorbed with some broadening of demand for new crop positions.

At the best, active months showed net gains of 11 to 19 points and closing quotations were at the best except for a reaction of 2 points in July under realizing. Weather and crop advices attracted little comment.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 36,000 bales against 71,000 last year.

Business Picture Retains Rosy Hue, Speare Reports in Weekly Survey

Major Barometers Register Continued Higher Climb; Wage Increases in Sight to Ease Labor Situation; Refunding Strengthens Stocks; French Devaluation This Week Expected.

By CHARLES F. SPEARE.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—The interval between the two party conventions has been one of rising levels of industrial production and merchandise distribution as well as of prices of securities and commodities. Some portion of this uplift may properly be credited to the unity achieved at Cleveland and to the liberal amendments to the republican platform demanded by Governor Landon. In large part, however, it represented continuation of a recovery that has been under way for nearly a year.

Prominent among the exhibits of returning activity in the business world were those from the iron and steel industry whose 71 per cent figure of production is the highest in six years; from power and light output, 14.2 per cent ahead of a year ago; from carloadings which are approaching 700,000 cars for the first time in 1936 and likely to reach 800,000 cars in the early autumn, and from retail trade, 10 to 15 per cent higher than in the same week of 1935 in spite of somewhat disappointing purchases by the recipients of the bonus.

In all of these departments of domestic commerce, results in the present quarter outstrip those of the previous six months of which the governors of the Federal Reserve Board wrote with enthusiasm in their review published this week.

Weather Increases Optimism.

Better weather conditions in portions of the drouth-affected states in the southeast and northwest have contributed to the country's optimism. At the same time there has been evidence of a distinct trend toward higher commodity prices. This has come about in cotton as a result of a broader domestic and foreign demand for the staple. The average of wholesale commodity prices is lower than a year ago. So is the average of retail food costs. Without any detriment to business the commodity level could rise to the high average of 1935.

One probable feature of the labor situation this summer will be an advance in wages. It is believed that a movement of this sort is pending in the iron and steel trade looking to a 10 per cent raise. This would relieve the tension now existing there and follow the proposed increase in steel prices in the next quarter. The pay rolls of numerous industries are increasing. It is significant also that a growing number of employers are granting vacations with pay. This has been one of the chief demands of the strikers in this month's labor disturbances in France and in Belgium. It is a reasonable one.

The relative prosperity of the agricultural districts is suggested both by the volume of sales of the national distributors and by the present activity in the farm equipment trade. The gaining credit position of the railroads, likewise, is indicated by the amount of their refinancing of old securities, their expanding purchases of equipment, the amount of repair work being done in shops in anticipation of a large demand for cars in the autumn and by re-employment of employes who have long been idle or on part time.

The partial restoration of the emergency freight rates did not satisfy, but if the railroad industry is to remain an independent part of American business life it can hardly expect to be carried indefinitely by the public or by the government.

Revived Executives' Energy.

The railroads have been relieved this week of the interference in its affairs by Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator. In the opinion of this writer, Mr. Eastman did much to revive the energy of the railroad executives of the country and bring them to an appreciation of their immediate problems. He unquestionably stood between them and the movement toward government ownership.

The vitality of the market for securities is shown in the recovery of the loss that occurred in the spring decline. The advance this week in the averages of common stocks carried them to a new high level for the movement which began in March, 1936. Accompanying this there has been a revival of interest in bonds in the middle and lower ratings.

From time to time, as investors grow discouraged over the small return on high-grade issues, they make resort to securities that provide both a fair yield and some prospect for appreciation. Movements of this sort have usually run a short course. There is possibly more justification for them now in the railroad and public utility groups than heretofore, as earnings supporting junior issues are expanding.

Another factor, applying solely to the power and light bonds and debentures, is the savings effected by refunding. In the case of one large utility this amounts to 1 per cent per annum on its heavy total of common stock. Obviously, it immensely improves the position of classes of bonds that were not covering their charges in the worst days of the depression.

Refunding Continues.

The refunding process continues, though at a slower pace recently. It has been in railroad and industrial issues more than in public utilities. An extreme instance is that of the Chesapeake & Ohio 4 per cent equipment trust certificates, sold in 1934, and now refinanced with a ten-year not carrying rates varying from 3-8 of 1 per cent to 2 7-8 per cent.

On the other hand, the program of the Southern Pacific to liquidate loans to the RFC with the proceeds of a 3 3-4 per cent collateral secured bond apparently did not deeply interest the investing public. There is a trend in the municipal bond market toward special types of tax-free bonds as that for direct issues dries up or prices rise too high to attract any but the supertax element in the investment world.

In the preferred stock list of industrials and public utilities, close investigation is being made of issues that may some time this year or next be in a position to refund their accumulated dividends, either in cash or in equivalent dollar amounts of new securities. It may be said of the investor today that he has little option between accepting a low rate for his money or entering a field that borders on the speculative.

French Situation.

It is just as probable this week as it was last that France will have to devalue. A resort to temporary inflation will not bring the cure of economic ills that have been present for several years. By one means or another, France is placing barriers against the free movements of gold. She is increasing her liabilities while her assets are running down. In the past two months nearly $400,000,000 in gold has been taken from her and from Holland. The leaders of banking and of business in France are now in accord for devaluation. The Swiss this week proclaimed their purpose to stay on gold. They cannot if France departs from the "gold bloc." Neither can Holland. It would be better if they determined the basis on which they could separately devalue, and move accordingly.

The will to sustain the present levels of currencies and to protect the investors is strong, but the elements in the economic and social life of each country have too long been against maintenance of this kind of a program. Our own problem, having devalued when the emergency was great, is how to undo some of the unfortunate results of cheapening the dollar. The demand for stabilizing the dollar is no more emphatic in the republican platform than in the minds of the great majority of the American people. They believe the dollar today is already too much undervalued.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—In strenuous new upturns, wheat today showed a rise of more than 11 cents a bushel this week. Simultaneously corn was up about 7 cents, oats 5 cents and rye about 9 cents.

Evidence that Europe is becoming alarmed over disastrous crop conditions in the American northwest did much to rush all grains today to season fresh top record quotations.

The maximum overnight jump in the Chicago wheat market, 3 1-2 cents, was surpassed both at Minneapolis and Kansas City, especially the latter, which went skyward an extreme of 4 3-4 cents, responsive to reports of damage by drouth and high temperatures not only to spring crop areas northwest but also to hard winter wheat southwest.

Despite heavy profit-taking sales that at the last shaded gains somewhat, wheat in Chicago closed strong, 2 cents to 3 cents above yesterday's finish, July 93 3-4 to 94, September 95 1-8 to 95 1-4, December 97 to 97 1-4, corn 1 1-2 to 2 1-8 up, July 66 7-8, September 65 to 65 1-8, December 61 3-8 to 61 1-2, oats 1 5-8 to 2 1-8 advanced, September 30 1-2 to 30 3-4, and rye showing 2 cents to 2 1-4 cents bulge, September 64 1-8 In provisions, the outcome was 20 to 50 cents higher.

Corn, oats and rye all imitated wheat. Because of parched conditions, the new corn crop was reported as rapidly losing ground. Oats and rye were described as suffering equally with wheat.

Provisions borrowed strength from grains.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—July 91 to 91 1-8, 97 1-8 to 97 1-4; September 91 7-8 to 92, 98 7-8 to 99; December 93 3-4 to 94, 100 3-4 to 101. Corn—July 64 3-4, 68 3-4; September 63 1-4 to 63 3-8, 67 5-9 to 67 3-4; December 58 7-8 to 59, 63 3-4 to 64. Rye—July 60 1-4, 67 1-4; September 61 1-4, 68; December 63 3-8, 69 3-8.

Brokers' Views

COTTON OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Believe trade buying will come in on recessions and support the market.

FENNER & BEANE—We look for the market to work higher but suggest confining purchases to recessions.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBBS & CO.—Pending some slackening of business in the cloth markets or the easing of the spot situation, we think that declines would bring in an increased demand.

STOCK OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—While declines may be ahead the recent action seems to indicate they will be of minor proportions. Buying orders appear on slight declines which so far are sufficient to absorb the offers without difficulty.

FENNER & BEANE—General business news continues of the sort that sustains bullish sentiment and is supported by the prospect of no further legislation through congressional adjournment, may well sustain the forward movement of prices initiated Saturday.

GRAIN OPINIONS.

COURTS & CO.—Foreign markets confirmed our advance and we would not be surprised to see higher prices.

GEORGIA HEALTH PROBLEMS TO BE DISCUSSED AT ATHENS

NATIONAL SHRINE IS TO BE CREATED AT FT. FREDERICA

President Approves Measure Calling for Establishment of Historic Park on St. Simons.

By CARY SUTLIVE.

ST. SIMONS ISLAND, Ga., June 20.—The former townsite of the "walled city" of Fort Frederica, located on the northern end of St. Simons island and once boasting a population of 1,000 persons and the strongest British fortification on the North American continent, would be reconstructed in its original state under present plans for the establishment of the historical spot as a national shrine with congressional and presidential approval.

Already 30 acres have been acquired and 50 acres more are sought to be included in the shrine to be created here, which include Fort Frederica and the site of the "Bloody Marsh" monument, erected on the spot where Oglethorpe won his decisive battle from the Spaniards in 1742 and forever settled the question of English domination of this area.

Celebration Planned.

Meanwhile, the Tri-County Historical Landmark Commission, of which Cator Woolford, of Atlanta, is president, is arranging plans for a gigantic pageant and celebration on July 2, 3 and 4 on St. Simons Island in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Frederica. More than 600 persons will participate in the bicentennial, during which many of the historical events of the early Georgia colonists will be re-enacted in a colorful panorama.

Fort Frederica, which played a leading role in checking the Spanish invasion of Georgia in 1742, today is only one of the many historical points which dot the Georgia coastal regions, with ruins of Spanish occupation and English construction as evidence of the rich historical background of this section of Georgia.

In 1736, three years after the founding of Georgia by General James Edward Oglethorpe and his English colonists, the British leader visited St. Simons Island and laid off and constructed the town and fort of Frederica, selecting the north side of Frederica river as the most strategic point and position on the island. It was six years later that Fort Frederica repelled the Spaniards after they had dispatched 51 ships and 5,000 troops from Habana for a conquest in Georgia.

Oglethorpe's men were defeated in an initial naval engagement and retreated to Fort Frederica, where they prepared for the final battle within the moat which surrounded the townsite and fortifications. As the Spanish pressed their way forward through the interior, Oglethorpe's men, numbering 600, secreted themselves in the underbrush and engaged the invaders in guerilla warfare, with the result that the entire force of the Spaniards were either killed, wounded or captured.

Great Victory.

The victory of the English soldiers was hailed throughout the colonies as the greatest of all victories for the British in North America and assured America a complete English background.

Frederica, however, did not reach its zenith until the year 1740, when the town had a population of 1,000 persons, including 600 soldiers, their wives and children. A moat, a half mile in length, completely surrounded the townsite of 30 acres, atop of which were erected cypress pilings to make it a veritable "walled city." The moat, equipped with a system of locks, could be flooded in the event of attack.

Within the walls stood the homes of the colonists, with a splendid system of streets. The storehouse, a three-story structure, was the largest building within the town, and it was on the third floor of that building that John Wesley, founder of Methodism in this country, conducted his indoor services. A guard house and a powder magazine also formed a portion of the construction.

The town was entered only through two main approaches, located near the bluff of Frederica river. Draw bridges, commanded by guards protected in overhead lookout-posts, were in constant use and were installed as a precautionary war measure. At each corner of the moat were erected lookout towers, which provided view in all directions for soldiers and guards on duty.

Outside the moat General Oglethorpe cleared several hundred acres for agricultural purposes and allotted each family a portion of five acres for farming, which was done on a rather extensive scale by the colonists.

Today, 200 years after the founding of Frederica, plans are underway for a complete reconstruction of the townsite and fortification as it stood during the days of the English colonists. Under the proposal, which has congressional approval, the 30 acres which comprised the townsite of Frederica and an additional 50 acres, would be acquired and presented to the national government for the establishment of "Fort Frederica National Shrine."

T. A. Walters, acting secretary of the interior, Washington, D. C., in his recommendations to Rene L. DeRouen, chairman of the house committee on public lands, declared that "Fort Frederica is of great historical interest in connection with the colonial period of our national development and it is believed that it is worthy of preservation as a national monument, as it epitomizes one phase of the history of the south in its formative years. It was an important center of southern life in the early history of Georgia and proved the foresight of James Oglethorpe, ite builder, when in 1742 it withstood the terrific onslaught of the Spanish, thus saving Georgia for England."

Planned Two Years Ago.

Plans for reconstruction of Fort Frederica and the townsite were conceived two years ago by the Tri-County Historic Landmark commission, composed of members from the counties of Glynn, Camden and McIntosh.

The proposal was championed by Congressman Braswell Deen, of the Eighth Georgia district, who advanced the necessary legislation through the various congressional channels and finally to the desk of President Roosevelt for final enactment several weeks ago.

The undertaking would call for the purchase of the present Taylor family properties on St. Simons Island, which has long remained in possession of those pioneer Georgians. Negotiations have been opened with a view of acquiring the site for presentation to the national government for its development, which would be accomplished at an expenditure estimated at more than $500,000.

The project calls for the complete reconstruction of the fortification, the ruins of which now stand overlooking Frederica river, with only a lone cannon as evidence of its former military strength. Suitable monuments, markings, museums and buildings are also provided in the original plans, which also call for the rebuilding of the homes, barracks and other structures which stood within the "walled city."

Georgia 4-H Club Members Attend Camp in Capital

MR., MRS. E. S. VINSON ARE HOSTS TO FRIENDS

Many Editors Call on Venerable Pair at Milledgeville During Convention.

(Pictures in Rotogravure Section.)

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 20. Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Vinson, parents of Congressman Carl Vinson, dean of the Georgia delegation, known effectionately here as Milledgeville's "good couple" and beloved of all citizens here, were among the many local citizens who kept "open house" during the recent convention of the Georgia Press Association. Many editors from all parts of Georgia called on this venerable couple during their stay in Milledgeville.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinson have celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary. Mr. Vinson is 85 years old and Mrs. Vinson is 81.

The presence of Mr. and Mrs. Vinson on the front porch of their home here is a sure sign of a pleasant day, citizens of Milledgeville seldom passing the home without looking for them and waving them a friendly greeting.

It was in 1875 that Edward S. Vinson, a young Baldwin county farmer, married Miss Annie Morris, a member of one of Baldwin county's most prominent families. They lived on their farm near Milledgeville until a few years ago when he retired on account of advanced years, and moved to Milledgeville, where they live, next door to the home of Congressman Vinson.

As citizens of the community, as church workers, as parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vinson have made great contributions to Milledgeville and Baldwin county, the state and the nation, and their wedding anniversary always assumes national proportions in that one son is one of the most powerful men in authority in Washington, another is a captain in the United States army and a third died as a gallant soldier of the overseas army.

Eight children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Vinson and all are living except one, Captain Morris Vinson, who died in service during the World War.

The living children include Congressman Carl Vinson, the eldest son; Captain Wilbur Vinson, of Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Edward Vinson, of Cordele; Fred Vinson, of Newport News, Va.; Mrs. Mabel Pollard, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. J. W. Cannon, of Cordele; Mrs. M. J. Guyton, of Dublin.

JACKSON RITES HELD FOR MRS. FRANKLIN

JACKSON, Ga., June 20.—Funeral services for Mrs. R. A. Franklin Sr., prominent Jackson resident, whose death occurred at her home on Indian Springs street yesterday were held this morning.

As the former Miss Martha Boyt Smith, Mrs. Franklin was born and reared in Jackson. She was a daughter of the late Asa H. Smith, prominent textile manufacturer and banker, and Mrs. Smith. She was educated in the Jackson schools and Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens. She held membership in the Jackson Methodist church.

Surviving relatives include her husband, Dr. R. A. Franklin, former representative from Butts county and well known Jackson businessman; two sons, Robert A. Franklin Jr., and Hiram Franklin; her mother, Mrs. A. H. Smith; one sister, Mrs. Helen Scales and a granddaughter, Martha Franklin.

BURNS ARE FATAL TO EX-GEORGIANS

Two Former Residents of Darien Lose Lives in Jacksonville Fire.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 20.—(AP)—Fuel oil explosions took the lives of three women here within the past 24 hours.

Miss Martha Larsen, 43, died today of burns received yesterday afternoon when she spilled gasoline on the kitchen floor and it became ignited from a pilot light on a water heater.

Mrs. Miriam Cromley, 22, and Miss Roberta Cromley, 28, sisters-in-law, were fatally burned yesterday when a five-gallon can of kerosene exploded on the back porch of their home while they were washing and ironing clothes.

Roberta's mother, Mrs. Robert Cromley, escaped with minor burns. The Cromleys were natives of Darien, Ga., but had lived here about three years. Mrs. Miriam Cromley was the wife of James E. Cromley. She is survived also by a daughter.

The Larsen residence was badly damaged by fire but the flames caused little loss at the Cromley home.

RITES FOR E. L. RAINEY TO BE HELD AT DAWSON

Georgia Editors Named To Attend Funeral Today of State Official.

DAWSON, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—An honorary escort of Georgia newspaper editors will attend funeral services here tomorrow afternoon for Chairman E. L. Rainey, of the state prison commission, who died at his home in Dawson early yesterday.

Chairman Rainey was for many years editor of the Dawson News, a weekly newspaper.

Kirk Sutlive, of Blackshear, president of the Georgia Press Association, named J. L. Taylor, of Buena Vista; O. J. Culpepper, Camilla; John H. Crouch, Leesburg; McKenzie Perry, Montezuma; A. K. McGill, Sylvester; John G. Herring, Tifton, and C. M. Methvin, Eastman, to represent the association officially at the funeral services.

A number of state officials also will attend. The state capitol in Atlanta was closed today out of respect to Judge Rainey.

Judge Rainey was born in Perry, Ga., January 21, 1863. He married Miss Mary Ella Symmes, of Dawson, in 1886, and soon after making his home here purchased the Dawson News.

Prior to being appointed a member of the state prison commission, he held various municipal offices here and other state positions.

He is survived by his widow; a daughter, Mrs. Brady Skelton, of Atlanta; a son, Clement E. Rainey, business manager of the Dawson News, and two grandchildren.

Battle Site Marker To Be Included in Park

The marker shown above which is on the spot where the Battle of Bloody Marsh was fought by Oglethorpe in 1742 on St. Simons island, will be included in a national shrine to be created on the island.

WIND, HAIL STORMS CAUSE BIG DAMAGE IN SOUTH GEORGIA

Two Negroes Killed Near Marshallville; Loss in Pelham Area Is Set at $1,000,000.

MARSHALLVILLE, Ga., June 20. (AP)—Tornadoes and wind and hail storms did extensive damage to crops and property in parts of central south Georgia, one of the state's richest farming sections, a survey today showed.

The storms struck yesterday afternoon and last night, disrupting communication lines in some sections. Two negroes were killed near Massey's Lane.

Damage Set at $1,000,000.

Pelham in the southwestern corner of the storm area, reported a heavy fall of hail which damaged crops extensively. A. R. Baggs, Fred Hollis and Grover Thigpen, members of the Hand Trading Company at Pelham, said after a survey that damage to tobacco, corn, cotton, cantaloupes, watermelons, tomatoes, and other growing crops could not be estimated accurately, but likely would reach $1,000,000. Pelham proper was bombarded by hail which damaged parked automobiles, smashed street lights and did some damage to houses.

Hawkinsville reported many trees blown down near the Pulaski-Dooly county line, but no other damage.

The worst of the wind storm apparently struck in the vicinity of Massey's Lane, in the peach belt between Marshallville and Fort Valley.

Peach trees loaded with green fruit which would have ripened in a few weeks were stripped and in many instances, the trees themselves were destroyed.

Persons who saw the tornado cloud in the Massey's Lane community said the wind apparently lacked the fury of storms which hit Cordele and Gainesville early in April, but that it was "a real twister."

Resembled Tornado.

W. E. Slade, store operator at Massey's Lane, said "It was roaring like a freight train. It looked like a big whirling cloud of dust as it came sweeping in from the west."

The roof of the Marshallville post-office was lifted from its proper position, but was not blown away. The front of the Slade store was damaged. Other buildings also were damaged to varying degrees.

A hailstorm did extensive damage to crops in the northern half of Colquitt (Moultrie) and adjoining counties. Farmers in the vicinity of Sale City and Doerun, and eastward through Sylvester, Norman Park and Reedy Creek and Hartsfield said the hail stones at some points were as large as hen eggs.

Hartsfield reported heavy damage to tobacco, cotton and corn.

Tobacco and cotton damage in the area varied from 20 to 40 per cent, said reports to the Moultrie Observer. Windows of some farm houses were smashed, and automobile tops were ripped by hailstones. No personal injuries were reported in the Moultrie section.

Albany reported little damage in Dougherty county but dispatches received there told of hail storms in the vicinity of Sylvester, Doerun and Camilla which damaged watermelons and cantaloupes. In some sections, the melon crops were damaged so severely some farms will be unable to make shipments.

Packing Plants Damaged.

In the Massey's Lane section, several peach packing houses were damaged or destroyed.

Some Macon county peach orchards were hard hit. This is a section in which early peaches, now ripening, are grown extensively. Many of the growers reported fruit blown from trees, but most orchard men said the storm provided a "severe thinning" of fruit. Some of the loss will be made up by better quality fruit, they said.

One negro was taken to a hospital in Montezuma, suffering from a broken back. A young girl, her name not known, was injured in Dodge county. She was taken to a hospital in Cochran. The girl was hurt as a house collapsed.

Historic Bonaventure cemetery, a few miles from Savannah, was badly damaged by wind and rain last night.

J. T. McCormick, superintendent of the cemetery, said a heavy rain descended upon Savannah, accompanied by considerable lightning.

The cemetery was strewn with branches by the twister and several tombstones were upset.

Winner of Constitution's Award Is Outstanding Savannah Officer

Acting on Hunch, Sergeant Captures Four Escaped Convicts.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 20.—Acting on a hunch that four escaped convicts from a south Georgia stockade would head for Savannah, William L. Dotson, traffic sergeant of the Savannah police department, who stationed himself outside the city, captured the men singlehanded, and won for himself the award offered by The Atlanta Constitution for the most outstanding service performed by a Georgia officer during 1935.

The presentation of the medal, which also carried with it a cash award of $50, was made at the recent Georgia Peace Officers' convention held here. In the absence of Clark Howell, editor and president of The Constitution, Hershel V. Jenkins, of the Savannah Morning News and Evening Press, made the presentation, and added $50 to the cash award for his papers.

Performed Last Summer.

The splendid bit of police work performed by Sergeant Dotson which prompted the honor conferred upon him at the convention took place last summer and it gained the officer national recognition at the time.

Sergeant Dotson captured single-handed four armed convicts who had escaped from a convict camp at Lakeland, Ga., robbing a woman of an automobile on the public highway to make their get-away.

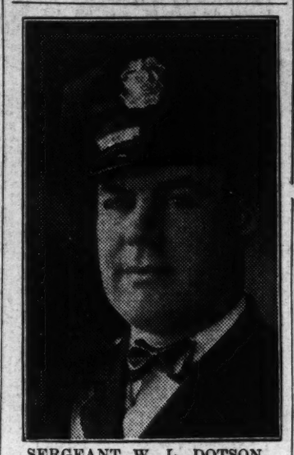

It was late at night when word was flashed to Savannah from Lakeland of the escape of two white and two negro convicts. The report said the quartet had overpowered a guard at the camp and took from him a shotgun and a pistol. Once the four had gotten clear of the camp grounds they halted a car on the highway being driven by a woman passenger and put her out, fleeing into the night in the machine.

The escaped prisoners were last seen headed toward Savannah. Sergeant Dotson, acting on a hunch, stationed himself at a vantage point on the Ogeechee road, a short distance from the city. It was not long before a car came roaring down the road in the direction of the city.

The police officer hopped on his motorcycle and began pursuit. He fired several shots at the racing car but it did not serve to slow up the convicts which he had spotted in the machine. Then the policeman turned on his siren and in a few minutes the car came to a stand. The shackled convicts later said they had the impression at the time there were a number of officers chasing them.

Convicts Halt.

As soon as the convict vehicle stopped Sergeant Dotson turned his spotlight on the car and stood behind with his pistol ready. He commanded the men to file out of the car and drop what arms they might have. They did not know the numbers of the "capturing force" because of the blinding glare of the spotlight and surrendered. The shotgun and pistol were found in the car later. A passing motorist brought word of the capture to the city and a bevy of officers soon joined Sergeant Dotson to aid him in transporting his prisoners to the lock-up.

In accepting the award, Sergeant Dotson said "I want to thank Mr. Howell and Mr. Jenkins for the honor of winning the award and also Captain John Clancey for submitting the incident to the peace officers' committee. It makes me particularly glad as well as my family at home and we are all happy to see Savannah get the prize this year."

In addition to Captain Clancey, a number of Sergeant Dotson's fellow-officers from the city department and the county police attended the presentation exercises.

At the time of the capture, Dotson was a motorcycle officer and during May he was promoted to sergeant in charge of six downtown traffic officers, 12 motorcycle officers, as well as supervisor over traffic at the Municipal stadium and auditorium.

Joined Force in 1929.

Sergeant Dotson first joined the police force in 1929, resigned in the same year and again joined the force in 1933. His service has been marked by many fine accomplishments. He is more than six feet tall and weighs 235 pounds.

He is married and has several children.

The Constitution award is given annually for the most meritorious service performed by a Georgia peace officer, through the Peace Officers' Association.

FIFTY PHYSICIANS TO BE ON PROGRAM SET AT UNIVERSITY

Institute of Public Affairs Sponsors Meeting Which Will Be Held June 30 Through July 2.

ATHENS, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—Fifty prominent physicians and civic leaders will discuss Georgia health problems before the University of Georgia Institute of Public Affairs June 30—July 2.

H. M. Heckman, assistant director of the institute, said today all addresses would be presented from the layman's viewpoint in an effort to drive home to citizens generally the need for greater attention to health problems in the state.

Dr. Freeman to Lecture.

General lectures will be given by Dr. Allen W. Freeman, dean of the School of Hygiene and Public Health, Johns Hopkins University, and Dr. W. F. Draper, assistant surgeon general of the United States.

Such topics as malaria, tuberculosis, cancer, mental hygiene and public health will be discussed at various sessions of the institute.

Dr. Ralph Chaney, of Augusta; Dr. J. E. Walker, of Columbus; Dr. H. G. Ansley, of Decatur; Dr. Enoch Callaway, of LaGrange; Dr. J. E. New, of Dexter, and Dr. R. M. Moore, of Waleska, will preside at various sessions.

Miss Shepperson on Program.

Miss Gay B. Shepperson, of Atlanta, director of the state WPA program; Milton Fleetwood, Cartersville newspaper editor; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, woman's club leader of Athens; Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, and a number of other laymen and physicians will take part in various discussions.

The University Institute of Public Affairs this year was split into two sections. The first section, devoted to problems of national and international interest, was a series of addresses scattered through the college year.

In the second section on public health the institute is following its usual policy of providing a meeting place and open forum for problems of state interest.

MUCH SCRAP IRON SOLD AT SAVANNAH

Many Freighters Required to Transport Material to Europe.

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 20.—What has developed into a million-dollar business for this port in the exporting of scrap iron. A. J. Kingvon, Savannah branch manager of a firm dealing in scrap material, estimated that during the fiscal year which ended yesterday, Savannah exported between 60,000 and 70,000 tons of scrap, enough material to fill a dozen freighters.

Kingon said that his firm sent about 90 per cent of its exports to Europe with the remaining 10 per cent going to the far east. Compared to the previous year, Savannah's scrap business has doubled.

Scrap metal on arrival at the junk yard is graded for softness. Hard steel and cast iron which bring the best prices when new, are worth the least when on their way to the junk yard en route to the smelting furnaces.

After grading the material it is ready to be cut into convenient lengths. A machines which resembles closely a hugh pair of scissors, snips to certain sizes a large part of the metal. When it is too bulky acetylene torches do the job.

SECOND DISTRICT BODY TO MEET AT MOULTRIE

MOULTRIE, Ga., June 20.—Approximately 35 members of the second congresisonal district democratic executive committee convene here next Tuesday to set rules and regulations for the congressional races in the state primary September 9, Henry Grady Bell, of Bainbridge, chairman of the organization, said today.

Tuesday's session will mark the first time that the district meeting has been held in Moultrie. The committee met last two years ago in Thomasville to ratify nominations.

Fourteen south Georgia counties will be represented at the meeting.

GIRLS' CAMP TO OPEN SOON NEAR SAVANNAH

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 20.—Plans for opening of Rose Dhu camp for girls on a historic plantation near here and overlooking the Vernon and Forest rivers and Houston creek, were completed today by Mrs. Hazle Mattox, director.

Mrs. Mattox is a graduate of Arnold College, New Haven, Conn., and has had many years experience in physical training and playground work.

An imposing array of assistants assure those who enroll of a full summer of outdoor activity and recreational advantages presented only in historic Savannah, according to Mrs. Mattox.

Miss Ethelena Jackson, dietitian at the University of Georgia and formerly connected with Wesleyan College, will be in charge of the diets.

Miss Mary Agnes Roane, of the Georgia State Woman's College, Valdosta, will be in charge of dancing and dramatics.

Miss Virginia Andrews, also of the University of Georgia, will direct swimming and games. A registered nurse will be in attendance at all times and a close check up will be kept on the progress of campers.

The girls will be divided into three groups—seniors from 14 to 18 years of age; intermediates from 8 to 14 and juniors from 5 to 8.

There will be cups and other awards for excellence.

STATE DEATHS

MRS. J. B. GOSS.

CORD CONVERTIBLES IN BIG DEMAND

Convertible Jobs Register 37 Per Cent of Shipments.

AUBURN, Ind., June 20.—Thirty-seven per cent of Cord sales in May were convertible models, Roy H. Faulkner, president of Auburn, announced today. The demand for these year-round phaetons and coupes, he said, is unusually high and comes from all parts of the country.

Shipments of convertible Cords in June will be greater than in May and probably will reach 50 per cent of total Cord shipments, according to the Auburn official.

The Cord convertible phaeton sedan seats five people and can be made into an open or completely closed car at will. It is very rakish in appearance and has an especial appeal for sportsmen and those who desire a custom type motor car. The coupe is likewise a year-round model.

STUDEBAKER SALES UP HUNDRED PER CENT

Over Two Thousand Cars Sold During First 10 Days in June.

Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corporation, reports the sale of 2,190 passenger cars and trucks including export during the first 10 days of June compared with 999 in the corresponding period of 1935—an increase of 119 per cent.

During the same period dealers in the United States alone delivered 2,293 units, continuing the reduction of their inventory which was notable in May.

Urban League

By JESSE B. BLAYTON.

The negro co-operative farmers of Georgia are carrying out their program as planned and well within the time limits as arranged. This has been made possible by the active assistance of students of Atlanta University and Morehouse College, who are working under the direction of the department of economics of Atlanta University. These young men are thus not only forwarding a valuable social experiment, but are finding occupation for themselves during the summer months.

Two distributing depots have been established in Atlanta; one at 182 Auburn avenue, N. E., and the other at the corner of Hunter and Chestnut streets. The plan is to open depots in other sections of the city and even in other communities as rapidly as the co-ordination between growers and consumers can be worked out.

These depots operate as selling agents for the farmers who have been organized into clubs in the various communities, along the line of produce co-operatives. For the past two weeks farmers have trucked into Atlanta and placed at these distribution points several carloads of their produce. The farmers report that they are highly satisfied with the manner in which the students are handling the disposition of their commodities.

The produce arrives fresh every day and the shrinkage is kept at a minimum. So far commodities dealt in have included the following: tomatoes, okra, cabbage, turnips, beans, black-eyed peas, squash, watermelons, cantaloupes, corn, cucumbers, onions, potatoes and practically every other product grown in Georgia. These products come from as far south as near Thomasville. Albany has contributed its share as have Columbus, Waycross and other communities.

Because of the widespread organization of the farmers' clubs, the drouth condition has not totally wiped out all of the commodities in every section. A commodity which may have been entirely destroyed by the drouth in one section will be found in considerable quantity in another.

The farmers and students cordially invite the public to visit the depots the co-operative. Custom is solicited, but, beyond that, those interetsed in the working out of a project new to this locality and of far-reaching social significance are asked to lend the support of their presence and interest.

The students have begun an investigation to determine the feasibility of establishing similar co-operatives in other localities, notably in Chattanooga, Tenn. If units can be set up in widely separated sections of the country there will be facilitated an exchange, under the co-operative system, of many diversified products. The young men promoting this project "see a vision" of a great system of mutually helpful production and consumption, which, if realized, may bring vast benefit to their race and to the south.

FREE WILL BAPTISTS MEET AT GLENNVILLE

GLENNVILLE, Ga., June 20.—(AP) Free Will Baptists of 12 southern states, winding up a four-day meeting here, decided today to hold next year's conference at Turbeville, S. C. The conference heard reports of an increase in membership and a 400 per cent increase in foreign missions offerings last year.

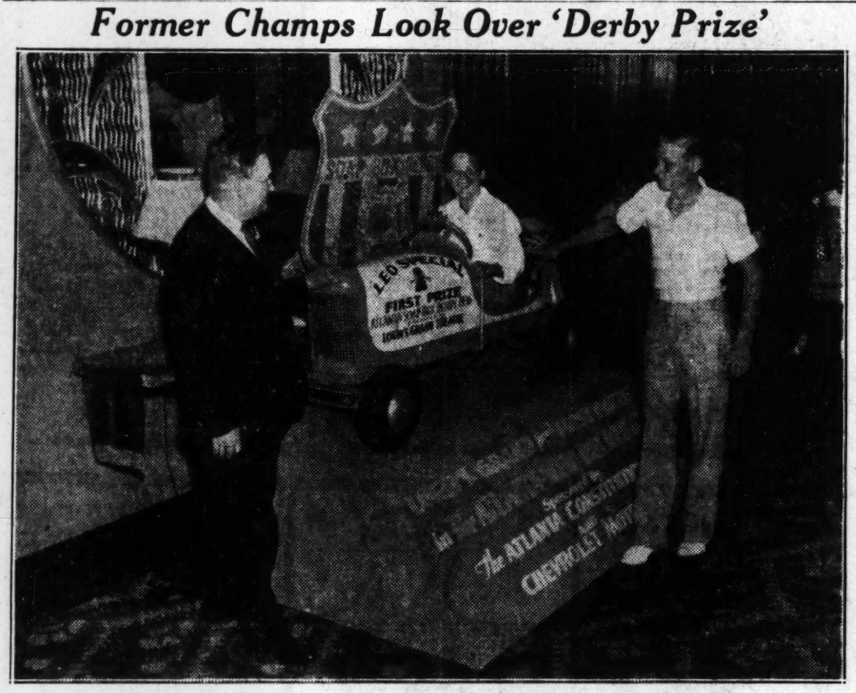

Rev. I. J. Blackwelder, of Nashville, Tenn., foreign mission secretary; Rev. and Mrs. Thomas H. Wylie, of Durham, N. C., and Rev. Selph Jones, of Mansfield, Mo., were among speakers at the conference.

Orphan Home Boys Sponsored in Derby

Through the interest of J. W. Reid, left, regional sales promotion manager for the Gulf Refining Company here, Charles Webb, from the Georgia Baptist Orphans' Home, center, and Harry Byers, of the Hillside Cottages, right, will build their cars and enter this year's annual Soap Box Derby. The Gulf Refining Company in furnishing the material for these two boys opens an avenue to them to compete for the four-year college course as the grand prize for the national race That is, of course, if one of them is the Atlanta winner. The two boys are shown discussing this year's rules with Mr. Reid.

Former Champs Look Over 'Derby Prize'

Left, B. G. Stodgill, general manager for the John Smith Company, local Chevrolet dealers, met the 1934 and 1935 Atlanta Soap Box Derby champions to look over the miniature car being offered as first grand prize, by Loew's Grand theater here. Seated in the car is Virgil King, 1934 champ; standing, Joe Harrell Jr., 1935 champ. This little car is on display in the lobby of the theater.

American Auto Association Check Chevrolet Trucks Actually on Job

An unprecedented test of delivery trucks, under the supervision of the American Automobile Association, is now under way in 12 cities of the United States, in each of which a leading department store is operating a Chevrolet test truck in actual service. It is the first test of this sort ever to have been sanctioned by the A. A. A. and so far is known the first test of a group of identical trucks operating under varied conditions in different cities.

Department stores that are co-operating are in Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington.

The operation covers a period of 30 working days, during which accurate records will be kept covering the economy of the trucks in fuel and oil and in other expenses, accompanied by an exact record of the performance of the trucks in the handling of department store deliveries.

The test, besides demonstrating the cost of operation under varied conditions, will also prove a demonstration of the methods by which department store delivery trucks have achieved a high record for safety.

Typical of the test in all 12 cities is the operation in Chicago, where Marshall Field & Co. are using a Chevrolet double-drop frame parcel delivery truck. The executives of the truck division of the Chevrolet Motor Company found the plan enthusiastically received by Marshall Field, represented by James M. Barclay, operating and personnel executive.

The truck, a stock chassis, with the exception of the double-drop frame, which was developed especially to accommodate a new body type specially designed for Marshall Field, was selected from the assembly line by the contest board of the A. A. A. From the time it left the factory, it has been under constant A. A. A. control, even on its trip from Detroit to Chicago. The gasoline tank is locked, and the key is held by David N. Larson, A. A. A. observer. The crankcase, transmission and rear axle are sealed.

Each morning when the truck is loaded, Larson records the number of packages to be delivered. He remains with the truck throughout the day, keeping an exact record of the time of each delivery, the mileage between stops and the nature of each delivery or pickup. He also is required to report any mishap, no matter how trivial, should any occur during the test.

A regularly employed Marshall Field delivery crew mans the truck, which operates from the Evanston store.

Brooks-Shatterly Celebrating Their Seventeenth Anniversary

Seventeenth anniversary of Brooks-Shatterly, automobile tire and accessory dealers at 100 Spring and at Lakewood Heights, is being observed this week.

It was on a hot June day just 17 years ago that H. H. Brooks, just out of the army, and E. C. Shatterly, just out of the navy, got together and agreed on the fact that it was tough for a fellow just back from the war to find a job.

So they made their own job by opening their own business in a little store on Jonesboro road at Lakewood Heights, on one of the few good paved highways then in existence in Georgia. They had the crudest equipment and used a hand pump to inflate the tires they patched — and tires of those days needed a lot of patching.

Today they operate the biggest independent tire and service station business in Atlanta, with 33 employes and a pay roll of $1,000 a week at the two modern, completely equipped master service stations and automotive accessory stores. The staff and pay roll are 20 per cent greater today than under NRA two years ago.

The average of salaries and wages paid is among the highest for similar enterprises in the entire United States and the 33 persons now employed have been with Brooks-Shatterly an average of five years. Every one of the employes in key positions and department managers has been promoted from the ranks and average 10 years with Brooks-Shatterly.

"Our policy always has been to pay the highest wages we could afford as one assurance of giving our customers the best service that could be given," Mr. Shatterly explained.

"We believe that policy accounts in part for the fact that we have 7,500 regular customers on our books and probably twice as many cash customers who patronize our stations regularly."

The downtown location at Spring and Walton streets was opened in 1931 and was expanded in 1934. A modern retreading plant has been opened this year at the Lakewood Heights location with a battery of five modern Flynn Collins full circle molds. Vulcanizing and used tire departments are also located at Lakewood Heights. New Seiberling tires, for which the company is distributor; U. S. L. batteries, automobile radios and other accessories are carried at the downtown location.

De Luxe Tudor Se-dan Summer Favorite

For many motorists, the Ford V-8 De Luxe tudor sedan is the preferred body type. Roomy and companionable, it has ample room for six. Both front seats tilt forward, making it easy for rear-seat passengers to enter or leave by either door. The front seats are the comfortable bucket type. A large luggage space behind the rear seat is a convenient place for picnic supplies, sports equipment or traveling bags when the great outdoors calls. The windshield opens, the cowl ventilator may be opened, and door and rear side windows turn down to give maximum ventilation. In the de luxe model, upholstery is optional in bedford cord, broadcloth or mohair. There is a choice of five body colors.

Watering Your Garden Three Ways

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

There is more than one way that gardens and lawns may be watered. That is, if you will allow us to define watering as an act of giving plant moisture regardless of the source of this moisture. Of course, the first method that comes to mind is that of watering with the garden hose, either by the use of a water sprinkler or nozzle or by the use of a hose without a nozzle, following more or less irrigation methods. Second, most commonly used, thorough, shallow cultivation from the time the ground is broken until the end of the season.

This, of course, is the method that the farmer uses in cultivating his crops. We generally think of this cultivation as a method of destroying weeds and grass, but actually, its primary purpose is that of producing a dust mulch on the surface of the soil which stops the sun from drawing moisture out of the soil into the sky. The moisture travels through the ground by capillary action and this dust mulch cuts this route off completely.

The third method is one used for lawn work, shrubbery and perennial borders, especially that of supplying fine humus material on the surface of the soil usually to a depth of one or two inches, except in the case of grass. In the case of lawns, it will be necessary to apply only about 1-4 inch of this sort of material once or twice a year.

In reading recently we ran across a concise description of surface cultivation and sprinkling. We thought these two descriptions so very good that we are passing them on to you today.

Cultivation and Watering.

Surface cultivation can be done effectively with our True Temper garden hoe or rake. The object is twofold, first, the preparation of a fine surface mulch which prevents loss of water and aids in the circulation of air; the second, it uproots and kills grass and weeds that are competing with the cultivated plants for water, food and light.

Sprinkling should be done thoroughly when done and always in the evening. Wet the soil four or five inches deep and then allow it to dry out fairly well before watering again. Many good gardeners prefer to irrigate the garden plot by removing the nozzle from the hose and permitting the water to run between the rows for an hour or two. Just sprinkling the top layer of soil does no good—in fact it does great harm by stimulating the development of feeding roots in the top layer of soil where there is great danger of their being burned during hot and dry periods. It thus prevents the growth of a deep root system that enables the plant to withstand prolonged dry weather.

Mulch Sources.

Probably the most widely used source of mulch material is that of saving leaves and other garden refuse, allowing them to rot in piles for about one year before using them in the garden. There are certain chemicals that may be used for hastening this rotting process. Another method, a little slower than the chemical method, is the use of acid phosphate. This method is recommended by the State Department of Agriculture suggesting the use of 200 pounds of acid phosphate for each ton of garden refuse. Of course, wooded material such as limbs, twigs, etc., should not be collected along with the leaves, grass and weeds.

The second source for humus material that is widely used is stable manure. This is best when taken from a stable where hay or straw is used for bedding material, rather than from one that has used shavings. The shaving rot very, very slowly, usually requiring three to four years, while the hay or straw will rot within a few months' time. This source of humus is also very rich in fertilizer and will improve not only the mechanical condition but also the chemical condition of the soil. Unfortunately there is a greater demand for good stable manure than there is a supply. Usually the price is high and sometimes difficult to obtain at any price.

Within the last five years there has grown up a steadily increasing use of granulated peat moss. This material is undoubtedly the finest mulching material obtainable in commercial circles and will absorb nine times its weight of water. Peat moss has practically no value as a fertilizer but its unusual value for holding moisture in the soil makes it invaluable for almost every garden.

Peat moss may be purchased in two grades, finely granulated and ready for use in the garden, and coarsely ground ready for use as a bedding material. From his bedding material comes one of the finest garden materials obtainable. The fact that it absorbs so much moisture, that it acts as an insulator, that it is easily handled and harmless if eaten by poultry or cattle, makes it lend itself to bedding use. Due to its fine absorbency it may be used for several weeks without changing and if this material is removed from the dairy or poultry house to the garden, one of the very best combination mulches and fertilizers obtainable is yours. In certain sections of the country its use has become so widespread that many commercial dairies are using poultry litter as a bedding material, selling this latter at very fancy prices. Due to its high absorbency it will hold certain chemicals that ordinarily leach out of manure.

It is an interesting fact to note that this material was used during the war in Europe as a dressing material for wounds, due to the lack of reasonably priced cotton.

WHAT TO DO IN JUNE.

SPRAYING—The bugs are having a big time now. Those that chew may be controlled by any of the arsenical sprays such as arsenate of lead, calcium arsenate of pyrox. The lice, flies, aphis and other sucking insects may be controlled by the use of the pyrethrum sprays, or nicotine sulphate. For the mildews, blights and black spot, Massey lust, bordeaux or volck; for bean beetles, a mixture of calcium arsenate, sulphur and lime is recommended by the department of agriculture of Alabama.

FERTILIZER—If your dahlies and gladioli are about to bloom give them an application of a good high-grade complete commercial fertilizer. If they will not start blooming for a month or more use a mixture of sheep manure and bone meal. For the vegetable garden and the cutting flowers an application of good high-grade commercial fertilizer about 12-4-4, will make them grow off quickly.

LAWNS—For best results lawns should have a monthly application of a good high-grade fertilizer followed by a thorough soaking. Patch the bare spots with a few seeds and a handful of fertilizer in each spot.

SPRING BULBS—Tulip and daffodil bulbs may be taken up and transplanted at this time, now that the tops are turning yellow. These bulbs should be dried in a cool, shady, well ventilated spot. This transplanting is not necessary.

ATLANTA MUSIC NOTES

by Mozelle Horton Young

Emory Concerts.

The Thursday night concerts presented by Emory University each summer will be resumed at 8:15 o'clock Thursday night in Glenn Memorial auditorium. Dr. Malcolm H. Dewey will be in charge of the programs. The concerts will be free, and the public is invited.

This Thursday night Margaret Hecht has arranged the program. Douglas Rumble, baritone, will open the program singing "Ombra Mai Fu," from Handel's "Xerxes," with accompaniment furnished by Bowen David, violinist; Lucien Thompson, harpist, and Dr. Dewey at the organ. Robert Harrison, violinist, will play two movements of the "Second Concerto for Violin," by Wieniawski. Patricia Makinson, soprano, will sing the favorite aria, "One Fine Day," from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly," and J. T. Pittman will be featured in three piano solos, "Etude," by Chopin; "The Fountain," Ravel, and "Campanella," Paganini-Liszt. This will be followed by two songs by Rumble, "Pilgrim's Song," Tschaikowsky, and "Die Melodien Zieht," by Brahms. The Linder String quartet, comprised of Robert Harrison, first violin; Bowen David, second violin; Georg Lindner, viola, and Thomas Hutcheson, 'cello, with Pittman at the piano, will play "Lindner's arrangement of two Debussy "Arabesques." The program will close with three songs by Miss Makinson, "Legend," Tschaikowsky; "Crying of the Water," Campbell-Tipton, and "Spring Flood," Rachmaninoff.

On July 2 the program will be directed by Earl Chester Smith, presenting George Waters, pianist, and Mary Catherine Williamson, contralto and soloist in St. Bartholomew's choir in New York. July 9 will present a program of chamber music, featuring Elinor Whittemore King, violinist; Harold Cadek, 'cellist, of Chattanooga, and Mrs. Edward Worcester Jr., pianist.

On July 16 Dr. Dewey will direct Cowen's "Rose Maiden" with four outstanding Atlanta singers forming the quartet. Minna Hecker, soprano; Mrs. S. G. Stukes, contralto; Frank Sule, tenor, and Ray Nixon, baritone.

Young Pianist Presented.

Earl Chester Smith will present Laura Shallenberger, talented young pianist, in two recitals, the first at 4:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon and the second at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday night, June 30, both events to be in Smith's studio in the Grand theater building. Both affairs are by invitation only. Miss Shallenberger is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger. Her pianistic gifts have been marked since she was a very young child and she has frequently been heard in recital, always with great success. One of the highlights of her program will be the performance of Mendelssohn's "Concerto in G minor," with Smith at the second piano. Other numbers on the program will be Bach's "Two-Part Invention, No. 9," "Polonaise in C sharp minor," Chopin; "Scotch Poem," by MacDowell; "Mazurka" and "Gavotte, both by Alfredo Barili, and "Rustle of Spring," by Sinding.

Moonlight Musicale.

One of the delights of the summer's musical season will be the moonlight musicale that will be presented in the garden of Mrs. Arthur Tuft's home on Clifton road on Monday night, June 29, and sponsored by St. Catherine's Guild of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Mrs. Edgar Neeley, chairman. Mrs. Charles Dowman will be in charge of the muscial program, which will feature the choir of St. Luke's church; Minna Hecker, soprano; Coleman Kimbro, baritone; and Eddie Drummond, tenor, in solos; the linder quintet; and Mrs Downman, pianist.

The choir will sing favorite operatic choruses, including "Rejoice, O Ye Righteous," the Eastern hymn from Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana;" "Barcarolle," from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman;" "Bell Song," from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci;" the "Priests' Scene," from Verdi's "Aida," with Miss Hecker as soloist; and "Hail, Bright Abode," from Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Mrs. Dowman will play a group of piano solos which will include "Hark! Hark! the Lark!" Schubert-Liszt; and "Rhapsody in G minor," by Brahms.

The quintet, whose personnel is Robert Harrison, first violin; Bowen David, second violin; Georg Lindner, viola; Thomas Hutcheson, 'cella; and J. T. Pittman, piano; will play three Debussy numbers arranged by Lindner, "Claire de Lune," and two "Arabesques."

Tickets should be reserved in advance, as the guest list will be limited, by calling Mrs. Tufts, Mrs. Neeley, or Mrs. Hal Davison.

Attention! Parents!

Guy Maier, nationally-known pianist and authority on musical education for children, in his "Teachers' Round Table" section of the June issue of The Etude, discusses a very vital question in music study, and presents exactly the same theory that I have always held to in regard to children's study of music. I would like for every parents, whether their child is studying music at present or not, to read this question sent in by a teacher, and the answer that Maier gives it.

The question is as follows:

"Will you please discuss the idea now being presented by some educational authorities that a child should not be sent to the piano as a part of his daily routine, but should be allowed to go only when he feels so inclined. I think it would be difficult for even a very gifted child to progress under such a schedule and impossible for a child of average ability."

And Maier's answer is quoted here:

"This question is often asked of me; and I confess that five years ago I would have agreed with the 'progressive' educators, not only on this point but on many others. In these last years, however, I have watched their pet theories fail so often that now I am vehemently opposed to all this nonsense about the child's 'inclination,' 'desire' or 'inspiration.' Up to the age of six or seven, perhaps, no regular practice routine should be determined; but after that it should be made compulsory, if the youngster shows talent. Of course, most children (and often very gifted ones) resent this; whereupon teachers and parents promptly become panicky of smothering the dear child's talent, driving him away from the instrument, making him hate music, and so on.

"Many of us contend that present-day educational systems often force an unnatural development upon our young people. And when to this hot-house growth, with its complete usurpation of the time and activities of the child, is added the evil of the canned, ready-to-swallow capsule form of modern entertainment, it is inevitable that the spark of artistic expression should often be put out. But if your child is really a talented, musical person, if he possesses the true artistic urge, even these processes will not be able to kill his zest. Nor will good teaching, regular practice or routine kill it. He will, of course, be irked, will rebel, may even temporarily hate the work. But he will very soon realize that he is being given the means to express himself in a medium which suits him, makes him happy, and gives him a new power. The confidence and freedom which come from regular, intelligent study will soon rout any of the early prejudices. (We all know how everlastingly grateful these children are in later years for the stubbornness and insistence of parents and teachers who made them work.)

"But what of the child who is not impressively gifted but who is musical and intelligent enough to learn to play? Later in life, as an adult he, too, will probably want to express himself artistically. With this in mind he should very early be taught the use of his tools. And, even if he does not accomplish wonders at his instrument, the acquiring of a technical knowledge in music will greatly help him to appreciate all the arts. On the other hand, purely as mental discipline, the study of music should stand at the top of the list for every young person. What other subject demands such sharp concentration combined with such instantaneous, accurate co-ordination of the mind and motor processes?

"Everything is made too easy for children nowadays. They need to learn that anything done well exacts hard work and intense concentration. The study of an instrument is one of the few ways left for our young people to learn early in life the necessity for this discipline. Instrumental study should be compulsory for everyone with an ounce of talent. It helps the children to a full, happy life, offers them a beautiful release for the outpouring of their emotions, in short gives them the understanding and solace of the purest art in the world. What more is there to say?"

About Lotte Lehmann.

Mme. Lotte Lehman, Viennese soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who will be heard in recital in Atlanta on October 13, a presentation of the Atlanta Music Club, has been singing for the past few weeks in London and in Paris, before taking a short summer vacation in Austria.

On the fourth and the ninth of June Mme. Lehmann sang her famous "Fidelio" in Paris under the baton of Bruno Walter, and also gave one other ever popular Lieder recitals with Dr. Walter accompanying at the piano. June 18 she returned to Vienna where she will remain until the end of June and take an active part in the Vienna June musical festival. She will sing in "Der Rosenkavalier," "Tosca," "Die Walkuere" and "Eugen Onegin" at the Staatsoper.

For the rest of the summer she will vacation in a charming house that she has rented on the shores of the Wolfgangsee, a lake about 20 miles from Salzburg. There she will enjoy swimming and walking until August arrives, and with it the Salzburg festival under the great leadership of Arturo Toscanini. Incidentally, Mme. Lehmann will complete this summer a novel she has been writing for some time, a romance to be called "Farewell to Fame." It is the story of twin sisters, one a prima donna and the other a housewife, who exchange places, with resulting complications.

Four free scholarships for organ study are offered by Mr. and Mrs. Philip Berolzheimer at the Guilmant Organ school, Dr. William C. Carl, director, for the session 1936-37. Full information regarding these may be had by addressing the secretary at 165 West 105th street, New York, New York.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By Mrs. Fletcher Pearson Crown.

Today I want to make a few suggestions about things that can and should be done in your garden now.

Most hollyhocks have finished blooming, cut the bloom stalk off at the ground, often this helps the old and would like some for another year, though it really is a biennial. Take the seed of any plant that you especially liked and plant now. The seed being fresh will germinate quickly, and with some care and attention you will have a nice crop of seedlings to bloom for you next summer. They will not, however, be like the parent plant. If you do not have any plants this year and would like some for another year, you can buy a package of seed to plant now.

So many of my plants that are supposed to bloom during July and August are now blooming. Artimesia lactiflora, hardy phlox, boltonia is budding and even a chrysanthemum. Most gardeners have a worried feeling when things like this happen for fear that a time will come later in the summer when there will be no bloom in the garden. To prevent this I am still planting seed, things that do not mind late planting.

Where my pansies are now, rather where they were, and are so rapidly passing on, I am planting sweet alyssum. This lovely little border plant is always satisfactory, but especially so in the fall. If you already have your asysssum borders blooming you can keep them sheared before they form seed, thus keeping them full of new growth and blossoms. I am also planting more marigolds. I especially like the tall African marigolds, in orange and yellow. Neither of these seems complete without the other. Then the dwarf French varieties, single and double. How would we decorate for our halloween parties without these autumn colors?

I made a nice flower arrangement yesterday. I used coreopsis and orange flare cosmos, together with some salvia farinacea and creamy white pansies with little blue faces. I really think that the pansies did the trick, and I am wondering what I will do without them for that little touch to arrangement when the last tired plant has been pulled up.

Brookhaven Club.

Brookhaven Garden Club met recently at the home of Mrs. Hub Huddleston on Peachtree View. Mrs. J. R. Harris was cohostess and the chairman, Mrs. J. R. Wright, presided. Mesdames Charles Cadora, Uhl Jameson, D. K. Palmer and R. T. Sills were received as new members. Mesdames J. H. Newton and J. D. Parrish, of Boltonbury, S. C., were visitors.

Mrs. Hub Huddleston read a paper on the origin and culture of nasturtiums and presented each member with a small pot raised from seed. The door prize was received by Mrs. Ira Pelfrey.

Mrs. J. J. Stevens and Mrs. John O. Owen will be hostesses to members and their friends at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Stevens on Tallulah street on Tuesday, from 12:30 until 2 o'clock. For reservations call Cherokee 2090. The July meeting will be at the home of Mrs. S. Grogan on University drive.

How many four-letter words can you make by using the letters in BRIDE? You should get at least six. (Answers next Sunday.)

NO TREAT.

"Did the doctor treat you yesterday?"

"No. He charged me $3."

MODERN MARY.

Wife (reading): It says here they have found a sheep in the Himalaya mountains that can run 40 miles an hour.

Hubby: Well, it would take one of that sheep's lambs to follow Mary nowadays.

COLD BUNK.

Snorty: "My uncle had a fire in his popcorn bin the other day. The corn popped and flew all over the country."

Joe: "That too bad."

Snorty: "But that isn't the worst of it. His cows thought it was snowing, and froze to death."

WINDOW BREAKERS.

Teacher: Correct the sentence, "Before any damage could be done, the fire was put out by the volunteer fire brigade."

Boy: "The fire was put out before any damage could be done by the volunteer fire brigade.

SURE METHOD.

He: Know how to tell a he-bird from a she-bird?

Him: Nope. Give up.

He: Pull its tail. If he chirps, it's a he-bird. If she chirps, it's a she-bird.

"READ JOHN 3:16."
BY ELIZABETH WALLACE OWEN:

When grief and saddness come your way;
And you are lonely all the day
When there's no one on whom to lean
Read in your Bible John 3:16.

When you think you're completely lost
And practically out of lifes scene,
Don't give up hope!
But read—John 3:16.

No matter what kind of life you've led
No matter how many books you've read
No matter what kind of grief you've seen
And if you want some consolation
And you want a true salvation
Read John 3:16.

You Can Enjoy Thrilling Water Rides When You Build Your Own Aquaplane

By RAY J. MARRAN.

The most common pleasure derived from an aquaplane is a thrilling ride on some lake or bay while being towed by a fast motorboat. Unfortunately, few boys and girls have friends with motorboats so they can enjoy the sport. But that doesn't prevent you from having fun with an aquaplane at your favorite bathing beach.

Aquaplanes are easy to construct. Merely nail together two 1-inch or 2-inch boards, 12 inches wide by 5 or 6 feet long, with four cross cleats as shown in the sketch. Saw the front end of the boards into a circular shape. Then hand plane and sandpaper all the edges and the top surface of the boards, to prevent slivers from snagging bare feet. Paint the entire plane with several coats of good quality outdoor, waterproof paint.

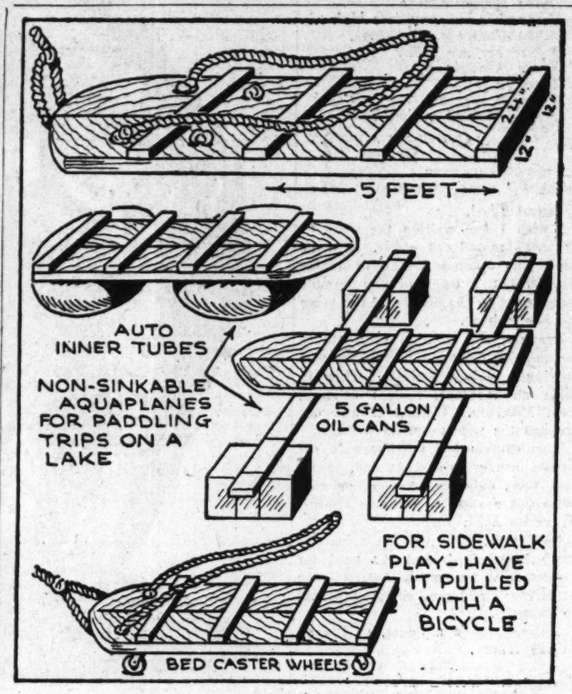

Attaching the Ropes.

To hitch an aquaplane to a motorboat, the attaching bridle is knotted in holes bored directly behind the first cleat, so that this rope is underneath the plane, and not on top. The handhold rope is knotted in holes bored directly in front of the first cleat so that this rope is on the top side of the plane.

To ride behind a motorboat, the tow line is attached to the underside bridle which, when speeding through the water, pulls the front end of the plane up and makes the plane skim over the surface. The rider stands with his feet behind the third cleat, holds on, and tries to maintain his balance by hanging on and pulling on the hand-hold ropes.

Behind a speedy motorboat, riding an aquaplane gives a person about all the thrills and spills he may expect, and then some. Where no motorboat is available, you can still have fun with an aquaplane by just floating on it and paddling with your hands.

To make the plane nonsinkable, so you can navigate in deep water, you can mount two old auto inner tubes to the underside of the plane with strips of canvas tacked to the wood, and ride the plane astride, paddling with your feet.

Then four watertight oil cans, of the five-gallon size, can be used to make a nonsinkable catamaran, by securely wiring the cans to the ends of two 2 by 4s, as sketched. A plane rigged in this manner may be made into a type of sailboat by erecting a mast and unfurling a mutton-leg sail.

Around home, a small aquaplane is easily turned into a four-wheel scooter by attaching bed casters, or roller skate wheel trucks to the underside. Have a friend tow this dry land plane with his bicycle. You may get a few spills, but you will get some thrills and will soon learn the knack of balancing around curves.

Egg Pancakes Are Father's Day Dish That Pleases Betty

By BESSIE E. EARLE.

Betty tiptoed downstairs early Sunday morning. Dinah sat blinking in her little chair on the kitchen table. "Aren't you early?" she asked, as she stifled a yawn.

"Yes. It's Father's Day, and I want to fix a nice breakfast for Daddy. First, I want to gather some white lilacs for the breakfast table."

When Betty returned to the kitchen, the sweet flowers filled the room with their fragrance. Dinah, who was wide awake by this time, was ready with a recipe for egg pancakes which pleased Betty very much. Noiselessly Betty prepared the surprise breakfast and set the table. She was very happy indeed when her daddy came downstairs, as hungry as a bear, and was delighted when he ate his share and more of the delicious breakfast. He declared to Betty's joy that he was very proud he was the father of such a fine little cook, and wished Father's Day came oftener.

Egg Pancakes.

1-4 cup flour
1-4 teaspoon salt
7 tablespoons milk
1 egg

Put flour and salt in mixing bowl, add gradually the milk and stir until smooth. Beat egg until fluffy, add to batter and continue beating until light. Cook like pancakes, using two tablespoons batter for each cake. When cake is full of small bubbles, turn cake to bake on other side. Do not use too much grease to fry cakes. When cakes are done, spread with jam, roll up and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve with tiny sausages and apple sauce.

SO THAT'S IT?

"Who is that fellow with the long hair?"

"He's a fellow from Yale."

"Oh, I've often heard of those Yale locks."

Mastery of Backhand Break Delivery Should Lift You Out of Novice Class

By WARREN F. ROBINSON.

Putting the ball into play in tennis, or "serving," is so important to good playing that a great deal of attention should be paid to it by the novice. There are three really essential ways to serve. They are:

1. The Forehand Break Serve.
2. The Straight Serve.
3. The Backhand Break Serve.

Of these services, the backhand break serve will probably give you more winning games and sets and more real pleasure than any other way of getting the ball into motion. The "Old Master," Bill Tilden, than whom there has never been a greater player, brought this serve into prominence and used it with wonderful success. Its proper use will stamp you as definitely out of the "dub" class of player. It is sure-fire against most novices, and real menace to a good player.

The grip: Place your racket on its edge propped up by books on a table, handle towards you. Your palm is now placed upon the top of the butt and you "shake hands" with the racket.

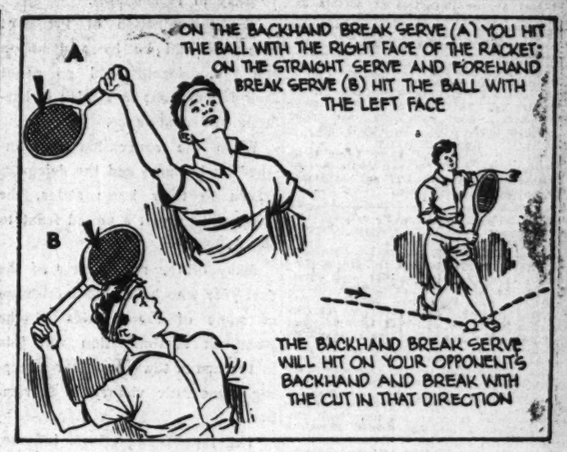

How Ball Is Hit.

The ball is to be struck with the right-hand face of the racket later, not with the left-hand face. To serve the ball, take your position at the base line on the court, toss up the ball with the left hand, as usual, swing the racket down, back, and up from behind over the right shoulder. Try to hit the ball at the top of the swing, strike down and to the left, finishing by a sweep by the left knee and to the left rear.

If properly struck the ball will strike on your adversary's backhand and "break" with the cut in that direction. This being the weakest side with most players, it gives you a big advantage. The serve will seem "unnatural" and difficult at first, being much harder to execute than the easy and usual right-hand break serve in which the ball is struck with the left face of the racket. But once mastered, it will add greatly to your pleasure and skill.

The straight serve is rarely tried by amateurs because it appears so simple that they think it childish. Yet this same service, with speed and accuracy, was known to Tilden admirers as the famous "Cannonball Service!"

Shake hands with your racket as in the backhand break serve. The ball is to be struck with the left face this time. Toss the ball up as usual, swing as usual, but when you hit the ball, drive it straight for the spot you want it to hit, swinging forward and down past the right knee without any "cutting" or twisting. Just hit it straight and true. With variation in speed it is a fine serve for placements.

The forehand break serve is the easiest to learn, and because it gives an excellent "cut" or break upon striking the ground, it is used extensively by novices. Against a poor player it wins because of the excessive cut. Against a good player it usually fails, because he takes it on his strong forehand drives it to your backhand corner for the point!

However, by mixing it in judiciously with the other two serves, it has its place in any player's game. Grip the racket as before, and plan to hit the ball with the left face. Hit the ball after a full swing as before, and finish the stroke down and to the left. The ball should break sharply to the opponent's forehand.

Comparing these services to the pitching of a baseball, the forehand break is like the outcurve, the straight serve like a fast ball, and the backhand break like the incurve pitched to a right-handed batter.

Secret of the Summerhouse — By W. Boyce Morgan

SYNOPSIS.

Responding to a secret summons from his sister, Betty, Bill Saunders, accompanied by his roommate, Tuck Tucker, goes to the lonely home of his Uncle Joel, where Betty lives. They find Betty terrified by Captain Gregg, an old friend of Uncle Joel who has recently returned from the jungles of Africa. With Wambi, his huge black servant who was once a tribal witch doctor, Captain Gregg has interested Uncle Joel in some weird pagan religion, and has him completely in his power. The rites of the fantastic cult are held late at night in the summerhouse. Bill and Tuck pay it a secret visit and Wambi follows them. But they get back to the house in safety, after hearing the roar of an underground stream which flows beneath the summerhouse. Uncle Joel appears more natural the next day, and seems to be throwing off Captain Gregg's influence, which enrages the captain. Betty feels sure there will be another session in the summerhouse that night, and Bill is worried because Betty's nerves are obviously cracking under the strain.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Beat of the Tomtom.

By noon that day the clouds that Betty had noticed piled up behind the near-by hills, launched a torrent of rain. It rained all afternoon, and the atmosphere of the lonely old house seemed to grow more tense and ominous with every passing hour.

Betty, Bill and Tuck passed the time as best they could in the library. Betty was nervous and jumpy, and once when Wambi appeared suddenly from the hall, she was barely able to choke down a scream. Bill and Tuck watched her with concern in their eyes, and purposely refrained from discussing the situation, for fear that they might alarm her further.

But when they finally went to bed that night, Bill immediately spoke to Tuck about Betty.

"We've got to get Betty out of here," he said determinedly. "I hate to go away and leave Uncle Joel to the mercy of those two men, but Betty's in bad shape, and she's getting worse all the time. She's simply freightened to death—and I don't blame her."

"Neither do I," Tuck replied. "But the point is, how can we get her away? Will Captain Gregg let her go? I know it sounds ridiculous to say that Betty is a prisoner here—in America, in the twentieth century. But as a matter of fact, she is, simply because to Captain Gregg and Wambi, this isn't America, but the African jungle."

Bill's face had darkened at the mention of Captain Gregg. "It's up to us to figunre out a way to get her out of here," he said. "We'll talk it over tomorrow. Maybe we can all leave after the house is quiet tomorrow night. They wouldn't discover our absence until morning, and by that time we could be out of their reach."

The two boys fell asleep with the sound of the rain on the roof beating steadily in their ears. It must have been several hours later that Bill stirred restlessly and awakened. At first he thought he had been having a bad dream, for his nerves were tingling with alarm and apprehension.

Then gradually he realized that he had not been dreaming. The rain had become merely a light patter on the porch roof, and as Bill sat up in bed he heard a sound that was not the rain. It brought him sharply awake and he shook Tuck violently.

"Tuck!" he whispered fensely. "There's something going on down in the summerhouse!"

Tuck was awake in an instant. Together they hurried to the window, where they crouched, shivering in the denly a wild cry rent the night air. Through the misty rain they could make out the dark bulk of the summerhouse down the slope. A faint light was stealing out through the cracks of its boards.

"Listen!" Bill breathed. From the summerhouse, low and muffled, came the regular, pulsing beat of a tomtom. Endlessly, over and over again, its throbbing measure was repeated. Bill felt his scalp prickle, and he saw that Tuck's face was strained and set.

Then gradually, ominously, the tempo of the drum's beat increased. Faster and faster it came, and suddenly a wild cry rent the night air. Bill clutched the window sill until his fingers ached, and Tuck's lips breathed a low, tremulous whistle.

"Boy!" grasped Tuck. "It gets you, doesn't it?"

The drum had stopped for a moment after the wild cry, but now it started up again, slow and muffled as before. With an impulsive gesture, Bill jumped to his feet and slammed down the window.

"If I listen to that very long, I'll go loony!" he cried.

A noise behind them caused them to leap around. The door of their room was flung open and Betty, her dressing gown clutched around her, burst into the room. Her eyes were staring with fright. She saw Bill in the dim light and flung herself toward him.

The door of their room was flung open, and Betty burst in.

"Bill! Bill!" she cried wildly. Bill caught her and held her firmly. She tried to say something, but could only cling to him, shuddering.

"Steady, Betty," said Bill, patting her shoulder. "Don't let it get you, now. Just keep a tight hold on yourself!"

Betty was sobbing. "I can't stand it! I can't stand it any longer!"

"You won't have to, Betty," Bill said quickly. "We've had enough of this. We're getting you out of here tomorrow. Aren't we, Tuck?"

Tuck added his words of assurance. Then Bill said, "Now, you go back to bed, Betty. Put your window down so you can't hear those crazy fools down in the summerhouse. Stuff the pillow in your ears if that will help. Go back to sleep, and quit worrying. Tuck and I will have you out of this place before you know it."

Betty calmed down a little. "But Uncle Joel," she protested. "They've got him down there again. What's going to happen to him?"

Bill evaded the question, and took Betty back to her room. He kept talking to her, and she felt better by the time he left her. But his mouth was set grimly when he returned to Tuck.

"That settles it," he said flatly. "Betty's liable to crack up any minute. Let's get some sleep, Tuck. We'll have a lot of planning to do in the morning."

But in the morning, Betty did not appear. They waited for her downstairs, until Bill began to feel uneasy. Then she dashed up the stairs and knocked on the door of her room. There was no answer. He flung the door open. Betty lay in her bed, apparently sleeping soundly.

An awful fear gripped Bill. He dashed across the room and leaned over her. Then he uttered a sigh of relief. She was breathing, steadily and deeply.

He turned, about to tiptoe from the room, but his eye fell upon a glass of water, almost empty, which stood on the table by her bed. He regarded the glass suspiciously. Strange that Betty should be sleeping so soundly at this hour in the morning!

To Be Continued Next Week.

Editor's Eagle Is Killed in Quebec After Long Fight

By HORACE MITCHELL, Pet Editor.

News has just come in, folks, that the eagle about which we had quite a little information in this column some months ago, has been found again. As you may remember, when this eagle was in the big cage at our place, we put a band on its leg. The band, especially for eagles, came from the bird-banding division of the biological survey at Washington.

Well, after we liberated the bird, he stayed around town all winter, being fed with beef scraps thrown out by the neighbors, and being tormented by the crows every time they sighted him. Then, in the spring, the eagle disappeared.

We thought he might come back, and two or three times reports came in of an eagle being sighted in this vicinity. But nobody could be sure whether or not it was our banded eagle.

Travels to Canada.

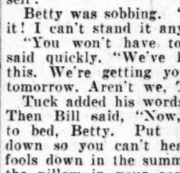

Then came a post card from the biological survey, which said that an eagle bearing the leg-band we had put on this one, had been shot on October 22, 1935, by H. Panet, at Richelieu Village, Quebec, Canada.

That is all of 300 miles away from where I live. How, or why, or when that bird reached Canada is more than we know. Probably it flew there. I'd like to find out when it started, and when it arrived. I should think that any bird with such tremendous spread of wings could easily enough have ridden the wind north.

The eagle is dead. Now we wonder what other unusual pet will be brought to us. No matter what it is, boys and girls, we'll tell you about it.

If George Washington was such an honest man, why did they get the habit of closing the banks on his birthday?

Saving for Something

You have probably been told very often that you should learn to save money. That's good advice, of course, but there are two difficulties about following it. First, you have to get the money before you can save it, and, second, there are so many things to do with every cent after you do get it that saving isn't easy.

Thousands of words could be written about ways for boys and girls to earn money, but right now let's consider the keeping rather than the getting. We'll suppose that you have a little money coming in regularly, and ask ourselves how you can hang on to some of it.

Immediately we can give you one important rule about saving, and that is: Save for something! It doesn't matter what the object is, but the more you want it, the easier it will be to save. If it is something you want much more than the little things that take your money now and keep you from saving it, putting the nickels and dimes away will be so much the easier.

The advantage of saving in this way is that it forms the habit, and later on you'll be able to save a lot more easily.

ON THE RADIO WAVES TODAY

Baker and Sunday Evening Hour To Give Final Broadcasts Today

Errol Flynn and Una Merkel To Be Heard on Programs.

By SAMUEL E. CLARKE.

Phil Baker will bring to a close his "Great American Tour" with the final broadcast of his current series to be heard over WGST at 6:30 o'clock tonight. A feature of the program will be the comedian's induction into the Texas Rangers, as the show is dedicated to Dallas and the Lone Star state centennial.

Phil will resume his kilocycle kidding early in the fall, but while he is vacationing the popular musical comedy team, Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, will take his place starting next Sunday. Hal Kemp and his musical organization, as well as announcer Harry Von Zell, will remain in New York to be heard on the new series during the summer.

One of the interesting results of the Baker series, which saw him hit a new popularity high, has been Phil's development of Agnes Moorehead into one of radio's most competent comediennes. Heretofore she has been known as a capable, straight dramatic actress, although she originally got her start as a vocalist.

As to vacation plans, Baker, accompanied by Beetle, Bottle and Miss Moorehead, will play five weeks of vaudeville before beginning their real holiday. The tour will include engagements in Philadelphia, Cleveland, Akron, Chicago and Milwaukee. Early in September Phil will appear as guest of honor at the Indiana state fair at Indianapolis.

SONGS OF RUSSIA.

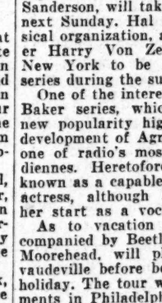

The Heifetz Singers under the direction of Vladimir Heifetz featured with Emery Deutsch's Concert orchestra, will be heard during the "Songs of Russia" broadcast over WGST at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Their program will open with the of stirring male chorus from Act II of Borodin's opera, "Prince Igor," followed by the orchestra playing Savasta's "Valse Slave." The Heifetz Singers will also offer a shepherd's love song entitled "Good Fellow," "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms," and in conclusion an amusing novelty called "Grotesque," a descriptive piece in which three Russian soldiers catch cold and offer a satire on a Spanish serenade.

Emery Deutsch's orchestra will play Glinka's "Kamarinskaya," Tschaikowsky's "Ch ason Triste" and a "Russian Song" by Kopyloff.

PICKFAIR'S FINAL BROADCAST.

Errol Flynn, Una Merkel and Allan Jones, prominent screen players, will be Mary Pickford's guests on the final "Parties at Pickfair" broadcast of the current radio season, to be heard over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight. Both Flynn and Jones have appeared on previous "Pickfair" shows, and are returning by popular demand.

ALLAN JONES.

Allan Jones is the concert and screen baritone who sang "Show Boat" melodies in Pickfair program two weeks ago, along with Charles Winninger. On this Sunday's broadcast, he will sing appropriate songs to introduce the "Smiling Through" sketch, and also will combine his talents with those of Una Merkel, blond screen comedienne, in an original comedy piece.

AGNES MOOREHEAD.

Flynn, the gifted young Irish actor who scored a hit in his first American picture, "Captain Blood," will be heard with Miss Pickford in a dramatization of "Smiling Through." Recently, he was featured on the "Pirate Night" broadcast of the Pickfair show, and proved so popular with radio listeners that Miss Pickford recalled him to the program.

SUNDAY EVENING HOUR.

Jose Iturbi, Spanish conductor and pianist, will be the guest soloist with the symphony orchestra and chorus conducted by Victor Kolar to be heard over WGST at 8 oclock tonight. This program will bring to a close the present "Sunday Evening Hour" concert series.

Kolar will conduct the orchestra and chorus in the opening number, Bach's "Ein Feste Burg." Then Iturbi, accompanied by the orchestra, will play the first movement of Beethoven's Concerto No. 3. Later Iturbi will feature a Spanish composition, the "Spanish Dance" in E minor by Granados.

Other selections prepared by Kolar will include Dvorak's "Humoresque," Komzak's "Girls of Baden," the overture to Wagner's "Tannhauser," and as a final number with chorus and organ, Dyke's familiar hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy."

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 21, 1936.

THE END OF THE SESSION

The country will breath a sigh of relief with the adjournment of congress, and that the inevitable uncertainty of congressional tinkering is over for six months at least.

The congress had a difficult job, but it devoted itself to its strenuous, and often disagreeble, work in an earnest and, in most instances, skillful manner.

There will, of course, be general regret that there was necessity for an increase in taxation, but there was no other alternative after the enactment of the bonus bill over the President's veto. Such action was necessary to provide the more than a billion and a half dollars required for the bonus payments.

The President was right in insisting that congress provide the necessary revenues for this purpose, even though it meant an increase in the tax burden.

With the conclusion of its work, the country will know what to expect, at least until next year. The removal of the uncertainty as to what was ahead, even though heavier taxes must be shouldered, will bring a definite increase in confidence and a further stabilization of conditions.

Before congress reconvenes next January the question of the presidency for the ensuing four years will have been settled. The prospect now is for the certain re-election of President Roosevelt.

With the reassembling of congress, the administration will no doubt concentrate its efforts toward reducing governmental expenses and the balancing of the budget. Just as soon as this is done, and the public knows that the huge governmental deficit is to be steadily reduced, instead of increased, business will go forward by leaps and bounds and the country will enter an era of prosperity that will equal, if not eclipse, that of the closing years of the past decade.

With the conclusion of the work of congress, The Constitution takes occasion to commend the splendid service rendered by the Georgia delegation during a session in which experience, ability and unselfish devotion to the public welfare were vitally necessary controlling factors in reaching decisions affecting not only every section but every person in the United States.

No state in the union has a stronger or better balanced delegation in congress than Georgia, a fact that is emphasized by the leading part played by the state's representatives not only on the floor of the house and senate, but in committee conferences and party caucuses.

Under the seniority rule, the service of the Georgia delegation in the next congress will be even more valuable, since with every change in the house and senate membership, more important committee assignments are automatically given to the hold-over members.

No congress was ever faced with a more difficult task than the one which has had to solve the unusual problems confronting this session.

All things considered, this congress dispatched its obligations to the best advantage. While all of the public will not approve all the measures adopted, the work of the session must be measured by the average of what has been accomplished and, considered on that basis, the public will approve.

A UNITED DEMOCRACY

Not since the nomination of Grover Cleveland in 1892 has a democratic convention faced such unanimity of thought and purpose as the one which will convene Tuesday in Philadelphia.

The renomination of President Roosevelt will be by acclamation and the delegates will go about their deliberations in a spirit of harmony and confidence.

When the convention has finished its business and the delegates return to their home states, the party will present a united front to the opposition.

Many of the recalcitrants of the past year who have voiced criticism of some of the policies of the Roosevelt administration will join in the march toward another sweeping democratic victory in November.

The republican platform indorses many of the policies which have led to the sharpest criticism of the democratic administration. Thus for dissatisfied democrats to go over to the republicans would be tantamount to jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

Business is in better condition today than it has been for many years, and this is true in every state from Maine to California.

The farming interests of the country are prospering to a greater degree than since the World War.

It will be difficult to convince the cotton farmers of the south, the wheat farmers of the west, the cattle and hog raisers of the country, or the producers of any kind of agricultural products, who are now getting twice as much for their output as they did when the Roosevelt administration went into office, that their interests have not been wisely and ably served.

If this rehabilitation of agriculture, industry and trade was not brought about by the efforts of the democratic administration, then to what is it to be attributed?

Certainly it cannot be credited to anything the republicans have done. They went out of office in March, 1933, leaving a trail of wreckage and ruin behind.

Gradually the fragments of our collapsed economic structure have been brought back together and fitted into a safer and sounder edifice.

No sooner was the democratic administration in office than swift and definite steps were taken to save the fast collapsing banks of the nation and start the construction of a sound financial foundation for a new and better national economy.

From then until the present time the recovery program has moved along, not always smoothly, but without a backward step until the nation is now entering once more into an era of prosperity.

It is not strange that the democratic administration, having done so much in lifting the country out of the depths of its worst depression, should be enthusiastic at this week's convention of the party.

PHILIPPINE DEFENSES GROW

The sound progress being made under the direction of General Douglas MacArthur toward the creation of defense forces capable of protecting the Philippines from attack when the islands are removed from under the sheltering wing of the United States is revealed in news dispatches from Manila.

The favorable reception by the Filipinos of the program devised by General MacArthur, who was "borrowed" from the United States by the commonwealth government, has resulted in more speed in its development than was anticipated.

The first step in the program called for the registration for army service, the desired figure being placed at 109,000. Instead of this anticipated registration nearly 150,000 young Filipinos signed for examination for army service.

As a result, 40,000 men of the class of 1916, the largest number possible under the budget limitations, will be called to the colors in 1937, and each succeeding year until the top limit of the planned standing army is reached will see more young men than was anticipated going into the defense service of the island government.

Acceptance boards are now being selected as the next step in the process of inducting the citizenry for military service. The process started with the drawing by lots of 80,000 men on May 15 and is being received with general enthusiasm, especially among the young people.

To assure skillful pre-military training in the schools, 3,500 teachers were called for preliminary courses on instruction in April. The reports from the training centers established in the various provinces record not only success for this feature of the defense program but beneficial results with respect to the individuals concerned.

Instead of being easy prey to any strong attacker, the Philippines will, if the defense program devised by General MacArthur is carried through to its ultimate end, be practically invulnerable. The program calls for a compact, well-trained and equipped army, so mobile both in the air and on the ground as to make the landing of hostile armed forces in the islands so costly in men and materials as to be practically impossible.

No better selection could have been made by the commonwealth government than General MacArthur to outline a program for the islands' defenses and to direct the consummation of the work. As chief of staff of the United States army, General MacArthur made an outstanding record and it is not surprising that his efforts in the Philippines are meeting with such marked success.

CHANGING RUSSIA

Announcement that in November the dictatorship of Russia will promulgate a new constitution, granting to the people wider rights of citizenship, may come as a surprise to the average person; but those who have watched the progress of bolshevism from the time the czaristic regime was overthrown observe still another recession from the original doctrines of Vladimir Ilyich Ulyanov (later known as Lenin), whose mummified body reposes in a glass case for the people to worship.

In July, 1919, Lenin told the workers and peasants: "Between dictatorship of landlords and capitalists, and dictatorship of the working class, there is no middle class. So the dictatorship of the proletariat becomes the dictatorship of the single person, a superboss and industrial autocrat."

Lenin was that "super-boss and dictator" during his lifetime, to be deified after his death in 1924. Lev Davidovitch Bronstein (known to the world as Trotsky), Joseph Vissarionovitch (Stalin) and half a dozen others aspired to the dictatorship. Stalin won out, Trotsky was exiled, and the others subsided.

The Utopian "paradise" of the proletariat had trouble from the very start. Fired by the high-flown theories of the communistic leaders, ignorant workmen seized manufacturing plants, elected officers, voted themselves advances in pay, and then brought wheelbarrows and sacks to carry away their retroactive salaries.

Peasants took over estates of the rich and seized lands of their landlords, and in their ignorance thought that was all necessary for a life of opulence. Through the travail of official murders, hardship and misery of the people, it finally dawned upon the dictator that the much-decried "capital" was an absolute necessity, and invitations were sent out guaranteeing protection to such interests as would assist in bringing order out of chaos.

Skilled mechanics by the hundreds were imported from America and other countries to instruct the ignorant workmen and supervise agricultural production.

The new constitution is said to provide for guarantee of freedom of speech, press, employment and religion; establish two parliamentary bodies and give Russians the right to elect part of their officials by secret ballot.

This is, in effect, acknowledgment that the bolshevik communist program is a failure.

It is but a few years ago that the marriage relation became by edict of the dictator a mere sham for relations of men and women; children were wards of the state, to be brought up in regiments, taught that Lenin was God and bolshevism was religion. Conditions became so horrible that the dictator had to rescind that section of his program.

Less than ten years ago Russians, practically all of whom were adherents to the Greek Catholic church, were forbidden to practice their religion; churches were destroyed and cathedrals used to store grain and stable horses. Now the people are promised religious freedom.

Promise of freedom in employment must sound strange to a people who for nearly 20 years have been told where to work, how long and how hard. Women as well as men; ailing, frail or able-bodied—all had to work under cruel taskmasters—or starve, and thousands did perish under this edict of the Utopian dictator.

Freedom of speech and the press has been suppressed since the day that Lenin assumed the dictatorship; the G. P. U. snoopers hunted in secret for any who dared air his sentiments, and prison or death was the fate of any accused, the evidence always being against him.

The motive behind this move on the part of the dictator and his lieutenants is plain. Theoretical bolshevik communism does not work out when put to the test of practical operation. The five-year plan failed; and it failed when the period was extended. All Russia knows this, and the older workmen and peasants know they are worse off than they were under the czar. The younger generation has received some education, and with that education they have become wise enough to see through the sham of the entire system.

Another "five-year plan" period would have been resented with uprisings that would seal the doom of the dictatorship. But with the promise of rights that belong to citizens of a free country, the toiling masses will wait to see if they are fulfilled; if not, the "greatest experiment" in theoretical Utopianism will fall, and with it come another welter of blood in the name of better government.

GREAT BRITAIN'S DILEMMA

Daily developments indicate that the British attitude with reference to the League of Nations sanctions against Italy, as recently expressed by Sir Anthony Eden, and as approved by the cabinet, will materially contribute to easing the war strain in Europe.

It was a difficult but a courageous thing to do for her foreign secretary to announce to parliament that Great Britain had reversed its attitude and that he was convinced now that the wise course to pursue was the adoption of a conciliatory attitude toward Italy. No doubt the British cabinet was enabled to reach this conclusion by the threatening situation at home.

For Great Britain to have continued in its demands for sanctions would have provoked hostilities with Italy, certainly in the Mediterranean area, and Great Britain realizes the fact that she is in no condition at this time to go to war.

With practically every nation of continental Europe feverishly rushing rearmament and increasing the man power of their armies, Great Britain is confronted with a state of affairs that has aroused the war ministry and given new chills to the governmental powers.

Britain's present army strength is scarcely 100,000 men, a mere fraction of the huge conscripted armies being built up on the continent, and at that it is approximately 70,000 men short of the peacetime basis.

Volunteers for the army, navy and air forces have dropped to a low level, and a recruiting campaign conducted by Minister of War A. Duff Cooper has been so unproductive and has met with such stiff opposition from pacifist organizations, anti-war agitation in the churches and universities, and among sons of the men who died in Flanders 20 years ago, that it has been found difficult to keep the defense forces up to the minimum of strength.

"It is a solemn fact that at the present moment this country is really not in a position to take part in a war," declared Cooper, "and we are faced with a powerful campaign by the people in this country who are doing everything in their power to discourage young men from joining the services. It is a new situation and one we have got to face if the country is to be defended and its ideals preserved."

Large groups of students at Cambridge and Oxford universities recently voted that they would prefer to go to prison rather than enter a war, while pacifist groups are debating whether they should continue to pay income taxes, especially since the new additions to these are used expressly for rearmament.

Talk of conscription is already being debated in inner councils, and the order might issue at any time.

So, after all, Great Britain has undoubtedly adopted the wise course in dropping the demand for sanctions. Now if that great country will be as busily engaged in convincing her associates in the League of Nations that they should follow her in her changed position, as she has been in insisting that they support her demand for sanctions, war clouds will lift and the first step toward European peace will be taken.

As a minimum wage for minors is held unconstitutional by the high court, tots wishing to be in the money must remember to be born in sets of five.

The G. O. P. may find comfort in this: Oscar Wilde promoted the last great sunflower craze in this country, in '88—and Benjamin Harrison was elected.

SILHOUETTES

BY RALPH T. JONES.

Thank you, Lord
For my father,
Keep him, guard him
With tender care;
He deserves it so,
All that's lovely
In this life
Is none too good
For—my father.
All the years
He's worked for others,
Forgetting his own needs
And desires;
Remember his bowed head
In silent prayer
When sorrow came;
Remember his shoulders high
When disappointment came.
Remember my father
Brave through all,
Through joy,
Through sorrow.
Please remember him, God.

JANNELLE JONES.
Elberton, Ga.

Wish I'd Written That.

I wish I had written the verse to "Father" reproduced above. I don't know who Jannelle Jones, of Elberton, is, but I want to pay humble compliment to the beauty of the verse she has written.

Frankly, the creation of a rhyme to head this column this morning was proving a serious problem. Then in came an envelope, special delivery, from Elberton. Opened it and out dropped the verses you have read.

This column has now been in existence nearly two years and, in all that time, only once before has anything but a verse of my own appeared at its head.

This time, however, the submitted verse is so good, and the need for assistance was so great, that all I can do is use it and send sincerest thanks to Jannelle.

Anyway, she's a Jones, so it's all in the family.

Unsung Heroes.

I am inclined to think the ranks of fatherhood number more unsung heroes than any other classification of humanity.

It is all very well to sanctify the institution of motherhood, but, after all, there is much to be said for the institution of masculine parenthood.

For, if you think of it, in the ordinary course of events the mother's way is made as easy as possible through the care and the protection and the sacrifice of the father. Isn't that so?

When things start going wrong, emotionally, in the average home, who is it, by steadfast sanity and firm grip on reality, who pulls the whole family back to normalcy? Why, nine times out of ten, father.

Who is it, when real trouble comes, to whom every one looks for comfort and cure and solution of the woes? Everyone, not only the youngsters, but mother too. Why, father.

Who is it that goes without scores of things he really should have, things that include rest and peace of mind as well as new clothes and private pleasures, in order that the smallest wishes of the kids may be fulfilled? Why, father.

The Old Man
Deserves Acclaim.

Nobody seems to think the simple fulfilment of the duties of fatherhood involves the exercise of qualities that deserve the medals of a hero.

But, I ask you, isn't it easier to be a spectacular hero during five minutes of excitement, than to plug along, giving everything you make to your family, submerging your own personality for the family well-being and seeing all the financial fruits of your labor going to make life easier and smoother and pleasanter for them?

Isn't monetary heroics easier than a lifetime of unselfish sacrifice? And, in many instances, doesn't it take superlative manhood to forego a chance for personal fame because it is essential that you keep grubbing along in the little job which, while perhaps not so remunerative, yet is sure and which means food and shelter for the loved family? Because, for their sakes, you dare not take the chance?

There's lots to be said for father.

Let's say it today because it is Father's Day and let's say it every day just because father is always such a grand person.

The Big Show
Is Getting Under Way.

Georgia's favorite entertainment, the recurrent political campaign, is fast getting under way. Stumps are already in demand and throat sprays are selling fast in our drug stores.

Speakers are sprouting at every crossroads and there isn't a village so small it can't boast of a past, present or forthcoming political speakings.

In another month the hills and valleys will resound with the oratory of the seekers after public office and the well-being of the people will be so emphasized the average man will begin to think he is really someone of importance.

And there will be the usual tense excitement until the final vote is counted and that feeling that all will be right with the world if Jim So-and-So is elected, whereas the universe is tumbling fast to ruin if Jack Such-and-Such gets the most votes.

These political years are a combination of a mild form of general insanity and a hunger for artificial excitement, for a game in which we can all play a part.

Many a one-gallused loafer who stagnates in innocuous idleness for all the other months, stirs himself into excited participation in a political race or two during campaign years. It is good that he does, because otherwise he would probably rot away with his own physical and mental inactivity.

Well, may the best man win and may the result bring better existence to the average man. That is my prayer. As to who is the best man, I contend none of us really know and we must leave it, like all other important things in our brief lives, to the Omnipotent Father, the God who alone knows the secrets of politicians' hearts and the convolutions of the organs office-seekers, like us all, call brains.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, June 21, 1911:

"New York, June 21.—The new White Star liner Olympic, the largest steamer afloat, passed Fire Island on her maiden voyage across the Atlantic at 12:17 a. m."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Monday, June 21, 1886:

"Judge Aaron Hardy, of Early county, is now in his 84th year. He is yet quite active for his age, attends regularly his church meetings, and was until last year a justice of the peace, which office he filled for fifty-three years."

'Come on Now, Bolivar—Get Liberal!'

New York Skylines

BY CHARLES ESCOURT

NEW YORK, June 20.—You think it is a silly business to sit all night at a cafe table, drinking drink after drink and watching your neighbor. No doubt, it is, but it's a way of life for a lot of people, and the "events" of a typical night go something like this.

The huge, florid, ballooning tower of a man who insists on wearing spats with his evening clothes and who goes around town with out visible means of support except that he introduces himself as "the Baron," sits down and says: "Don't look now, but if you look over in the far corner you'll see somebody you ought to remember."

You look and you remember. No one knew quite who he was or where he came from or what he did, but he had been "around" a lot. Then suddenly he had disappeared and you had heard that he had passed some bad checks. You had heard that from Lady P. . . . who had been quite stormy and threatening about it.

People are starting to drift up to his table. They shake his hand, say, "where have you been keeping yourself?" and, "I'm glad you're back." People like to forget. People like to put things behind them. By the time he and Lady P. begin threading their way to the dance floor, heads are raised everywhere and eyes peep covertly from every table and there are plenty of people who crowd out on the floor to eavesdrop on the conversation and bring it back. "Then she said, 'But I can't understand how anyone like you would do such a thing?' and he got rosy all over and said, 'All right, I was foolish. I was very hard up.' And then she laughed and said, 'You have been a very naughty boy.'"

You see him, tall and imperious and beautiful looking, well bred physically and in manner, following gay and lovely Lady P. to her table, bowing low and smiling his thanks. And you see her suddenly, surprisingly shake his hand as if in goodby and see him slip a note into his pocket. And there are plenty of people who were near by and who saw and are ready to tell you that the note Lady P. gave him was a $100 note.

Marjorie Freed comes in very nicely at this point, tall and fine to look at with her velvety skin and coiled mass of brown hair, one of the town's rising young designers. Don't tell me about money grubbers," she said. "This afternoon I got $1,000 in small bills on Thirty-fourth street and had to get it to a bank of Thirty-eighth street to make good on a check. I had five minutes before closing time.

"A taxi couldn't make it through Eight avenue traffic and I started to run. Not three steps later a taxi clipped me gently and sent me and my $1,000 sprawling across half the avenue. People from everywhere were handing me back my money. I didn't have time to count it. I just stuffed it into my pocketbook and began to run again.

"A policeman caught up to me. 'I've got to make the bank,' I said. 'I'll go with you,' he shouted at me. 'You can't tell who saw you putting all that money into your pocketbook,' I guess it looked like millions. It was in ones, fives and tens. Well, when I got inside the bank I counted it. It was all there. Not one among that crowd of good Samaritans had taken even a teeny-weeny ten-spot."

Laughter rises like a flight of birds, in swoops and flutters, and the steady beat of the music comes through it like wind blowing. Waiters rushing by with silver-domed dishes, bottles sloshing in buckets of ice and fowl steaming on tables, incense for the dilated nostrils of the fat.

Somebody named Stein or Stern—a pale and beak-nosed youngish man whom Broadway calls "The Sable King"—comes by and sits down and stares wearily at his glass. He remains silent a long time and then abruptly he starts:

"He says to me, 'You're a judge.' I'm a judge? All right, so what do I judge? 'You're a judge in an amateur contest.' Say, what I know about judging you can put in a midget's thimble. But I sit in the sponsor's booth and judge. A few minutes before the broadcast he comes to me with three names on a paper. 'These are the ones who should win. They've got to win. They're already booked for 20 weeks of picture houses.' 'Looka here,' I say, 'am I the judge or what?' 'Listen,' he says—my friend says, my pal says—'these win or I'll break your neck.' He's laughing, but you think maybe he doesn't mean it? Ah, it's all the same everywhere. They put your name on the radio. They give you a big build-up. You're the judge. They blow you up fine. And they think that's enough. Everything's a racket. Nothing's clean."

The Test of Orthodoxy.

Every age, and well-nigh every group, has its "orthodoxy." It means a right statement of words. In religion it is a creed, or a statement of interpretation. It becomes the religious standard, and is apt to become the religious authority, if backed by the "powers that be."

There is a justification in this instinct of human nature to rear its religious standards. Men must think correctly before they act correctly. There is always danger in the demand from the so-called practical man for immediate action. It is the danger of doing things blindly.

However, the danger of establishing an orthodoxy is, that you set up some infallible standard, and deny that any other truth may be discovered, which may change or modify this standard. It is well enough for each age, or each generation, to have its orthodoxy, that is, to think out its own religious problems, and make its own statements of faith. But no age should presume to impose these creeds upon a succeeding generation. Each age should use the experience and thought of the preceding ages, and by this light form its own judgments.

The Test.

And there is a test by which every creed, or doctrine may be tried for its orthodoxy. Will it work? The modern world has discovered this principle of testing the theories of men, in every department of practical life. It has called every abstract theory out of the libraries and classrooms, to meet the test of the laboratory. We have learned by experience not to accept that popular saying that something "might be right in theory, but wrong in practice." We know now that if the theory is right, it will work.

So we need no longer resist the demand made that this same test shall be put to the Christian religion. If, for example, an entire age should reject a certain teaching of Christianity as being impracticable, before we indict the age, we had better re-examine the interpetation of religion. Just here is where the teaching of organized religion has so often failed. It has formulated some intellectual statement of religion, and then simply asked for an intellectual assent. Too often this intellectual statement has been utterly at variance with the experience of life. Then we have wondered at the skepticism of the outside world.

Jesus, the founder of our religion, placed here the emphasis of His most vehement protest. He said, it won't do to merely say "Lord, Lord." And when one glibly recited "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thy self." Jesus replied "This do, and thou shalt live." I think he was saying, that it is not enough to say that you accept Jesus Christ as Lord and Master, but adds "This do, and thou shalt live."

Of course, there must be a philosophy of religion, just as there must be a philosophy of everything. It is always well to have a reason for one's guidance. There is a philosophy of music. "Thorough base" and "harmony" should be known by musicians, but to pause here would be absurd. Men cry "do it." There is a philosophy of mathematics, but if it stops with signs and symbols it would merely be an intellectual exercise for those who are curious about puzzles. So religion, if it stops with statements about the being of God, and the person of Jesus, becomes a tragic absurdity.

Religion and Life.

When Jesus told that exquisite story of the "Good Samaritan," the lawyer to whom he was speaking, asked in a helpless sort of way, "Who is my neighbor?" "Neighbor" to him had been a mere abstraction. It was like an "X" which equals an unknown quantity, by which he worked out a religious problem. So Jesus, to many people, is a religious sign which equals an unknown quantity. When the church says, "Jesus is the Son of God, the Savior of the World," the answer is, "I believe." But can that faith be worked into daily experience, of solving problems, and bearing burdens?

Jesus took this abstract question of religion and translated it into terms of problems familiar to men's daily life. To the lawyer's puzzled question, "Who is my neighbor," He replied: "You know that dangerous road to Jericho?" Of course, he knew it, because he had been over it many times. So we must learn to say to men, "you know such and such a neighborhood of your town, with its dangers and its needs," and then say, "thou must love thy neighbor." In the language of today, we must "get religion across." Across that horrid gulf which has been dug between the "sacred" and the "secular." And this must be the test of the "orthodoxy" of any interpretation of the religion of Jesus.

Sees Non-Partisan Election in Next Fall's Balloting

Editor Constitution—The patriotic, nonpartisan appeal of Senator Norris, a republican leader, for Mr. Roosevelt's re-election strikes right to the heart of the spirit that so obviously motivates the President's campaign. The unshakable confidence of the people in him lies in their firm conviction that it is their cause and not his own aggrandizement that enlists his high, strenuous, devotion of soul and body as even such political opponents as know him must in all honesty admit.

They must also acquit him of lust for power. A searching analysis of all his acts and methods will reveal that he was and is completely obsessed by the levelling urge, the equalizing of advantage and opportunity of this great people, who having abjured and escaped the thrall of monarchy were groaning under the growing and equally intolerable oppression of an aristocracy of wealth.

With that dry rot at its core the days of this greatest of all nations were numbered. It was headed for revolution and dissolution. Not imminent, but deadly progressive. Wholly enthralled by this noble concept of a great reform and concurrently confronted by the country's threatened financial collapse, he subordinated to the situation such of his platform promises as obstructed his program, and boldly charted his course, the wisdom of which has been duly vindicated and will inevitably be indorsed at the polls in November.

This will be a nonpartisan election. Whether or not it will be so nominated on the hustings, the people bid fair to take their case over the heads of politicians and it will be one verdict of, for, and by the people, and so nominated in the bond. President Roosevelt will be accorded opportunity to round out his humane and comprehensive program, and the ship of state will sail on from there, on even keel to the complete fulfillment of her great destiny. Compared to such proud achievement, political parties are, by the people, apt to be regarded as nonessentials this good year of 1936.

Suspicious Brazilians Refused Ice Shipment

Editor Constitution: I notice on your editorial page this morning an item in regard to a cargo of ice being shipped from Boston to Calcutta in 1833.

This brings to my mind a story of how my grandfather, John T. Mansfield, about this same time sent a shipload of ice to Pernambuco, Brazil, where he had served as consul for a number of years. Knowing the need of ice down there he sent a whole shipload down as an investment, but the people of Pernambuco were suspicious of it, and would not allow him to land any of it, so it all melted on the ship in the harbor and was a total loss to him.

Of course ships in those days were small, and I notice the ship which carried ice to Calcutta only carried 180 tons, one-third of which melted on the way. I do not know how much ice my grandfather succeeded in getting to Pernambuco, but in any case he was not allowed to land a pound of it, on account of the feelings of the authorities there.

Restoration of Hapsburg Throne Would Bring New Threat of War With Many Nations Involved

Italy and Yugoslavia Would Almost Certainly Grapple, Feels Van Paassen.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN,
European Correspondent of The Constitution.

PARIS, June 19.—Heavily charged war clouds suddenly concentrated over central Europe with the news leaking out that Mussolini is mobilizing troops on all his frontiers. All public school buildings and large public edifices are being vacated in the border districts of Italy to make room for soldiers. Officially this is explained with the statement that room must be found for the homecoming army of Ethiopia. But that army has not even started back for Europe, nor is its task finished, while measures are being taken to keep the Italian soldiers in Ethiopia as settlers.

Before the month of June is over Europe's foreign offices expect a coup d'etat in Austria. Most likely an attempt will be made to restore the Hapsburg dynasty. Signor Mussolini, who is the only head of government to be accurately informed as to the date and the hour by Chancellor Schussnigg, is taking measures to counteract any hostile demonstration which the return of the Hapsburg may evoke on the part of Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania.

The government of Yugoslavia announced a month ago that it remains unalterably opposed to a restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria and that the return of Archduke Otto to the throne of his fathers would mean a prompt invasion of Austria by the Yugoslav army. The Yugoslav army, it might be said in passing, is the fourth strongest in Europe, coming after the U. S. S. R., Germany and France. The Italian army has better equipment but is by far inferior to the Yugoslavs in fighting qualities.

Other Nations Queried.

In the beginning of May, I learn, a secret circular was sent by Chancellor Schussnigg to all Austrian ambassadors instructing them to inquire of the governments to whom they are accredited what their attitude is at present to a restoration of the Austrian monarchy. The ambassadors were informed for heir own guidance that no attempt would be made to bring Archduke Otto back until the end of the Ethiopian campaign, in other words not before Mussolini should have his hands free to act in support of the move.

I am most reliably informed that the month of June has tentatively been set for that coup d'etat, which will almost certainly throw the whole continent into confusion, if not worse, and most likely just at the moment when the League of Nations is in session. Italy will at that moment assume the role of policeman to maintain peace at the borders, that is hold Yugoslavia in check, and therewith hopes to gain the gratitude of the League to have the economic sanctions lifted.

If this comes to pass, as I say, it should not be forgotten that the policeman in this case, is also the one to stage the raid.

The motive for the restoration of the Hapsburg is as follows insofar as Chancellor Schussnigg is concerned: The growth of the nazi movement for a union with the Hitler reich is getting beyond his powers. The only way to save Austria from being gobbled up by Berlin is to restore the empire and have the people rally around Archduke Otto as a symbol of national unity.

Berlin is not opposed to the restoration and this represents an entirely new attitude on the part of the nazi chiefs. Berlin would regard the restoration of the Hapsburg as a distinct blow to England and especially to France, for it would, if successfully carried through, be a constant menace to Frances' allies, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Rumania. Moreover, Berlin hopes to come to an agreement with the Hapsburg by concluding a close military and economic alliance and make Austria a virtual vassal state, supplying it with the necessary war equipment and so separating Yugoslavia definitely from Czechoslovakia.

Once that is done, Germany expects to deal with Prague alone.

Suggested By Vatican.

The newspaper "Ere Nouvelle," in Paris, which is generally well informed on the Italo-Austrian situation, states that the plan of the Hapsburg restoration was suggested by Cardinal Pacelli, the papal secretary of state. Austria and the Hapsburgs are, as is well known, the pet proteges of the Vatican. In view what is happening to the Catholic church in Germany, it is not strange that the Vatican should like to see Austria out of danger of becoming a province of Hitler's Germany. If there is trouble, that is to say if war breaks out, the Vatican's hope is that the Catholic provinces of Yugoslavia, known as Slovenia, will be detached and be made an "independent" state under Italian sovernity.

Mussolini's own calculations go further ahead. If the Hapsburgs can be restored without war, he favors a union of Austria and Hungary. The restored Austro-Hungarian empire ar an ally of Italy, would bring unbearable pressure to bear on Yugoslavia, of which territory both the duce and the new Austrian emperor covet chunks, leaving Belgrade nothing but the old kingdom of Serbia. Bulgaria, already Mussolini's ally, also has claims on Yugoslav territory. Great issues are at stake with the Hapsburg restoration.

France, with Leon Blum at the head of the government, is not expected to be in any hurry to intervene in a central European squabble, although Yugoslavia would make a demand for assistance and would mobilize herself.

Chancellor Schussnigg went to Rome on June 4 to discuss the plan with Mussolini. Archduke Otto and his mother, the Empress Zita, are staying in a country villa near Florence. Yugoslav divisions were reported to have been ordered out for maneuvers on the Albanian borders on June 5.

Holds Teachers' Pay Cuts Can Be Restored Through Sweeping Program of Economies That Would Not Lesson System's Efficiency

For five years, rather than sacrifice any part of our modern system of education, Atlanta Board of Education employes have suffered much larger salary reductions than any other group of city employes, in the hope each year that the next year the revenues would be sufficiently increasedto restore at least a portion of the heavy cuts. Each year they have been disappointed. As a result, their financial condition is deplorable. With the rising cost of living many have been unable to meet their bills, and some have been forced into the toils of the loan shark and the salary buyer.

They see the depression lifting for others but deepening for them, and they do not see any hope for the future unless some drastic remedial action is taken soon.

Every thinking person will agree, I feel sure, that the efficiency of a school system may be said to be directly proportional to the morale of its teachers. As a result of their financial status and the apparent lack of a plan to remedy the situation, these teachers are distressed; their morale is at an extremely low ebb

The children of Atlanta are bound to suffer from having an unhappy, disillusioned, embittered force of teachers.

What is the remedy? $750.00 more revenue every year for the school department or a school program trimmed three-quarter million dollars is the answer. Perhaps some more money could be obtained and some curtailments made. The people should decide which they prefer.

In the event curtailment is necessary, there are many places where a few hundreds or a few thousands of dollars might be saved, but in addition to these minor savings a major operation would be necessary.

Eliminating one full year from the last six, i. e., from junior and senior high schools, plus cutting the kindergarten period to one semester, would effect a tremendous saving. We still could have one-half year more than the Fulton county system offers.

I would recommend also that all losses in personnel for any reason whatsoever be cared for by absorption and reassignment, and that no new employes be taken on until all salaries are restored in full. This alone probably would save $50,000 to $60,000 a year.

Any loss to the system through curtailment would be more than compensated for by the increased efficiency of the teachers brought about by their restored morale, a natural result of restored salaries.

That you may compare for yourself the salaries of highly-trained teachers holding college degrees with those of some other city employes in this city, I am attaching a sheet showing net salaries now paid to high school teachers, policemen, firemen and elementary school teachers. School employes are cut as much as 38.7 per cent. All other city employes have a mixmum cut of 10 per cent.

*Teachers entering the system between 1928 and 1934 are from one to three years behind on this schedule. The schedules for policemen and firemen were not suspended.

These increases are granted only if a certain amount of summer school work in the field in which the particular teacher specializes is taken after the M. A. degree has been earned. Few teachers can afford to go to summer schools to earn these increases or increments, as they are called. It requires from three to six years for the increment to repay the outlay necessary to earn it.

Father's Day.

e twenty-first of June is here.
And it's a day we can't forget,
r it's Dad's Day,
e we should not neglect.

e are just thinking of you today, Dad,
All of our thoughts are for you;
e, what a "pal" you have been to us,
With a devotion deep and true.

e are wearing a rose today—
The most beautiful one we could find—represents the best Dad ever,
As there is only one of your kind.

ways there with a pat on the back,
And ready to go the limit;
ur time you never count your own,
But for us you give every minute.

e wonder if we appreciate you, Dad,
As much as we really should;
we'd only think of your sacrifices,
We most surely would.

y we live a life to measure up
Just what you would have us do;
d bring more happiness into your life,
For we certainly owe it to you.

those of us whose Dads have passed away
And their memories in our hearts entwine, join with those whose Dads are with them today,
And thank God for all—your Dad and mine.

—GEORGE W. BOSMAN

Dad.

Never went to congress,
Nor sailed upon the sea,
Hasn't made a million yet
As far as I can see;
Ain't cleaned up on Wall Street
As has been done by some.
But say, he's raised a family
That you bet'll make things hum.

There have been mighty emperors
That ruled their land in state,
And by the verdict of the world
They have been strong and great;
They are high-handed methods
That an emperor employs,
But he spreads his influence
Through a healthy bunch of boys.

Some politicians rise to fame
Through noise and showy deed.
But seems to me its good
Old solid ploddin' that we need.
When it comes right to a showdown
Ans the cards are all in sight,
The "example" kind of influence
Is the one that wields the might.

He's kept the ball a-rollin'
Through smilin' years and thin,
An' somehow each December
Santa always came again.
Maybe he met disappointments.
Maybe days have oft been drear,
He has met them all and gladly
For the ones to him so dear.

Maybe some men surpass others,
Some be great and others small,
But when pomp and show is ended
And there comes the final call,
And I go to meet my Maker,
I'd feel better if I had
Here on earth sung the due praises
Of a real successful Dad.

The Happenings of The Church World

By HERMAN L. TURNER,
Pastor, Covenant Presbyterian Church, Atlanta, Ga.

The Christian Century editorially comments on "Baptist Solutions for World Problems": "When the Baptists of north and south got together in St. Louis for a series of five union sessions between the adjournment of the southern and the beginning of the northern convention, the theme that dominated all the addresses except that by Kagawa—who doesn't seem to fit very well into any prearranged program—was "The Historic Baptist Principle." Two principles were brought to the fore in the first session "The Historic Baptist Principle of Liberty," and "The Historic Baptist Principle of Regeneration." Having claimed liberty and regeneration as something peculiar to the Baptists, the program committee let it rest there and the remainder of the sessions were occupied in applying "The Historic Baptist Principle" to various missionary, political and social questions, notably nationalism, race relations, economic justice and peace. Most of the admirable addresses were kept only with grave difficulty within the denominational framework that was thus supplied for them. Some of the speakers had to dragoon Baptist principles by sheer violence into the discussion to satisfy the program committee. It was hard for them to refrain from being simply Christian. There were not enough distinctive Baptist principles to serve their purpose. The best speeches dragged anchor most often and drifted from their denominational moorings toward the open sea of those principles which are the common possession of all who take the gospel of Christ seriously. This harping upon ancestral principles is denominationalism's favorite indoor sport—and most destructive mistake. This whipping up of a flagging sectarian loyalty by the repetition of ancient shibboleths has in it an element of unreality and is divisive and outmoded. What is most distinctive about our sects is generally least important. In so far as historic principles are Baptist of Methodist or Presbyterian they have little or no contribution to make toward allaying the ills that now afflict mankind. There is no Episcopalian or Methodist cure for nationalism, racial prejudice, economic injustice or war. There is a Christian cure, and it would be well to forget sectarian emphases and unite in proclaiming it.

"While small groups here and there are satisfied to contend for divisive policies in church relations, the current of Protestantism is toward unity," according to The Presbyterian Banner. "The church has gone as far in the realm of individual freedom as it will go and now turns back to the unity of the gospel as set forth in the Reformation doctrines that gave birth to the Protestant movement." The Presbyterian Banner editorial states that "the program of Methodism in America toward union gives momentum to the movement." Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, president of the Council of Churches of Christ in America, in a widely circulated interview says: "It seems to me that this process toward church union can be attributed to these growing convictions in the Protestant world: (1) The financial depression has made it necessary to curtail expenses and eliminate needless competitive budgets, though I regard this as a minor influence. (2) The realization that the Christian social order, whether one thinks of peace among nations or justice to workers, or elimination of racial hatreds, cannot be brought about by groups of social idealists, unless great masses of people can be enlisted. (3) The feeling that religious leaders cannot urge on political and national leaders the fellowship of people until they demonstrate the uniting influence of religion. Prophetic leaders in advocacy of social righteousness may be courageous and vigorous, even to the point of suffering martyrdom, and bring about little change unless they can win the support of enough people to effect a change. Some of them are beginning to feel that their fight is hopeless unless they can get a large body of Christians to back them. If Protestantism could unite its forces for the things that are permanent and essential, it would make an impression and succeed in destroying some evils of our contemporary life. It may be that the way to the kingdom of God on earth lies through the building of a really great Christian fellowship in this world as the creating nucleus of the kingdom."

Dr. D. P. McGeachy, pastor, First Presbyterian church, Decatur, Ga., in his special correspondence to The Christian Century, reporting the happenings of the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church U. S., recently held in Augusta, Ga., makes the following comment regarding proposals for reunion with the U. S. A. branch of our common Presbyterianism: "Dr. Vance, the moderator from the other side of the line, spoke to us as did Dr. Speer, of the northern board of foreign missions. Of course greetings were exchanged even as felicitations were received from every possible corner of the earth. All this might have meant less than nothing in the way of any real union. At the most these were but straws in the wind. The real facing of the question came in connection with several overtures asking directly for a merger. There was not a great deal of debate but it was clear that the assembly was of a divided mind. Then came the suggestion that a special committee take the various propositions and overnight try to work out some solution. There were those of us who expected little and who were amazed to find the next day that this committee made of divisive elements was coming in with a unanimous report that at least set the matter open for discussion in 1937. And there without a moment's hesitation the assembly left the whole business. There were liberal-minded men who did not want any sharp debate at this assembly. There were scores of others who favor union but who do not believe that it can be forced. A thoroughly satisfactory committee will bring in some suggestions a year from now and something may come of that. It was interesting to hear one of the older men of the body say that he was confident that if Dr. Palmer and Dr. Thornwell had been in Philadelphia in 1861 no division into northern and southern would have occurred. This well-informed brother insists that these two strong southerners would have combined with men like Dr. Charles Hodge, of Princeton, and that among them the split would somehow have been avoided. Possibly so, but we face the stubborn fact that the split did occur and splits in Presbygterian ranks are not easily healed."

Young people want a heroic religion, says a Salvation Army leader in Great Britain. He believes that a revival of religion, which is said to be just around the corner, will be started by the young people.

Faults of National Government Pointed Out by Voters of America

Unlimited Spending Power Brings More Protests Than Anything Else.

By DR. DANIEL STARCH,
Director of "Polling America," National Research Organization.

Lack of any limit on the spending power of the federal administration heads the list of American governmental faults in the public mind, as disclosed to our interviewers in the latest Polling America study. Unfit officeholders is a close second, with polltical corruption less than 2 percentage points behind in third place.

The question asked a country-wide cross-section of the people was:

"What do you think are the two most serious faults or shortcomings, if any, of our national system of government?"

The chief defects, ranked in order of the percentages of persons interviewed who mentioned them, were named as follows:

1. No limit on spending power.	11.6%
2. Poor qualifications of office-holders	11.0
3. Political corruption	9.3
4. Spoils system	8.6
5. Government interference with private business	6.5

Twenty per cent said the American system of government had no structural faults, although many in this group were quick to explain that while the system was perfect and the best in the world there was plenty to be said against our way of operating the system.

In fact, the defects mentioned by nearly all of those interviewed properly could be classified as faults of administration rather than as objectionable features of the system itself.

Concern Over Federal Spending.

People concerned over federal spending have been staggered by the increase of close to $15,000,000,000 in the public debt during the last three years. "It's a terrible shame to saddle all this debt on our children," exclaimed one housewife in Carbondale, Pa. She and other women were more disturbed than men; 13.6 per cent of the women interviewed mentioned the need for a limit on federal spending, compared with 9.5 per cent of the men.

This "unbridled spending," as it was termed, was feared chiefly because of the increased taxes which may result. Many said that if they were going to be forced to dig so much deeper into their pockets to satisfy the tax collector, then they wanted more to say about how tax money is spent. "There is too much taxation without real representation; the common people have no say," declared a Denver citizen. Some demanded that appropriations should be more carefully earmarked; others thought that excessive expansion of the budget should require a popular referendum. There was also some criticism of the way federal money is disbursed, particularly on the ground that white collar workers do not receive their share of benefits.

Qualifications of Officeholders.

Most of the 11 per cent who mentioned lack of proper qualifications by officeholders attributed this evil to the feeling that government jobs do not generally pay enough to attract the ablest men, and to a general belief that places in the public service are awarded on the basis of party or factional fitness rather than on fitness for the job. This was mentioned as the greatest defect by 13.3 per cent of men and 8.7 per cent of women.

"Why can't we have master minds in our government as we have in industry and trade?" asked a Hackensack (N. J.) school teacher. An engineer in Crystal City, Mo., added: "Politicians aren't elected on account of fitness, but are helped along if they co-operate with someone whose support they want." It was felt that many government jobs demand skill and training, but that they are awarded merely as political plums.

Political Corruption Third.

Our national system of government fosters political corruption, in the opinion of 9.3 per cent of all persons, the women being slightly more concerned than the men. On most subjects under this general question, opinions of men and women were about equally divided.

A Scranton (Pa.) refrigerator salesman put it, "There is an immense amount of corruption in politics which everyone deplores but too often accepts." A patent lawyer in Indianapolis thought that men in public position are tempted to use their office to their own personal benefit. Others said that under our present system it was possible to obtain office by shady deals. One said, "I'm afraid the dole is another form of permanent graft."

Spoils System Deplored.

Both political corruption and the attainment of public place by those poorly qualified was blamed by 8.6 per cent on the "spoils system." They criticized in the spoils system not only the spoils made up of patronage, preferments and favors legally dispensed, but also the use of office illegally for personal advantage, the various forms of which once were trenchantly characterized by President Cleveland as "the cohesive power of public plunder."

Views on this subject were expressed in many different ways. "There should be carry-overs in the personnel of government, instead of a complete change every new administration, resulting in chaos and too many appointees," said a St. Louis insurance agent. "Whenever a party gets going the other party is voted in and everybody loses his job, whether he's been good or not," declared an electrical engineer. The postoffice was mentioned as an illustration of the functioning of the spoils system.

Support for Merit System.

It was suggested that a wider application of the merit system in the appointment of government employes would be a corrective measure. "Civil service should be instituted for all government jobs," said a Boston meat inspector.

Others said that where civil service laws were already in effect they should be more vigorously enforced. It was felt that this country would benefit from a staff of permanent under-officials, such as is characteristic of the English government. One person said that this would raise the standard of our government personnel, since "the people at the head of our federal government are not nearly so dignified or cultured as English statesmen."

In this connection it is noteworthy that the platform adopted by the republican convention this week pledges the party to the merit system, declaring, "It should be restored, improved and extended." Also it will be recalled that a bill was introduced in the senate on May 27 which provided not only for placing all postmasters under civil service after January, 1938, but further proposed the extension of the civil service to positions in the executive branch of the government now exempted by law. The bill makes an exception in the cases of employes of temporary agencies.

Party System Criticized.

The American party system was criticized by 4.3 per cent of those interviewed, although they were not very specific in favoring any other system, such as the multi-party system of France or the submergence of parties in a dictatorship. They felt, however, that the strife between the parties in this country wastes much time and effort which might better be devoted to a better conduct of the nation's business.

Slightly more than 1 per cent said that the desire of parties to retain power and position fostered the development of bureaucracies.

Control of Business.

Fifth in importance as a defect was government interference with private business. This was mentioned by 9 per cent of men and 4 per cent of women, an average of 6.5 per cent of both. There were direct accusations that the New Deal was attempting to socialize business, resulting in a lack of co-operation between government and industry which is detrimental to the interests of both.

"There are too many restrictive laws affecting business," said a San Francisco lumberman. "Government should keep its hands off business entirely," maintained the manager of a liquor store in Berkeley, Cal.

On the other hand, there was a group of 3.6 per cent which declared that the government had not done enough to socialize business and control monopoly. "Big monopolies should be under government supervision," said a Chicago clerk. A Seattle salesman put it, "There is no occasion with our bounteous supplies of food and goods for suffering from unemployment. This could be corrected by the government taking over large projects in industry. Private industry has fallen down." A Californian said that banks, railroads and munition companies in particular should be controlled.

Unemployment Relief.

Closely allied to this position was the demand that the central government do more to relieve unemployment. "Vast expenditures with so many still on the relief rolls" were lamented. It was felt that the plight of the unemployed might be alleviated if "confiscatory taxes should be placed on tremendous fortunes," in the words of one housewife. Other means of effecting a redistribution of wealth were also suggested.

However, many were not hesitant in saying that they thought relief not only ineffective, but also that it was wrong in principle, unjust, and tainted with politics. Boondoggling was criticized, and there was a demand that relief be turned over to the states.

The same proportions (2.9 per cent) of people who criticized the relief functions of government, also criticized its alleged subservience to special interests. They felt that legislation was controlled to a large degree by business interests, and suggested that antitrust laws should be enforced. They pointed to lobbying as one phase of this sort of influence.

Power of Executive.

Concentration of power in the executive was mentioned by 5.9 per cent, placing it sixth in importance as a fault of our government. The fear was expressed that such a trend might lead to a dictatorship. "We are drifting toward a dictatorship and should take stronger measures to prevent it," declared a citizen of Richmond, Va. A specific means suggested of clipping the chief executive's power was to limit his ability "to plunge us into debt."

Some 3.4 per cent criticized the method of electing the President. Other groups, none as much as 2 per cent of the total, suggested variously that the President possesses too little power, that the presidential term is too short, and that there is not enough centralization of power in the executive branch of government.

Power of Supreme Court.

Some persons, evidently objecting to the way in which the supreme court has been paring away the New Deal, said that the court has too much power. This percentage was 4.3, made up of 5.8 per cent of the men and 2.7 per cent of the women. There was the opinion that not only was the court vested with too much power, but that also there was too much time between the passage of legislation and a ruling by the court on its constitutionality.

The lack of advisory opinions on legislation of doubtful constitutionality was also criticized. "The court system is too long; the decision on NRA should have been given sooner," declared one citizen.

Some felt that progress is barred by the constitution, in that its provisions are anticipated and its powers not broad enough to cope with present problems. A Minneapolis man said, "The constitution was designed for 13 states. It isn't adequate for 48." A few maintained, on the other hand, that the constitution was too easy to change, and that there were too many amendments.

The constitution does not provide sufficient curb on the New Deal, in the opinion of 2.8 per cent of the people with whom our interviewers talked. Not only was such criticism directed against the New Deal in its entirety, but against the brain trust, alleged communist ideas, and the destruction of crops.

Government Called Unwieldy.

There were 4.6 per cent of men and women who said the government was cumbersome and unwieldy. They declared that "red tape" made it difficult to get prompt action, and that this was contributed to by the large size of congress. A Minneapolis merchant declared, "The number of people in the house of representatives should be lowered. With such a large number they can't get together." Speaking of governmental machinery generally, a southern woman maintained, "Its machinery is too complicated for the understanding of the average citizen."

A percentage of 3.7 persons said that the democratic form of government is inherently weak. They mentioned its inability to plan as industry plans. Excessive politics in congress makes the government too little responsive to the public will and facilitates minority control, it was contended.

The Federal union is also unsatisfactory in that there is too little centralization, in the opinion of 2.7 per cent. Lack of uniform state laws, lack of co-operation between states and the Federal government, and the small voice of state governors in national affairs were also mentioned.

Electorate and Law Enforcement.

A substantial proportion of those interviewed, 5.3 per cent, said that laxity in law enforcement was a conspicuous shortcoming of the system of government. They mentioned too many laws and too little enforcement, caused in some degree by the political appointment of judges.

Ignorance and indifference of voters also came in for mention. A Seattle salesman suggested that it be made a criminal offense to fail to vote. Another suggestions was, "Standards of citizenship are too low."

Many other shortcomings were mentioned and they have been grouped in the miscellaneous classification, constituting the opinions of 10 per cent of those interviewed. The danger of sectionalism was prominent in this group, it being contended that "congress is composed of people with interests only in a special locality. There is no national point of view." Other subjects included unequal state representation and inadequate provision for recall of elected officials.

Many Find No Faults.

Of the 20 per cent who had no fault to find with our national system of government, 22.3 per cent were women and 17.6 per cent were men. Some gave a blanket approval, such as "Our government is a lot better than what they have in Italy and Germany and even in England, for that matter" or "If there were anything vitally wrong with our form of government it wouldn't have lasted so long as it has."

The viewpoint of a large group was expresesd by one citizen when he said:

"All our difficulties are administrative, due to poor handling by incompetent people."

Faults of National Government.

Dr. Starch's interviewers asked a cross-section of men and women in the United States the following question: "What do you think are the two most serious faults or shortcomings, if any, of our national governmental system, or government?"

Below is a tabulation of the answers. The percentages do not add to 200 per cent because all persons did not mention two faults.

Why the Three Years Seemed So Long

Editor Constitution: The keynoter of the republican party at Cleveland kept on repeating "Three long years!" I reckon it does seem like three long years since they were sucking at the public tit! Thirsty and hungry office seekers, they are! C. E. WREN.

Atlanta, Ga., June 19, 1936.

Heart Throbs.

DIVORCE COURT.

Behind the heavy curtains of this stately hall of justice the devil smiles, and nods his grotesque head in approval, at every marriage tie that is sundered. Standing dejectedly, leaning wearily on his tiny bow, his shaft on the ground, the arrows scattered, his golden head bowed in dark despair, Cupid waits, with all the love of his little heart ebbing away.

See these wrecks of sorrow drifting in; listen to their sordid tales, written across the pages of each shattered life; and through it all runs a crimson thread of deceit and shame. Some are young; across their faces as fleeting as a summer cloud a smile breaks now and then quickly to be replaced perhaps by a sneer of defiance; their facial expressions are only to keep back a flow of tears welling up from a broken heart. Others are old; across their haggard faces are written all the lines of sorrow and time; the silvery threads are commencing to mingle with the gold.

What a picture of pathos they present. Once all these shipwrecked mariners set sail under fair skies. The water over which they all embarked held scarcely a ripple. But hardly had the harbor been left till some encountered the ragged reefs of ill-temper and misunderstanding; desertion and drunkenness. Some were lured onto the treacherous shoals by siren songs as sweet and melodious as those that tempted Elysious. No wonder the frail barque of love could not withstand such assaults as these. But the divorce court grinds on and on—three hundred on the calendar and a like number on the waiting list. No wonder the Devil lurking beihnd the rustling curtain smiles and the little God Cupid weeps at the sight of it.

It was sultry in the courtroom
And the usual crowd was there—
Some of them had been subpoenaed,
Most of them had come to stare;
For the evidence presented
Would be interesting of course
To the morbid and the curious
As the cases were divorce.

The first to be presented
In this stately court of law
Was a girl dressed rather shabby
Who had seen life in the raw;
She spoke about a marriage
That had lasted just a year,
And the charges were desertion;
Down her wan face ran a tear.

The next was dressed in satin
Of the very latest style—
Across her lovely features
Lurked a rather sneering smile.
She told about a temperament
That couldn't blend with hers,
And she wanted alimony
At about five hundred per.

She was followed by another
Who was busy chewing gum—
She told about a hubby
Who had driven trucks of rum.
But the G-men must have got him
For the next thing that she knew
He was living at the Big House
To be there a year or two.

The next one was a lady
Who declared that she was wed
To a husband who was meeting
Some Jane who's hair was red.
She told about some letters
That she'd read by hook or chance,
And they gave her what she wanted
And thus ended her romance.

This is not a pretty story
But it is absolutely true—
Three hundred ties were severed
And they weren't near half through.
Just whither are we drifting
In this craze for quick divorce
Where the courts are always crowded
By the morbid folks, of course?

Early Leaders Opposed Party Conventions As Giving Voters Too Much Influence

By WILLIAM C. McCLOY.
(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

NEW YORK, June 20.—National conventions for the purpose of naming candidates for the highest offices in a government are purely an American institution. The "Founding Fathers" never dreamed of such assemblages. Indeed, had such an arrangement been proposed to the men who framed the constitution, it probably would have been rejected with indignation.

Even after the original method of selecting a president and vice president had been demonstrated impracticable and the convention system put in operation, many eminent statesmen expressed their disapproval—notably Daniel Webster and John C. Calhoun. These objectors contended that the national convention gave the rank and file of voters too much voice in party management.

The original method of selecting a president and vice president included both nominations and elections. According to James Wilson, Pennsylvania delegate to the constitutional convention, it was the most difficult question that faced the delegates. More than 30 distinct votes were taken on this subject.

Three plans were proposed. First, direct election by the people—rejected as likely to result in the selection of a demagogue and so lead to the establishment of a monarchy. Second—election by congress — twice adopted but later set aside on the ground that it would destroy the balance of power between congress and the president.

Hamilton Plan Adopted.

The third plan—which the constitutional convention finally adopted—was offered by Alexander Hamilton. It consisted of a popular election of an electoral college, based on the population of the states, and empowered to name the president and vice president. This solution was considered ideal.

The adoption of Hamilton's plan was one of the few acts of the constitutional convention accepted without cavil or dispute. The members of the electoral college were to be free and untrammeled in casting their votes and the man receiving the most votes—if those votes were a majority—was to be president. The man receiving the next highest number of votes—if a majority—was to be vice president.

The plan worked perfectly at the first three elections. In 1789 and again in 1792, every elector wrote the name of Washington on his ballot for president. The second votes were scattered among 11 men at the first election and among four at the second. In 1798, 13 men received votes (John Adams being highest was declared elected)—showing the degree of independence the framers of the plan had hoped would prevail.

But, at the election of 1800, this ideal situation changed. Two distinct parties had come into being. Each took steps in advance to designate its candidates for the presidency and vice presidency by putting before the voters lists of men selected through caucuses in the several states who would cast their ballots exclusively for the recognized candidates of their political party.

These state caucuses rapidly developed into congressional caucuses of the two parties which named the party candidates for the two highest offices in the government. This method prevailed at the elections of Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and John Quincy Adams. It was unpopular and frequently denounced. The climax came in 1824, when the congressional caucus presumed to dictate the nomination of William H. Crawford of Georgia for president. The adherents of John Quincy Adams, Henry Clay and Andrew Jackson vehemently protested and the congressional caucus fell into complte disfavor.

This remarkable result was brought about without changing a word of the constitution. The counting of the electoral votes for president and vice president in 1800, however, uncovered a serious defeat in the law. Through a blunder, the delegates from Virginia, Jefferson's state, permitted Burr to poll as many votes as Jefferson when the ballot was taken. In consequence, no one man had the highest number of votes and the election was thrown into the house of representatives.

A bitter contest, involving both parties, lasted for months, resulting finally in the election of Jefferson and the adoption of the 12th amendment. This amendment provides that the electors shall "name in their ballots the person voted for as president and in distinct ballots the person voted for as vice president."

At the breaking down of the congressional caucus system, party leaders turned to state legislatures, various unofficial bodies and finally state conventions to present their selections for president and vice president.

The First National Convention.

The state convention system naturally led to a national convention system—just as the state caucus had led to the congressional caucus. The ephemeral anti-Masonic party, which flourished for one campaign only, held the first national convention in Philadelphia in September, 1830. The first real party to call a national convention was the national republican party. It met in Baltimore in December, 1831, and unanimously nominated Henry Clay for president.

There was no need for President Jackson's friends to call a convention to nominate him, but the general himself saw a chance of "getting close to the people" through the new method. He, therefore, directed the democrats to call a convention to nominate a candidate for the vice presidency on a ticket with himself. His choice for this nomination was Martin Van Buren and he saw that the delegates were men who knew how to obey.

For some reason, best known to himself, President Jackson had this convention adopt a resolution ending with this clause:

". . . and that two-thirds of the whole number of votes in the convention shall be necessary to constitute a choice."

This clause, the negation of a majority rule, has plagued the democratic party for over 100 years. It robbed Martin Van Buren of a renomination in 1844; it led directly to the defeat of General Cass in 1848; it lost Stephen A. Douglas a united nomination in 1860 and it frustrated Champ Clark's ambition in 1912. It will be interesting to see if President Roosevelt calls for the abrogation of this rule in the coming democratic convention as it is now reported he will.

The first "dark horse" ever elected president was James K. Polk. He was a friend of Martin Van Buren and cherished a hope that he could obtain the nomination for vice president because of that friendship. When the democratic convention assembled in Baltimore in 1844, a clear majority of the 26 delegates were instructed for Van Buren and his followers were confident they could control the convention.

But his opponents made good use of an unnecessary letter he had previously written to Congressman Hammond, of Mississippi, questioning the annexation of Texas. Before the opening prayer was delivered, a delegate from Virginia moved the revival of the Jacksonian two-thirds rule for nominations. The men instructed to vote for Van Buren had enough votes to defeat this, but a number of them were looking for a way to escape from their instructions. They found the way through the application of the two-thirds rule.

The "Dark Horse" Comes In.

Van Buren's candidacy lasted for eight ballots. On this eighth ballot, Polk, the "dark horse," was trotted out and on the ninth ballot Van Buren's name was withdrawn, starting the first stampede in a national convention. Polk was nominated on the ninth ballot. This was also the first convention to have its proceedings reported by telegraph.

The nomination of Polk had a repercussion four years later when Lewis Cass was nominated by the democrats. The Van Buren democrats set about "avenging the treachery of '44" by running Van Buren as a Free Soiler. The Whig, General Taylor, carried New York, and its 36 votes elected him. Van Buren polled 120,000 votes to Cass' 114,000, and Taylor had 218,000.

The unit rule, which has aroused resentment in both the major parties from time to time, is a child of the Whigs. At their first national convention, held in a Lutheran church in Harrisburg, Pa., in 1839, the leaders of the party, opposed to the nomination of Henry Clay, found a decided plurality in his favor. The adoption of the unit rule was a scheme "to head Clay off." It was successful. Harrison was nominated.

The ballyhoo that is the dominating feature of our modern conventions dates from the convention in Chicago which nominated Lincoln. There had been enthusiasm and applause at previous national conventions, but the tumult aroused by the contest in 1860 between the east and the west—William Henry Seward and Abraham Lincoln—surpassed anything ever dreamed of before. Many thousand New Yorkers went to Chicago to shout for Seward. They had with them Tom Hyer, the leading prize-fighter of that day, and a group of his pugilistic friends as cheer-leaders.

Lincoln Strategy Wins.

Headed by a gorgeously dressed brass band, a small army of New Yorkers marched and counter-marched through the streets of Chicago. The Lincoln men had no such money to spend, but they had sense enough to fill the convention hall

Majority of Voters Call Themselves Conservatives in Poll

Only 47% Would Join A Liberal Party Today

G. O. P. Mainly Conservative, Democrats Liberal, But Vote Cuts Party Lines.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The big question facing Democrats in their convention in Philadelphia this week is: "How conservative should the democratic platform be?"

The problem which confronted Republicans, in their convention in Cleveland last fortnight was: "How liberal must the Republican platform be?"

Such questions inevitably arise from the fact that both parties contain within themselves conflicting elements, conservative and liberal, each putting forward their principles and demanding concessions.

At Cleveland the so-called eastern conservatives, who fought for a hard money plank in the Republican platform, were at odds with western Progressives led by Senator Borah. In the Democratic party, anti-New Deal Democrats disagree with New Deal Democrats over the progressive tendencies of the Roosevelt administration. Because such intra-party conflicts sometimes blur the line of distinction between the major parties, some observers have advocated breaking asunder the present party lines and reconstituting them under two new labels—Conservative and Liberal.

If this were done, how would the country divide? Does the American voter consider himself predominantly conservative or predominantly liberal at this time?

On a basis of a nation-wide poll of thousands of voters, representing a complete cross-section of the voting population, the answer can be stated in one sentence:

The majority of voters regard themselves as conservative.

The question used on the ballots was: "If there were only two political parties in this country—Conservative and Liberal—which would you join?"

"Conservative," replied 53% of the voters.
"Liberal," said the other 47%.

The poll was conducted by the Institute of Public Opinion, the organization which six months ago forecast the tide of Republican sentiment that led to Landon's nomination, and which has accurately predicted the trend of opinion in every other instance in which the public has had a chance to vote on an issue or a candidate and in which a comparison is possible.

Party Lines Cut.

The division into Conservative and Liberals cuts across party lines—an exceedingly important point in the light of the coming campaign.

Nearly 40% of the members of the present Democratic party, which is often called the "liberal" party, classify themselves as Conservatives. In the Republican party, on the other hand, 20%, or one-fifth, call themselves liberals, according to the poll results.

A summary of the major party vote in the poll follows:

REPUBLICANS:

Percentage Listing Themselves as CONSERVATIVE	80%
Percentage Listing Themselves as LIBERAL	20%
	100%

DEMOCRATS:

Percentage Listing Themselves as CONSERVATIVE	37%
Percentage Listing Themselves as LIBERAL	63%
	100%

The above table shows, briefly, that there are more conservatives in the Democratic party today than there are liberals in the Republican party.

Of course no one knows precisely what a voter has in mind when he says "I am a liberal" or "I am a conservative." It is probable that the program of action which a Maine Republican is thinking of when he votes "liberal" in the poll would make a left-wing radical roll in the aisles with mirth, and that the "conservatism" of a Wisconsin Democrat would scare a Wall Street banker to death.

But however one may wish to define the terms, it seems clear that the strategy of the Democratic pary must be to hold its present large "liberal" backing while not frightening the smaller "conservative" faction into bolting to the G. O. P. This is a neat problem for the platform makers. It is made a little easier, however, by the fact that the Democrats do not have to lure voters away from the Republican party. The Democrats are already leading, at least so far as the last presidential poll taken by the Institute, before Landon's nomination, showed.

The Republicans, on the other hand, must do more than merely hold their overwhelmingly large "conservative" backing and their small "liberal" faction. They must march into the enemy camp and detach voters, probably from among the "conservative" Democrats.

The Vote by Sections.

Today's polls shows three sections of the country voting conservative, three liberal, and one section, the East Central states, evenly divided. The highest conservative vote was in the Middle Atlantic states, which include New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia. The highest liberal vote in the poll was in the Mountain states, historic cradle of such unorthodox movements as free silver, bimetallism and inflation.

A summary of the sectional vote follows:

	Voters Classifying Themselves As: CONSERVATIVE	LIBERAL
New England	56%	44%
Middle Atlantic States	60	40
East Central States	50	50
West Central States	56	44
South	49	51
Mountain States	44	56
Pacific Coast States	48	52

The East Central states, where the vote was 50-50, are Illinois, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan.

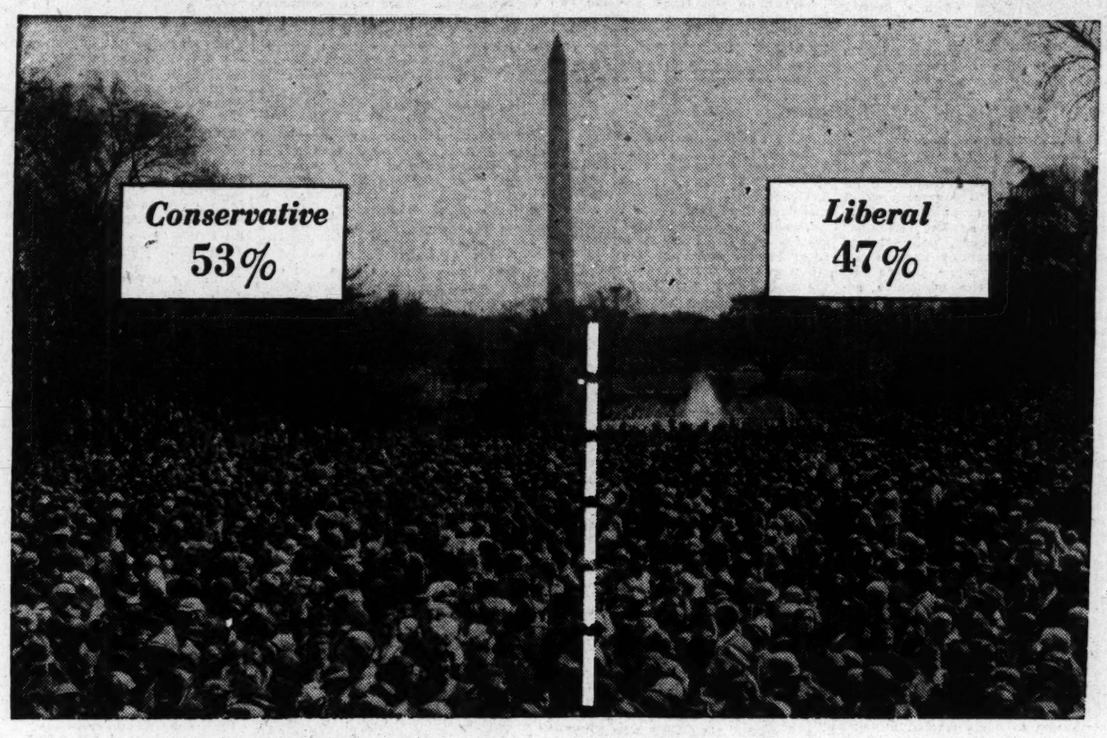

Trend of Conservatism Shown.

Under the title "America is Conservative," Mr. Frank Kent wrote an article in the American Mercury last October in which he declared that the nation becomes liberal, and votes for reform, only when it is badly scared, as it was in 1932-33, and that when things get better it inevitably drifts back to conservatism. Mr. Kent's thesis is borne out by today's poll, and also by the results of various earlier polls taken by the Institute which shows the trend toward a conservative way of thinking. These polls have indicated the following:

By last October a majority of voters had become convinced that government spending for relief and recovery was "too great," although two years before the majority had felt that it was "too little" or "about right." At first voters were in favor of the NRA, but by the time the supreme court killed the codes in May, 1935, sentiment had swung the other way. Early this year the public took the "conservative" position that a constitutional amendment giving congress power to regulate industry or farming was unwise. Likewise it believes that the budget should be balanced and the public debt reduced—a platform dear to all conservatives.

Question That Is Asked Nation's Voters: If there were only two political parties in this country—Conservative and Liberal—which would you join?

If all the eligible voters in the United States were assembled in Washington and asked to classify themselves as conservatives or liberals, the conservatives would outnumber the liberals in the ratio of 53 to 47, as shown above. Interpreted in terms of actual voters this means that approximately 21,200,000 call themselves conservatives, to 18,800,000 who call themselves liberals.

Votes 70% Against Suggestion for New Conservative-Liberal Alignment.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Has the time come to give up our present political parties and have two new ones—conservative and liberal? Certain outstanding editors, both conservative and liberal have recently been saying "yes." Socialists have always said "yes."

But people as a whole say "no."

When this proposition was submitted to them by the Institute of Public Opinion in a nation-wide poll, they voted as follows:

"No," said seven out of every ten, or 70 per cent.

"Yes," said three out of ten, or 30 per cent.

Yet in many respects a division between conservatives and liberals was found by the Institute of Public Opinion to be more fundamental at the present time than that between republicans and democrats. In another poll question, asking voters to name which party they would join if there were only two, conservative and liberal, it was revealed that nearly 40 per cent of the members of the present democratic party call themselves conservative, while about one-fifth of republicans look upon themselves as liberals.

Recognizing these intra-party divisions, the New York World Telegram said editorially a few weeks ago: "We are getting closer to the day when, we believe, the country will find it normal and necessary to divide politically into conservatives and progressives. That cleavage is logical."

George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post, has advocated that the republicans should stick by their old guns, give up any idea of imitating the New Deal, and let the nation make an honest choice between a conservative republican and a progressive democratic program.

Similarly, the New York Post has pointed out: "More than ever it is apparent that the country is dividing into two camps. In the one camp are the advocates of the New Deal, of government of, by and for the many of a democracy that will think in economic as well as political terms. In the other camp are the old guard listsof both parties, the beneficiaries of special interests. . . . In this realignment the old party names, republicans and democratic, have largely lost their meaning."

In today's poll, however, the only groups in favor of setting up new liberal and conservative parties are socialists, and persons who favor various third party movements such as Coughlinism, Townsendism, share-the-wealth, etc. The socialist vote favoring new parties is 77 per cent, while that for the other group is 78 per cent.

All sections of the country are opposed to forming two new parties. The section with the highest "no" vote is the south. The section most in favor of new parties is the Pacific coast.

The vote by sections follows:

	Form Liberal-Conservative Parties? YES	NO
New England	34%	66%
Middle Atlantic	32	68
East Central	29	71
West Central	33	67
South	25	75
Mountain States	34	66
Pacific Coast	36	64

Voters Advance Reasons For Their Opinions

The bald-headed Kansan pulled out his corncob pipe and tamped it full of soggy roughcut tobacco.

"Got a match?" he said to a young man beside him, a Wichita interviewer of the Institute of Public Opinion.

The match spluttered in the old man's face, filling his nose with sulphur fumes. He sneezed.

"Young man," he said, "you want to know what I'd do if there were only two parties, conservative and liberal? I'd join the conservatives."

"Why?"

"Well, did you ever watch a prairie dog? He always sticks his head out and sizes things up before he rushes into anything. That's what a conservative tries to do."

This Kansas voter's comment was typical of thousands received from voters classifying themselves as conservatives in today's poll. The language differs, but the central and most typical thesis is the same—that the conservative way is the wise way. "Liberals are dangerous," these voters say. "They act first and do their thinking later on."

Some other comments, listed in the order in which they are typical of the majority vote, are as follows:

1. "Liberals are just a step away from socialism and communism."
2. "Government is a business, and all business is run on a conservative basis."
3. "Conservative republicans built up this country."
4. "Old ways are the best. Let parties adopt only proved policies."

But a WPA worker interviewed in Kansas City, Mo., has quite a different idea about "proved policies." He would join a liberal party, and his reason is:

"Conservative means grab all you can and hold on to it. A poor guy can't make it."

Another, more temperate liberal says:

"We have to be continually making changes. We must not keep what is, merely because it is."

One main theme runs persistently through the comments of those who would join a liberal party. They believe that it would be the party of the common people, while the conservatives would be made up of "big business," "vested interests," "plutocrats," etc. "A liberal party does more for the common man," is a constant refrain.

Minor themes running through the comments are as follows:

1. "In emergencies liberals plan for the future, while conservatives look back at the past."
2. "I'm a young person and we're just naturally liberal."
3. "Look where the conservative republicans landed us in 1932!"
4. "The liberals get more money into circulation."

Is Pres. Roosevelt Aiding Recovery?

Not quite four years ago the people of the United States elected Franklin D. Roosevelt to the presidency with the commission to bring about recovery.

Have his policies helped or hindered?

Next Sunday The Constitution will report a nation-wide poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion on this question.

Mid-West 'Hell-Raisers' Vote Conservative Today

NEW YORK, June 20.—Easterners generally think of mid-west farmers as hell-raisers, who enforce their demands through organized movements like milk strikes, prevent mortgage foreclosures by hurling sticks and stones at the sheriff, and follow the lead of such orators as the late Milo Reno and William Jennings Bryan.

But in the poll reported today a majority of farmers in the middle western states call themselves conservatives in politics, at least at the present time.

When asked in the poll which party they would join if there were only two—conservative and liberal—the farmers replied as follows:

54% would join the conservative party.
46% would join the liberals.

Graphically, the vote is shown below, each unit representing 10 per cent of the total mid-west farm vote:

CONSERVATIVE—54%

LIBERAL—46%

The states included in the mid-west area are: Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, North Dakota and South Dakota.

One interesting conclusion that may be drawn from this vote is that a farmer-labor party would probably make little headway in politics today. Such movements are generally based on liberal, if not radical, programs. But since a majority of farmers in the nation's bread basket now look upon themselves as conservatives, they would presumably be slow to throw in their lot with a new farmer-labor coalition.

The combined vote of farmers in all sections in the poll today is less conservative than that of mid-west farmers alone, but it is still not out-and-out liberal. Fifty-one per cent of all farmers said they would join a conservative party, whereas 49% would go to a liberal party.

Today's poll bears out the truism that the older a man gets, the more conservative he is. Among young people between the ages of 20 and 2 only 34% said they would join a conservative party if it were formed today. The percentage jumps to 49% for those 34 and under, 55% for those between 35 and 54, and nearly 60% for those over 59 years old.

President Roosevelt to Face Conservative Electorate

When the democratic party, which calls itself the party of liberalism, begins campaigning this summer, it will face an elecorate which calls itself conservative.

For the poll reported today, a majority of voters said that if there were only two parties, liberal and conservative, they would cast in their lot with the latter.

And yet in a presidential poll reported two weeks ago by the Institute of Public Opinion, Roosevelt, the candidate of the "liberal" party, received 58.8 per cent of the vote, against 44.3 per cent for the republicans.

Why was he leading when the country thought of itself as conservative? There are several reasons.

First is the President's personal popularity. Thousands of voters favor him and are willing to follow his leadership even though they disapprove of his policies. This was demonstrated in an institute poll in which the voters were overwhelmingly against the New Deal but in favor of the President. By the same token, many who voted "conservative" in today's poll are nevertheless supporters of the democratic President.

The second reason is voting habit. This applies particularly to the south. Forty-nine percent of southern voters in the poll said they would join a conservative party if such were formed, but until it is formed the majority will go on voting the way their fathers voted—democratic. Although the democratic party has been transformed into the party of federal centralization, southerners support it about as enthusiastically as they did when it was just the opposite—a party of states' rights.

Miss Glass Weds Mr. Wachter At All Saints Episcopal Church

The marriage of Miss Anna Glass, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Glass, to David Wachter Jr., of Milwaukee, Wis., was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at All Saints Episcopal church in the presence of an assemblage of relatives and friends. Dr. W. W. Memminger, rector of the church, performed the double ring ceremony which was preceded by a program of nuptial music played by Joseph Ragan, organist.

Palms, foliage plants and ferns banked the inside of the pulpit and provided a dark green background for the floor vases of white gladioli, swainsonia and feverfew, alternating with seven branched candelabra in which burned white tapers.

Earl Carpenter, Julian Price, Sam Hubbard and Dudley Glass Jr., of Shreveport, La., acted as ushers and they entered first to the organ's strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin."

Mrs. Earl C. Carpenter, the bride's sister, entered alone and was followed by the maid-of-honor, Miss Carolyn Price. Their floor-length dresses were fashioned of net made with short puffed sleeves shirred over the shoulders. Mrs. Carpenter's gown featured the delicate coral shade and was posed over taffeta to match. Miss Price's gown was fashioned of lettuce green net over matching taffeta. They wore Dutch style hats of net and taffeta to match their dresses with matching ribbon streamers falling to the back waistlines. Each carried a bouquet of pastel-shaded garden flowers.

The bride was accompanied to the altar by her father by whom she was given in marriage. They were joined at the chancel rail by the groom and his best man, Don Prince. Wearing a gown of lustrous white satin made along princess lines, the bride presented a striking figure. The graceful floor-length skirt extended into a long train and the bodice of the becoming gown featured long close-fitting sleeves that ended in a point over the hands. Her veil of illusion tulle was held to her hair in cap effect by small sprays of orange blossoms and extended to the end of her train. She carried a white satin prayerbook showered with white orchids and valley lilies. The groom and his attendants were attired in white linen suits.

Mrs. Dudley Glass, the bride's mother, wore a gown of marine blue lace veiling matching satin and her throat corsage was of gardenias. Her wide-brimmed hat was fashioned of the same lace as her becoming gown.

Mr. Wachter and his bride left in the early evening by motor for Milwaukee where they will make their home. For traveling Mrs. Wachter donned a suit of herringbone weave in an ashes of rose and wool. The smart swagger coat featured the modish bishop sleeves and she wore a brown net blouse and other brown accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was formed of bronze shaded orchids.

English—Rogers.

CLAYTON, Ga., June 20.—Of cordial interest was the marriage of Miss Lessie English to Charles Brandon Rogers, which was solemnized June 12 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LaRue Eubanks in West Clayton. Judge Lamar N. Smith officiated. The bride and groom were unattended.

The bride was attired in French blue crepe with tea rose trimmings and accessories to match. Her flowers were pink sweet peas and ferns.

Mrs. Rogers is the eldest daughter of Mrs. Fannie Nichols English and the late Henry English. She graduated from the Tallulah Falls school.

Mr. Rogers comes from families that have long been leaders in the state, his mother being the former Eva Mozeley, the daughter of Colonel W. S. Mozeley and his father, the late Charles Andrew Rogers. He is an employe of the National Forestry Department and is stationed in the Nantahala forests. After a trip the bride and groom will reside with Mrs. G. A. Rogers in West Clayton.

Zorn—Moore.

THOMASTON, Ga., June 20.—Interest centers in the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Judson Zorn, of Thomaston, of the engagement of their daughter, Ethel, to Walter Earl Moore, of Carrollton and Thomaston, the marriage to be solemnized in August.

The lovely bride-elect is the sister of Mrs. J. C. Jones Jr., Jackson Zorn, Merritt Zorn and the late Miss Mildren Zorn, of Thomaston. The bride-elect, after graduation from R. E. Lee Institute, attended Georgia University, where she received a teacher's certificate, and has since been teaching in the Thomaston schools.

Mr. Moore is the son of W. C. Moore and the late Mrs. Edna Richards Moore, of Carrollton. His only brother is Charlie Moore, of Greensboro, and his sisters are Misses Alma and Thelma Moore, of Carrollton. He and his bride-to-be will reside in Thomaston.

Miss Sarah McGhee To Wed Mr. Burch.

DALTON, Ga., June 20.—Cordial interest accompanies the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. McGhee, of Dalton, of the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Cameron, to Ed A. Burch, of Cartersville, formerly of Eastman, the wedding to be an event of the summer.

Miss McGhee is the second daughter of Mr. Walter C. McGhee and the late Mrs. McGhee, who was Miss Mary Susan Baker. She is the sister of Miss Mary Baker McGhee, of Signal Mountain, Tenn., and Mr. Robert McGhee, of Easton, Penn. Her maternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hammond Baker, of Dalton, Mrs. Baker having been Miss Martha Emmaline Foute, of Greenville, Tenn. Her paternal grandparents were Rev. and Mrs. Z. M. McGhee, of Chattanooga, Mrs. McGhee having been Miss Sarah Cameron.

The bride-elect is a popular member of Dalton's young social set. She is a graduate of the Georgia State College for Women at Milledgeville and for several years has been a member of the faculty of the Dalton public schools. She is vice president of the Girls' Cotillion Club and secretary of the Lesche Woman's Club.

Mr. Burch is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Burch, of Atlanta. Joe Cameron Burch is his only brother. He is a grandson of Reuben Flournoy Burch Sr., of Eastman, and the late Mrs. Burch. His maternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wesley Cameron, of McRae. For five years Mr. Burch has served as associate editor of the Bartow Herald in Cartersville and editor of the Adairsville Banner. He is a graduate of Middle Georgia College and Mercer University, having received his A. B. degree at the latter institution. He is a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity and while at Mercer was a member of the President's Club, Newspaper Club, Athletic Board of Control and was prominent in college activities. He is a member of the Lions Club and is prominently identified with Cartersville's business and civic activities.

McDonald—Whitley.

BUFORD, Ga., June 20.—The marriage of Miss Mary Lucille McDonald to Lewis Monford Whitley was solemnized Friday at the home of the bride with Rev. J. S. Thrailkill officiating.

The Bride was attired in a two-piece model of blue triple-sheer chiffon worn with a blue hat and accessories to match. Her flowers were gardenias and lilies of the valley.

The bride and groom left for a motor wedding trip to the mountains and on their return will reside in Buford.

Mrs. Whitley is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sylvanus McDonald. She received her A. B. degree at Wesleyan College, Macon, on June 1. Mr. Whitley, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lancelot Whitley, attended Monroe A. & M. school. He received his A. B. degree from Oglethorpe University. Two years ago he came to Buford and since that time has held a position with Bona Allen, Inc.

O'Kelley—Duggan.

ATHENS, Ga., June 20.—The betrothal of Miss Edna Belle O'Kelley to Lorenz Azell Duggan, of Atlanta and Montgomery, Ala., centers social interest in both Georgia and Alabama. Mr. Duggan is well known in business circles in Montgomery.

Miss O'Kelley is the daughter of Mrs. Effie O'Kelley and James W. O'Kelley. On her maternal side, her grandparents are the late Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wier Bradberry and the late Joseph E. Bradberry.

Mr. Duggan is the son of the late Dr. James Henry Duggan, prominent physician of Irwinton, and the late Mrs. Edda Stanley Duggan. His grandparents are the late Dr. and Mrs. James B. Duggan and Dr. and Mrs. Ben Stanley, of Dublin. Mr. Duggan was educated at Emory University and holds an important position with the Loose-Wiles Biscuit Company.

Miss Wallace Weds Mr. Keiser.

The marriage of Miss Merle Wallace, of Moultrie and Atlanta, to Augustus Charles Keiser Jr., of Atlanta, was quietly solemnized yesterday at 10 o'clock in the pastor's study of the Druid Hills Baptist church. Dr. Louis D. Newton officiated in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a traveling costume of gold crepe. Her accessories were in brown. A shoulder bouquet of lilies of the valley and roses completed her ensemble.

After the ceremony the couple left by motor for a short wedding trip. On their return they will reside at 1407 Lanier Place, N. E.

Goins—Hagen.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Lottie May Goins, of Newnan, to Frederick William Hagen, of Atlanta. The ceremony was performed on June 13, in the chapel of Druid Hills Methodist church.

Loving Homage Will Be Paid To Masculine Parent Today

By Sally Forth.

TODAY is Father's Day and the world will pause to pay loving homage to a devoted parent upon whose shoulders rest the responsibility of a family. For those who have entered the sacred portals of Valhalla, their memory will be reverenced by word, thought and deed. For others, today is theirs to enjoy it as they desire and to receive the attention which is theirs by right of heritage.

Sally takes especial pleasure in presenting three favorite Atlanta fathers, who are preparing to spend their day of days entertaining their children. But turn about is fair play, and Bob Martin seems to be adopting the theme of a current song hit, "She Shall Have Music," as he plays for his adorable little blonde daughter, Margie, while his sturdy young son, Bobbie, looks on. Margie and Bobbie are two of Atlanta's youngest musicians to Sally's knowledge, and they ofttimes stage their own shows at their Peachtree road home with their mother and father the most appreciative of spectators. Their love for music is inherited from their parents. Their mother is the former Margaret King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William G. King, and their paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Martin, of the Tate Mountain Estates.

Bob Hare III seems to be casting envious eyes at the kiddie cart ride in store for his young son, Robert P. Hare IV. Riding in this manner is little Bob's favorite indoor sport, much to the worry of his mother, the former Helen Candler. Little Bob has no regard whatsoever for indoor traffic etiquette, but such an adorable chubby youngster as he has no fear of a "fine" from his adoring parents. His maternal grandfather is Asa G. Candler Jr. and on his paternal side he is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Hare Jr.

Little Nellie Dodd Orme has already begun receiving masculine attention, but none can be more ardent than that of her father, A. J. Orme. She appears to be bubbling over with delight and enthusiasm in celebrating her first Father's Day, and from the appearance of this young miss she bids fair to live up to the popularity and personality of her parents. She bears the name of her mother, the former Nellie Dodd, and her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Gus T. Dodd and Mrs. A. J. Orme and the late Mr. Orme.

TODAY is a very special day for William Kendall Fielder. In addition to being Father's Day, it is also his birthday. His 31st birthday.

Dr. and Mrs. Spencer Kirkland will entertain at tea from 5 to 7 o'clock this afternoon in compliment to their father, who for many years has been an outstanding member of the Georgia bar. The party will be given at their home on Rumson road in Garden Hills, and invited to meet the honor guest are a number of his friends from Atlanta and Cedartown, where Mr. Fielder made his home before coming here for residence last year.

Assisting the hosts in receiving their guests will be their brothers and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Freeman, of Senoia, and Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Bartlett. Other children of Mr. Fielder include Mr. and Mrs. William Fielder, of Columbus; Major Kendall Fielder, U. S. A., and Mrs. Fielder, of Fort Meade, Md., and the late Tom Fielder and Mrs. Fielder, of Atlanta.

THE hospital manners of Judy Moseley, who is convalescing from recent injuries to one of her knees, should be an inspiration to even weaker-kneed invalids. Propped up in bed, surrounded by flowers, books, electric fan, and her charming young daughter, Mrs. John Barnett, she nursed a hot water bottle on her knee (which she declared brought the temperature to 250 degrees, more or less), she chatted gaily with visitors who sought to cheer her, but instead were cheered and rested.

She recited a poem entitled "My Mother's Garden," written while in the hospital, and when one of her many callers took her leave with a promise to call again when the invalid went home she said: "Please do, I'll KNEED you!" The visitor said: "Sally Forth ought to hear that." Quick as a flash Judy said: "Wish I could sally forth!"

SALLY predicts that no passenger sailing on the steamer Columbus next Saturday will enjoy greater popularity with the ship's officers and passengers than attractive brown-eyed Harriet Coley. Harriet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Coley, of Atlanta and Daytona Beach, Fla., as she and her parents divide their time between the two cities. In both places Harriet has a wide circle of friends and her popularity in Miami, where she spends a part of each winter, is also acclaimed by the society chroniclers of that city.

With a group of Alpha Delta Pi sorority sisters, who graduated with Harriet from the University of Georgia last June, Harriet will spend two months traveling abroad. They will visit Europe's leading capital cities but they plan to spend more time in Italy than in any other country.

The travelers will make the return voyage on the steamer Bremen and will reach New York port August 21. On arrival Harriet will hurry to Atlanta for several weeks' stay before going to Daytona Beach for the fall months.

ATLANTANS are especially interested today in the announcement of Teresa Hanger's engagement to Ensign Hugh Caldwell, U. S. N. Teresa has always been partial to the navy, and long before she established residence in Alexandria her many friends here knew that she and Hugh would follow the fleet together.

Teresa received her ring at the famous and traditional ring dance at Annapolis in 1935. She has been numbered among the most popular belles attending the Naval Academy dances and other special affairs during Hugh's academic days. Proof of this was evidenced in her selection by Dick Powell, of movie fame, as his only dancing partner during his stay at Annapolis for the filming of "Shipmates Forever," which had the Naval Academy for its background.

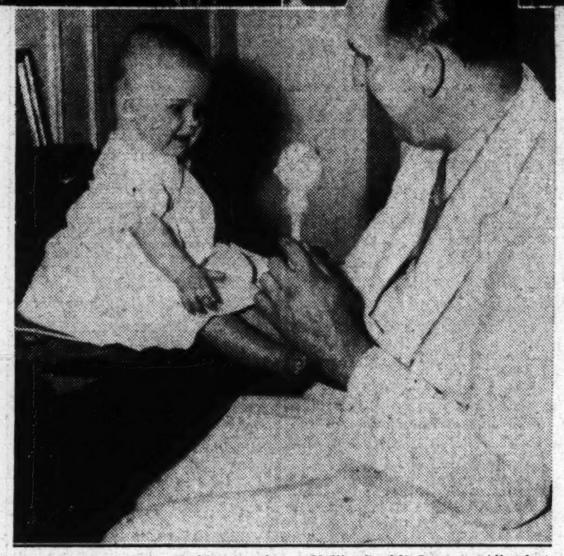

Hugh Caldwell leaves soon for sea duty on the Pacific coast and later will go to Hawaii. His marriage to the lovely blond Teresa takes place after his allotted service as an ensign in the navy after his graduation.

Fifth U.D.C. President Eulogized In Article in Official Column

By Mrs. A. Belmont Dennis, of Covington, Editor Georgia Division U. D. C.

Through Mrs. Kirby-Smith Anderson, historian of Georgia Division United Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. R. A. Grady, Savannah, furnishes the division with a history of Sarah Saunders Cowan Hull (Mrs. Alexander Blue Hull), fifth president of Georgia Division U. D. C., who served the division from October 29, 1903, to November 11, 1907.

"Mrs. A. B. Hull was born and reared near Wilmington, N. C., and was a daughter of David Stone Cowan and Sarah Saunders. She was imbued with an abiding love of the Confederacy from earliest childhood which she retained through her life. Coming to Savannah after her marriage to Alexander B. Hull, December 9, 1886, she gave her adopted state years of her life, loyalty and devotion to Confederate endeavors in Savannah, the division and general organization. For 25 years she was president of Savannah chapter, 1901-1910, 1912-1929, during which period the chapter acquired its imposing chapter house, a home for all Confederate organizations of Savannah, dedicated to the "women of the sixties—1861-1865," with a handsome bronze tablet upon its walls bearing the names of over 300 soldiers and sailors, kinsmen of chapter members and descendants of Confederate veterans who served in the World War.

"In 1903, recognizing the ability of Mrs. Hull, Georgia division at the convention in Atlanta elected her as its president, after serving two terms as second vice president. Her marked ability as an executive shone to the great benefit of the U. D. C. during her two-term regime. During her presidency more than 20 new chapters were organized in the division, and her memory is cherished by chapter and division officers who served under her. As one scans the minutes of the conventions, state and general, her name is repeatedly found and always as the advocate of unity and cooperation. To name a few of her accomplishments would include the completion of the Winnie Davis memorial hall, or dormitory for girls, at the State Normal College, Athens, and the oil portrait of Winnie Davis that was placed in the hall. Mrs. Jefferson Davis made a gift to the hall and the need of completing the building being great, this money was added to the fund. Mrs. Hull proposed that the division raise a like amount to make some specific gift to the hall and this was done, the portrait of our first Daughter of the Confederacy thus being a memorial to mother and daughter.

"Though Mrs. Hull did not initiate the work of erecting a monument to Captain Henry Wirz, that gallant Swiss who crowned his services to the Confederacy by an ignominious death, the historian of the Savannah chapter, Mrs. Louis G. Young, having first suggested it, it was due to Mrs. Hull's interest and constant efforts that the work was accomplished and the Wirz monument erected at Andersonville, Ga. A fund to assist loyal friends to the Confederacy, Dr. and Mrs. Bridgeman, Decatur, Ga., and another beneficent fund was raised for the purpose of decorating the graves of Confederates who died while in prison at Camp Chase, Ohio. Francis S. Bartow dormitory at Rabun Gap, since burned, was another project which owed much of its success to Mrs. Hull. Her own chapter raised more than $260 toward this work. Scholarships for boys and girls in various schools throughout the state and the scholarship at the State Normal school, Athens, bears the name of the Sarah Saunders Hull scholarship, a tribute from her own chapter. Mrs. Hull had the mark of a true executive, ever ready to lead with a loyal band at her command. She passed away May 9, 1933, in Tampa, Fla., at the home of her only daughter."

Mrs. Frank A. Dennis, president Georgia division, was guest speaker at the Rotary Club of Elberton on June 9 at the club's regular luncheon. Other distinguished guests presented at the luncheon were Mrs. Clyde Forrest Hunt, Thomson, first vice president Georgia Division U. D. C.; Miss Mary Lizzie Wright, Elberton, recording secretary Georgia Division; Mrs. A. Belmont Dennis, editor; Mrs. Hugh S. Norris, president Ida Evans Eve chapter, Thomson; Mrs. S. S. Brewer, president Jefferson Davis chapter, Elberton, and others.

Jennings—Gibson.

THOMASVILLE, N. C., June 20. Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement made today of the engagement of Miss Julia Brown Jennings to Clarence Ferrell Gibson, of Thomasville, formerly of LaGrange, Georgia.

Miss Jennings, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thornton Eugene Jennings, is a member of one of Thomasville's oldest and most prominent families. She is a graduate of Salem College.

The bridegroom-elect, son of the late Walter S. Gibson and Mrs. Gibson, of LaGrange, has made his home in Thomasville for the past year where he holds a position of chemist in the Amazon cotton mills. He received his education at Gordon Military Academy at Barnesville, Ga., and Clemson College in South Carolina.

Mr. Gibson is a brother of Rev. George C. Gibson, of Columbus; Walter S. Gibson Jr., of Albany; Fred N. Gibson, of Selma, Ala.; Miss Grace Gibson, of Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Mary Jayne, Miss Lillie Gibson and Charles G. Gibson, all of LaGrange, and William Gibson, of Carrollton.

Following their marriage which will be an event of the early fall, the couple will reside in Thomasville.

Miss Marjorie Gould Is Bride Of Carroll Jones at Procathedral

The Procathedral of St. Philip formed the beautiful setting last evening for the marriage of Miss Marjorie Gould, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Gould, and Carroll Payne Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Jones. Dean Raimundo de Ovies officiated at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends of the young couple. Prior to and during the ceremony an appropriate program of nuptial music was rendered on the organ by Arthur Davis.

Church Decorations.

The interior of the church was beautifully decorated. Placed on the altar were two vases of Easter lilies, while garlands of asparagus fern and southern smilax added a touch of greenry. Silhouetted against the two high cathedral windows were tall triangular candelbra, before which were placed tall vases of Easter lilies. On either side and placed in a slanting effect were four seven-branched candelabra holding burning tapers. At the entrance to the sanctuary were three-branched candelabra holding burning tapers. The choir loft was banked with palms and on either side were candelabra holding burning tapers. Clusters of lilies tied with white satin ribbons marked the pews reserved for members of the two families.

Ushers were Henry Bowden, Stewart McGinty, Emmitt Rushin and Livingston Newton of Gainesville, and the groomsmen were William Hunter. Arthur Gould, brother of the bride; Gilbert Boggs and Max Hall. Mrs. Dan Clarke was matron of honor for her sister and bridesmaids were Misses Ellen Fleming, Emily Timmerman, Louise Brown and Florence Jones, sister of the groom. Miss Helen Jones, another sister of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. They were all gowned alike in beautiful models of gold mousseline de soie posed over taffeta of the same shade. The basque waists featured a deep V-neck in both the front and back and the sleeves were bouffant. The floor length skirts formed a slight train and completing the costume were gros grain ribbon belts of the same shade, tied in the back in a small bow and extending to floor length. Their slippers matched and they carried bouquets of garden flowers, talismen roses, daisies and yellow snapdragons tied with bronze ribbons.

Beautiful Bride.

Entering with her father, Fred S. Gould, by whom she was given in marriage, the bride was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Winfield Marshall Jones, who was best man. Her distinctive brunet beauty was further enhanced by her handsome wedding gown of ivory bridal satin fashioned along Princess lines, floor length and widening to form a fan-shaped train. The long tight sleeves ended in a point over her hands and the square neckline was offset by a small Elizabethan collar fashioned of exquisite rosepoint lace. Small satin-covered buttons were an added feature on the back of the dress to the waist line.

The bride's beautiful veil was made of exquisite antique rose point lace, coronet style, fashioned in halo effect in the renaissance period. It was caught to her soft brown hair in coronet style from which hung a long tulle veil extending to the end of the long satin train. She carried a real lace handkerchief, the gift of her sister, Mrs. Arthur Gould. Her flowers were lilies of the valley in shower effect.

Mrs. Fred S. Gould, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in model of white lace made along straight lines. Her flowers were purple orchids. Mrs. Winfield Payne Jones, mother of the groom, was becomingly gowned in blue lace. Her flowers were orchids. Mrs. P. T. Robertson, grandmother of the bride, wore black and white chiffon and her flowers were lilies of the valley.

Reception at Home.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Gould entertained at a reception at their home in East Lake for their daughter and Mr. Jones. Forming a receiving line with the hosts were the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Payne Jones, parents of the groom, and members of the wedding party. Miss Frances Austin kept the bride's book, Mrs. Willis Davis presided at the punch table and assisting in entertaining were Mesdames R. W. Crenshaw and H. W. Brown.

The home was effectively decorated with smilax and ivy. The table in the dining room was covered with an imported Italian filet lace cloth with silver appointments. Gracing the center was an elaborately embossed bride's cake and on either side were silver candelabra holding burning tapers.

Among special guests at the wedding and reception were Miss Anne Lewis Jones, of Alexandria, Va., aunt of the groom; Misses Mary DuPree Eckford and Eugenia Brooks, of Athens, and Mrs. Hinton Baker, of Augusta.

Mr. Jones and his bride left on their wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. The bride traveled in a smart two-piece dubonnet ensemble with hat and accessories to match. Upon their return to Atlanta Mr. Jones and his bride will be popular additions to the younger married set. They will reside during the remainder of the summer at the home of the groom's parents on Peachtree-Battle avenue during the absence of the latter at their summer home in Peposkey, Mich.

Texas Speaker Will Be Heard At Legion Auxiliary Convention

By MRS. J. M. TOOMEY, of Decatur, Publicity Director for Georgia Legion Auxiliary.

Plans are completed for the annual convention of the Georgia department, to be held in Athens on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Reservations have been made for the largest number of officers and delegates in the history of the department. A prominent guest at the convention will be Mrs. Frank H. Carpenter, of Sour Lake, Texas, national vice president of the southern division, who will be honor guest at the dinner on Thursday when the Athens post and unit entertain department officers and members of executive boards of the Legion and auxiliary. Mrs. Carpenter will be principal speaker at the Friday morning session of the auxiliary. She has a record of outstanding service in the southern division, which includes the 13 southeastern states, and her presence in Athens this week will add much to the success of the convention.

Officers elected by the Evans county unit, for 1936-37, are: President, Mrs. H. C. Hearn; first vice president, Mrs. Will White; second vice president, Mrs. Homer Daniel; secretary, Mrs. R. C. Edwards; treasurer, Mrs. Dave Danner; chaplain, Mrs. C. C. DeLoach; historian, T. O. Hodges; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. R. O. Barnes. This unit was organized last November by the district president, Mrs. A. C. Mitchell, of Savannah, and has gone forward with unit affairs like a veteran organization.

Ware county unit, of Waycross, elected officers at the June meeting as follows: President, Mrs. C. F. Mobley; first vice president, Mrs. E. R. Sapp; second vice president, Mrs. J. Witherspoon Daniel; secretary, Mrs. W. J. Warneke; treasurer, Mrs. H. H. Rowling; chaplain, Mrs. J. I. Summerall; historian, Mrs. A. B. Cason; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. C. L. Howard; executive committee, Mesdames Paul McGee, C. C. Nettles, E. J. Wylie and Thad Lee.

At a recent meeting of the Hart county unit, of Hartwell, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. A. B. Brown; first vice president, Mrs. L. C. Westbrook; second vice president, Mrs. A. N. Page; recording secretary, Miss Annie V. Estes; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Isham Reynolds; corresponding secretary, Mrs. I. B. Hailey; treasurer, Mrs. F. S. White; chaplain, Mrs. J. G. Logan; sergeant-at-arms, Mrs. Berta Dodd; parliamentarian, Mrs. J. H. Skelton, and publicity director, Mrs. V. P. Corbett. These officers will be installed at the next meeting. Delegates to the department convention will be Mrs. L. C. Westbrook and Mrs. A. N. Page. Alternates are Mrs. F. S. White and Mrs. W. T. Yarbrough.

A meeting of tenth district units was held in Augusta recently with the district president, Mrs. J. M. Browning, of Augusta, presiding. Mrs. Marguerite Creasy, president of Augusta Unit No. 63, welcomed delegates, and response was given by Mrs. John P. Mulherin, of Augusta, who is department hospital contact chairman. Mrs. W. H. Metzger, district secretary, called the roll and reports were given: Athens, Mrs. Jacob B. Joel, president; Danielsville, Mrs. H. G. Bannister, president; Hartwell, Mrs. A. B. Brown, president; Madison, report given by Mrs. Paul Ponder; Louis L. Battey unit, Augusta, Mrs. E. A. Hayes, president; Richmond county unit, Augusta, Mrs. Marguerite Creasy, president.

Mrs. Jacob B. Joel, of Athens, was nominated for district president, her name to be presented to the department convention this month. Augusta posts and units entertained officers, delegates and guests at a barbecue and followed by a meeting of the Legion and auxiliary to hear addresses by the department commander, Ben Watkins, of Macon; J. P. Kelley, of Valdosta, department child welfare chairman, and B. C. Kitchens, sixth district commander.

Reports of Many District Meetings Enthuse State W.C.T.U. Members

By M. FRANCES MEADORS BURGHARD, Macon, State W. C. T. U. Editor.

District meetings which are as encouraging and continue to enthuse the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Mrs. Florence Ewell Atkins, of Milledgeville, spoke at the sixth district meeting on Friday in Dublin, at the ninth in Winder, and speaks at the 10th in Thomson on June 25. At the Methodist church in Dublin her subject was "Education for Temperance." She said: "The temperance cause will be saved by education, and many individuals will be thus saved. Ignorance as to what alcohol is and what it does to the human being and to the community is today's menace."

Mrs. Byrd Lovett, of Sandersville, spoke of "The Need of Information," including information about the nature of alcohol and its relation to health, economics, morality, mentality—what scientists and economists state—all of which information she declared could be found in the National W. C. T. U. weekly magazine, the Union Signal, published at the headquarters in Evanston, Ill.

Mrs. W. D. Domingoes, of Macon, called attention to the "Value of Organization," in all lines of W. C. T. U. activities. She recalled the founder, Frances Willard's words, "Alone we can do little. Separated, we are units of weakness; but aggregated we become batteries of power. Agitate, educate, organize—these are the deathless watchwords of success."

In an addres on "The Challenge of Citizenship," Rev. J. M. Branch, pastor Davisboro Baptist church, gave three principles for citizenship—justice, which includes temperance; religious liberty and a spirit of adventure.

Mrs. August Burghard, of Macon, quoted Frances Willard's statement that "The press is the mightiest of the mighty means on which the arm of progress leans." She urged members to know W. C. T. U. literature then give the information in writing and speaking.

Mrs. W. H. Smith, of Sandersville, called attention to the growing menace of alcohol and other narcotics, especially marihuana. The devotional was led by Rev. R. H. Bennett, pastor of Dublin Christian church, sounding the keynote for the program. "Saving this land for righteousness—that part of righteousness that is temperance—righteousness expressed in the Christian ideal."

Rev. C. D. Greaves, pastor of Dublin Baptist church, used "Total Abstinence From Alcohol Beverages for the Sake of Others" as his topic Mrs. Ewell Atkins, of Milledgeville, and Mrs. Byrd Harbour, of Dublin, discussed the wisdom of teaching children and youth the nature and effects of alcohol even in small quantities, and advocated every union mothering a Loyal Temperance Legion.

Mrs. J. H. Wasdin, of Sandersville, who arranged the splendid program, presided. Dublin women entertained at luncheon. The Dublin president, Mrs. J. J. Jordan, welcomed the delegates. Mrs. R. B. Thompson, president of the Davisboro W. C. T. U., responded. Mrs. R. Z. Claxton sang, accompanied by Mrs. James Flanders.

Now, for abrief echo of the 62d National W. C. T. U. convention at Tulsa, Okla. Mrs. Anna Marden DeYo, Illinois, National W. C. T. U. corresponding secretary, said: "Each week of the membership campaign of six months has added 1,006 new members who will help to spread the knowledge that the ethyl alcohol in beer and wine is just as much a poison as when it appears in the cocktail or whisky highball." Besides the 24,163 new members up to June, Mrs. Margert C. Munns, national treasurer, reported that 36,114 more members had paid dues than had paid at the same time one year ago. Five hundred new Loyal Temperance Legions have been added to the 2,420 of last year, according to Miss Lendell Wiggins, the general secretray. The Youths' Temperance Council, the young people's branch of the W. C. T. U., has 150 registered delegates.

Second District To Hold Institute

Mrs. C. E. Glausier, of Quitman, president of second district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, announces a district club institute to be held in Bainbridge on July 6. Mrs. Hampton Fleming will be in Bainbridge at this time and will direct the institute before going to Athens for the state institute on July 8-9. Mrs. Fleming will be guest of Mrs. A. B. Conger, president of Georgia Federation, who will assist her in Bainbridge and share honors with her in Athens.

Holding club institutes in every district is one of the planks in Mrs. Conger's administration platform as the best medium through which women can get ideas, ideals and effective methods for carrying forward club activities. Clubwomen will find a common ground of interest at Bainbridge and Athens and Mrs. Fleming will clarify all sorts of problems. Mrs. Glausier urges each club in the second district to send representatives to Bainbridge, and the Bainbridge Woman's Club, with the new president, Mrs. B. F. Lewis, extends welcome.

Calhoun Club.

New officers of 1936-37 of Calhoun Woman's club are Miss Doris Crutchfield, president; Mrs. J. H. Paschal, first vice president; Mrs. O. C. Langford, second vice president; Mrs. T. H. Dorsey, third vice president; Mrs. Frank Jolly, recording secretary; Miss Estelle Wright, corresponding secretary; Miss Oneda Durham, treasurer.

The June meeting at the cabin was the last of the season and an attractive program included a reading by Mrs. Sam Powers, a piano solo by Miss Esther Love Hillhouse, vocal solo by Mrs. Gus Boaz accompanied with piano and violin; reading, Miss Margarite Holland; violin solo, Mrs. Gus Boaz. Mrs. Tom David at the piano. Selections from light operas were played by Mrs. David, after which Miss Doris Crutchfield, as the new president, brought a message which she introduced with the verses, "Keep on a Goin'", uring the members to keep in touch with the work during vacation.

Sympathy Extended.

Georgia clubwomen will be distressed to hear that Mrs. C. A. Tyler, of Broxton, has lost her only son, Earle Lamar Tyler, who was drowned in Lake Erie last Sunday. Mr. Tyler was in Cleveland where, as an electrical engineer, he was sent to arrange for broadcasting the program of the republican convention. On Sunday, he was cruising with friends, became ill, and went on deck where he fell overboard. To the bereaved family, Georgia Federation extends deepest sympathy.

Mrs. C. E. Pittman, of Commerce, member of the John Floyd chapter, United States Daughters of 1812, attended the meeting of the state council in Atlanta on Tuesday. Mrs. Pittman will continue her club work as chairman of the division of law observance under the new administration.

Parliamentary drills will feature each morning session at Club Institute in Athens, July 8-9. This is of more than usual interest since the leader, Mrs. Hampton Fleming, is a recognized authority on parliamentary procedure, having taught this subject for a number of years and is author of the book, "The Heart of Parliamentary Law."

Mrs. C. E. Glausier, of Quitman, president of second district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, has been elected president of Quitman U. D. C. Mrs. Glausier has accepted the chairmanship of art on the board of the new federation president, Mrs. A. B. Conger.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham B. Conger, of Bainbridge, passed through Atlanta today en route to the national democratic convention in Philadelphia.

Toccoa Woman's Club elected officers at the June meeting as follows: Mrs. W. A. Bailey, president; Mrs. R. A. Addison, vice president; Mrs. Rufus Harding, second vice president; Mrs. George Busha, recording secretary; Mrs. Ben Cheek Jr., corresponding secretary; Mrs. Laura Ramsey, treasurer; Mrs. E. F. Chaffin, audito; Mrs. G. C. Walters, parliamentarian.

Hogansville Woman's Club sponsored a beauty contest and Virginia Smith was named "Miss Hogansville." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pearce Smith and will represent her city in the "Miss Georgia" contest in Warm Springs.

Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, General Federation director for Georgia, spent two days at state headquarters this week helping complete the state yearbook which will carry the activities of the past administration. Mrs. Ritchie returned recently from visits to New Jersey, Ohio and Indiana, where she spoke at conventions of women's clubs.

Indiana Federation has issued a challenge to Georgia for next year because of the friendly contest in securing subscriptions to the Clubwoman GFWC, which resulted in Georgia's winning by one point.

Canton Woman's Club members entertained their husbands at a steak fry Friday evening. This is an annual event of the club's social activities and is eagerly anticipated by both members and husbands.

Mrs. J. M. Simmons, of Bainbridge, corresponding secretary of Georgia Federation, was in Atlanta Tuesday for the state council meeting of the United States Daughters of 1812. Mrs. Simmons is second vice president of the state society and president of the Bugler Hughes chapter in Bainbridge.

In her speech at Augusta convention, Mrs. W. W. Seymour, of Chicago, told the story of the early spring benefit given by a certain club where the drawing card was that strawberries would be served. The large, anticipating crowd assembled to be confronted with the sign, "Because of the high price of strawberries we are serving prunes." The committee in charge of arrangements for Club Institute in Athens, July 8-9, promise the very best this season offers, and no fooling.

Summer is the season when many clubs prepare programs for the autumn. General federation headquarters, Washington, D. C., has material on every activity sponsored, which may be secured by writing for it. The division of literature has recently issued programs for women's clubs which is most comprehensive.

Miss Mary Bethel, president of Fifth District, Georgia State Nurses' Association, has gone as a delegate from the district to the National Congress of the American Nurses' Association, which meets in Los Angeles, Cal., on June 26.

Mrs. Ritchie Discusses Advantage Of Club Institute on Today's Page

By Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens, Director for Georgia G. F. W. C.

On July 8-9 Georgia clubwomen will again gather in Athens for the annual club institute. This important event, held each year since 1927 through the co-operative efforts of the University of Georgia and the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, has been a venture which is the admiration of organized womanhood. Other states have asked for our plans and have duplicated them or adapted them to their own particular conditions. In every state where I have had the privilege of contacting clubwomen, soon or later, I have been asked to tell them of the Georgia Club Institute.

Leaders and members alike have been enthusiastic about the plan. Other organizations in our own state have seen the successful outcome of an ambitious attempt to improve the quality of work done in our state, district, and local organizations and have decided that emulation would be a worthy virtue and have established similar training courses for their membership. The time has come when the basic idea of this co-operative action between the state university and the federated clubs is accepted as being the best plan whereby increased information, new inspiration, and a closed co-ordination of activity is gained by the clubs and a new and vital method of functioning in the life of the state is offered to the university.

We are very proud of the fact that it was in Georgia that the idea originated; that it was in Georgia that the trail was blazed that is now held to be most promising highway to successful organization, to well planned club activity, to an individual membership which can value a situation, determine what should be done, and the manner in which it can best be done.

The committee and the university endeavor to insure the continuance of the high quality of direction, of leadership, of inspiration through the type of program given, through the quality of the personnel chosen to participate, and through the addition of new and intriguing features. This year we have as our director, Mrs. Hampton Fleming, of Virginia, the new chairman of the club institutes of the General Federation.

Mrs. Fleming is charming, epitomizes everything that we are accustomed to associate with the best of southern womanhood, and is extremely well prepared to discharge all the duties of her new office. You who had an opportunity to meet her in Augusta will be eager to hear her in Athens and I am sure that you will not be disappointed. The program will be unusually practical in its discussion of those things which are of greatest interest to club members and executives and I know that this will have a wide appeal.

Certainly, no new president of a club, or chairman of a state, district or local committee can better prepare herself for the tasks which lie ahead than by coming to the sessions of the institute on July 8-9. We are told bu university officials that a dormitory will be opened for the visiting clubwomen and that all expenses will thus be at a minimum figure. The additional registration fee is so small (this is the one thing that I am asked in other states not to tell about our plans here) that a miniature vacation with vacation joys, inspiration and companionship is offered at picnic prices.

Prepare your club problems for an airing, pack some cotton dresses, assume your happiest smile, and come to Athens where together we will seek solutions in coolness, comfort, and with joyful companionship. I am looking forward to seeing you on July 8-9 at Memorial Hall.

Lexington Club.

Lexington Woman's Club held the June meeting with Mrs. Wallace A. Mason, with fair attendance. The president, Mrs. C. R. Crawford presided and Mrs. Lillian Bush, the chaplain, gave the collect. Mrs. George Barron presented the retiring president, Mrs. E. J. Maxwell with a past president's pin. The report of the Oglethorpe County Federation, which met at Sandy Cross on June 6, was given by Mrs. T. W. Crawford. The next meeting of the county federation will be held the last week in August at Lake Kathvir when elderly members of each club in the county will be honored.

In the absence of Mrs. Earl Reynolds, the program chairman, Mrs. E. J. Maxwell had charge, giving the highlights of the General Federation of Women's clubs, which was held in Miami in April. Little Helen Maxwell gave the reading "The Li'l Brack Sheep," which was enjoyed.

Meansville Club.

June meeting of Meansville Woman's Club, with Mrs. J. E. Owen presiding, was held in the club room. Mrs. Owen stated that money raised by school grade mothers had been spent for piano bench, bulletin boards and first aid kits. A committee on resolutions was appointed composed of Mesdames E. M. Slade, W. M. Slade and Eula Reeves. The chairman of poetry requested that each member write stanzas before the July meeting, and read verses "To Our President."

A community picnic was planned for July 4 and Mrs. W. J. Barrett and Miss Kathleen Nelson were appointed to attend to the invitations. Mrs. J. B. Gill was welcomed as a new member. A program on "Child Welfare and Mothercraft" was given. Miss Rose Gill read a scripture lesson and Mrs. C. S. Slade offered a prayer. Mesdames Eugenia Barrett and Taft Gill gave readings.

New Acousticon Acclaimed Most Remarkable Hearing Aid

It is generally conceded that the new hearing aid recently perfected, has done more to relieve deafness than any discovery in the field of acoustics. Among the many improvements are the following:

Powerful amplifier develops greater volume, and consumes less current. Clarity has reached a level never before attained. Excess noise has been eliminated. All models are designed for use over the telephone. It is easier and more pleasant to wear. Range of volume control extended in both directions—can be made louder or softer at will, permitting long range reception and close conversation comfortably.

Perpetual, full strength battery—fresh every day, 15 hours a day, 365 days a year. Maintains even flow of power at its highest peak and for 12 to 15 hours consecutively. The only hearing aid with lifetime service guarantee.

It is lighter in weight, requires less battery current. Far more efficient than its predecessors and their competitors.

Private demonstrations can be had without cost or obligation at A. K. Hawkes Co., 83 Whitehall St., or in your own home, by appointment. Sold on 12 months' payment plan or liberal discount for cash. Generous allowance is made for old electrical hearing aids.—(adv.)

MISS LOUISE ELIZABETH HAWKS.

KENSINGTON, Ga., June 20.—The marriage in New York city on July 3, at the Church of the Transfiguration, of Miss Louise Elizabeth Hawks, only daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Z. V. Hawks, of Kensington, to Moses Claude Turman, of Atlanta, formerly of Canon, is of interest to relatives and friends.

The bride's mother is the former Miss Rosa Say Richardson, of Marion, S. C., and her only brother is William Hawks, of Kensington. Miss Hawks graduated from West Point High school and received an A. B. degree and diploma in piano at LaGrange College, where she was a popular member of the Kappa Tau Theta sorority. For the past two years Miss Hawks was a member of the faculty of the Heard County High school, in Franklin, Ga.

Mr. Turman is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. William Parks Turman, of Canon. The groom's mother is the former Miss Mary Etta Agnew, of Canon. He is a graduate of Canon High school and attended Piedmont College. For a number of years Mr. Turman was associated with the First National Bank. At present he holds the position of assistant treasurer of the Trust Company of Georgia.

Lithonia Clubwomen Invite Neighbors To June Meeting

A neighborhood meeting, to which near-by clubs were invited to send guests, was held Thursday by the Lithonia Woman's Club at the clubhouse. Invitations were sent to Decatur Woman's Club, Stone Mountain Club, Avondale Garden Club, Clarkston Homemakers Club, Conyers Civic Club, Covington Club and the club at Oxford, to join in a discussion of real club problems, such as membership and dues, profitable projects, interesting programs, what to do with a clubhouse, how to interest our juniors, and other topics.

Mrs. C. J. Tucker, president of Lithonia club, had charge of the forum, and called on the guests for their comments, with the result that a highly profitable day was enjoyed, with a valuable exchange of ideas. Mrs. P. J. McGovern, fifth district president, discussed the value of a constitution and by-laws in the conducting of club business, pointing out that inadequate rules may be responsible for friction and misunderstanding in any organization. Mrs. W. Guy Hudson, president of Decatur club, gave a helpful resume of the work of her club, with emphasis on the increase in membership, and the functioning of the separate departments. She answered questions concerning the use of the clubhouse, and distribution of dues.

Mrs. W. H. Goulder, of Avondale, explained the plan for raising part of their dues, each individual earning $1 through personal effort during the summer. She also outlined their civic projects, calling on neighboring clubs to co-operate and make the beautification of roadsides a continuous vista of beauty. Mrs. C. R. Vaughan, president of Conyers league, outlined the extensive library work and gave some of the successful financial programs used to obtain funds. Mrs. Nelson Severinghaus, of Lithonia club, discussed some phases of that organization's work, and an exchange of ideas was given by department chairmen. Guests, in addition to reporting presidents, included Mesdames J. L. Bond, J. C. Davis and E. J. Stueue of the Avondale club; Mrs. Wellington Stevenson, of Decatur Club; Miss Irene Irwin and Mrs. C. R. Cannon, Conyers; Mrs. Inman Ragsdale, of Decatur; and Mrs. A. J. Kirby, of Augusta.

Federation membership cards were distributed to paid-up members by Mrs. Edgar Bailey. Miss Birdie Chapman, program chairman, reported that yearbooks would be ready at the next meeting. Miss Vivian Haslett, the librarian, announced a summer reading course for children. Mrs. J. B. Jackson, fine arts chairman, gave an invitation to club members to attend a Lithonia sewing school on July 1. Mrs. Alton Tribble, junior advisor, turned in paid-up memberships for the members of that department, and gave a report of their Mother's Day banquet. Other resumes were given by Mesdames E. E. West, Della Rogers, Charles L. Davidson, Judson Phillips and C. B. Irwin. Hostesses were Mesdames Keay Davidson, Idus Goddard, Homer Daniel, H. W. Ward, Maggie Wilson and Hines Moore. The July meeting, to which husbands and friends will be invited, will be held at night at the clubhouse with Alan Harvey Brooks as guest speaker.

For O. E. S. Officers.

Mrs. Pauline Dillon, worthy grand matron of the grand chapter of Georgia O. E. S., and J. W. Riley, worthy grand patron, will be honor guests at a meeting of Martha Chapter, No. 128, O. E. S., on June 23 at 8 o'clock. Past grand matrons and patrons will be honored at this meeting. Miss Emma Burnett is worthy matron of Martha Chapter and Judge E. D. Thomas is worthy patron.

First District Head Speaks at Meeting Of Millen Club

Mrs. G. M. Barnes, of Midville, president of the first district, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, attended the annual meeting of the Millen Woman's Club on Tuesday. In her address she said. "This club excells any in the state for team work. I am proud to have you in my district. I am proud of the things you stand for. I commend you on the stand you take in putting forward the best things in life. I especially commend you for barring alcohol and smoking from this fine new community house."

Mrs. Charles Wadsworth, the president, presided for the luncheon which preceded the annual business meeting. Mrs. Dan Johnson and Mrs. Kate Frye, violinist, gave a musical program. The following visitors were introduced: Miss Winnie Jones, Statesboro; Mrs. J. B. Hendricks, Lakeland, Fla; Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. John Renfroe Jr., Mrs. Joe Jones, Midville; Mrs. Jones Bargeron, Sardis; Mrs. Basil Howard, Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. W. M. Corbett was added to the membership.

Committee reports were made by Mrs. A. S. Boyer, program; Mrs. C. Thompson, music; Mrs. Ben Johnson, library; Mrs. Ben Neal, Tallulah; Mrs. Q. A. Mulkey, health, Mrs. C. B. Landrum, cemetery; Mrs. Chapple Chander, better homes, Mrs. R. H. Brinson, citizenship; Mrs. Math Newton, civic; Mrs. Ralph Lee, garden; Mrs. F. S. Boyer, international relations; Mrs. Robie Gray, highway beautification, Mrs. John Bates, building.

The librarian, Mrs. Hendrick Brinson, reported 193 books added and a circulation of 14,899. Changes in the administration of the school library and the addition of a WPA helper will relieve the club for a time of expense of the library but at the September meeting the advisability of beginning a public library, separate from the school library will be taken up. Mrs. Landrum's work at the cemetery was commended and $25 voted to assist in upkeep of the cemetery during the summer. Mrs. Andrew Sparks expressed appreciation for the enthusiastic efforts of Mrs. Wadsworth and pledged support to her for the coming year.

Mrs. Wadsworth named her standing committee chairmen: programs and year-book, Mrs. C. M. Turner, music, Mrs. C. Thompson; library and education, Mrs. W. E. Pafford; Tallulah, Mrs. Ben Neal; health, Mrs. Ernest Thorne; cemetery, Mrs. C. B. Landrum; better homes and gardens, Mrs. Ralph Lee; citizenship and civics, Mrs. I. O. Parker; street and highway safety, Mrs. Gordon Ellison; annual meeting, Mrs. W. H. Hatcher Every member of the club will be placed on a standing committee. Bylaws and constitution were changed to meet present needs, with the parliamentarian, Mrs. Forest Boyer, presiding. Officers are Mrs. Wadsworth, president; Mrs. Brantley Daniel, vice president; Mrs. P. W. Martin, treasurer; Mrs. A. S. Boyer, publicity, these succeeding themselves. New officers are Mrs. D. W. Johnson, succeeding Mrs. Murias Daniel, recording secretary; Mrs. Worley Graham, succeeding Mrs. Q. A. Mulkey, corresponding secretary.

Miss Nicholson's And Mr. Pentecost's Marriage Announced

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., June 15.—Widespread interest is centered in the announcement made today by Dr. and Mrs. John Wesley Nicholson of the marriage of their daughter, Jacquelyn Britt, to Charles Lee Pentecost, of Lawrenceville and Atlanta. The bride is the only child of her parents and is of colonial and Revolutionary ancestry. Her maternal grandparents were the late John Hugh Britt and Ada Garner Britt, of Lawrenceville. The late Rev. John Wesley Nicholson and Roberta Jeffress Nicholson, of Virginia, were her parternal grandparents.

She received her education at Wesleyan College and the University of Georgia, where she was a popular member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority and the Psi Chi honorary fraternity. Since her graduation she taught at Montezuma, and later was associated with the Atlanta Journal.

Mr. Pentecost is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. William Francis Pentecost, of Lawrenceville. His brothers are William V. Pentecost, of Atlanta; Larry E. Pentecost, of Norfolk, Va., and Hal W. Pentecost, of Lawrenceville. His only sister is Miss Annelle Pentecost, of Lawrenceville. He descends from a long line of prominent ancestors, including Maltbies, Winns, Borns, Brogdons, Vaughans and Pentecosts.

His maternal grandparents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Wilson L. Vaughan, of Lawrenceville, and his paternal grandparents are Frank T. Pentecost and the late Mrs. Ophelia Born Pentecost, of Lawrenceville. His great-great-grandfather, the late William Maltbie, of Fairfield, Conn., was one of the founders of Lawrenceville in the early 1800's, having named Lawrenceville for Commander James Lawrence, war hero of 1812. He also named the main streets of the town for famous naval officers of the 1812 war.

Mr. Pentecost's great-great-great-grandfather, the late Jonathan Maltbie, of Connecticut, was a commissioned naval officer under President George Washington in 1791. This commission is in possession of Frank T. Pentecost at this time.

After graduation at the Lawrenceville High school, Mr. Pentecost took a business course in Atlanta. He has been connected for three years with the Retail Credit Company. After a wedding trip through the Carolinas, Mr. and Mrs. Pentecost will reside at their apartment, 1130 Piedmont avenue, N. E., Atlanta.

Christian Council Holds Installation At Annual Meeting

New officers of the woman's council of the First Christian church were inducted into office at the annual meeting on Tuesday as follows: President, Mrs. D. C. Spickard; general vice president, Mrs. L. W. Austin; recording secretary, Mrs. Fred Nabers; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Roy Bivins; treasurer, Mrs. Fleming Ragsdale; missionary treasurer, Mrs. H. C. Phipps; librarian, Mrs. O. T. Craver; first vice president, missions, Mrs. Chester Martin; second vice president (financial), Mrs. A. P. Mayfield; third vice president (fellowship), Mrs. A. C. Day; fourth vice president (educational), Mrs. H. C. Phipps; fifth vice president (house), Mrs. R. A. Burnett; sixth vice president (social service), Mrs. C. S. Brooks; seventh vice president (spiritual), Mrs. C. R. Stauffer. The impressive installation service was conducted by Dr. C. P. Stauffer, pastor of the church.

Annual reports of officers and chairmen of the council were a special feature of the meeting. Mrs. Chester Martin, first vice president, reported a uniform study of missionary books in each group, and map studies of Latin America. In Mrs. Martin's department a barrel of canned foods were sent to the Jacksonville Christian Home at Thanksgiving. Woman's Day was observed in December, with Edwin Marx, secretary of the China Christian, as speaker. World Call Week was celebrated in January, with the presentation of the playlet, "The Cure-all Clinic," at the church-night supper. The missionary department sent a cablegram and a gift of $20 to their living link missionary, Mrs. J. D. Montgomery, in South America, at Christmas.

Mrs. C. S. Brooks, social service chairman, reported relief work among the people in the church community. Special relief work for the following projects of love were reported: Old Ladies' Home, Red Cross, Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Southern Christian Home and Grady Hospital. Mrs. C. D. Nolan, Red Cross chairman, reported 100 garments made by the women of First church.

Mrs. Walter Jamerson, supper chairman, reported that weekly church suppers had been successfully served by the women of the council. Also teas each Sunday evening to the young people. Mrs. W. F. Wilson reported the purchasing of a number of new baptismal robes and towels.

Mrs. D. C. Spickard, the new president, possesses the characteristic of an able executive. She is a woman of deep faith, gentleness and love for Christ and the church. She is also treasurer of the Georgia Council of Federated Church Women. She left Wednesday for a vacation with her husband in Madisonville, Ky., and after a two weeks' stay will return to Atlanta to resume her duties as president. Mrs. L. W. Austin is the retiring president of the Woman's Council.

Visitors attending the luncheon following the meeting were Mrs. Howard Gray, of Sarasota, Fla.; Bruce Nay, secretary of the Georgia Christian Missionary Society, and J. H. Quick.

Manchester W. M. S.

Twenty-five members were present at the June meeting of the Manchester Methodist W. M. S. Especial attention was given to plans for entertaining the district meeting on June 24. Mrs. H. B. Doster reported the society was sending a negro woman to the training school at Paine College. Mrs. Dan Grubb reported the mission study book had been completed and articles from the World Outlook will now be used for study. The president, Mrs. H. R. McLarty, announced plans for a fellowship tea this month in honor of the new members. Mrs. H. G. Mingea and Mrs. P. W. Hanson.

Mrs. J. H. Montgomery led the program emphasizing service by "The Least of Us." The monthly leaflet was discussed by Mrs. J. R. Jackson, who pointed out opportunities now open for volunteer service.

Circle No. 2, Mrs. George Powers, chairman, led in attendance.

Summer Assemblies Are Planned For Many Baptist Young People

On Tuesday morning Baptist girls between the ages of 16 and 25 will be going from all sections of Georgia and all southern states to Ridgecrest, N. C., "In the Land of the Sky." There for ten days they will attend the Southwide Young Woman's Auxiliary camp, sponsored by the Southern B. W. M. U. Thirty-two of the Georgia girls will stay in the Georgia hut, "Harmony Hall." Others will stay with their counselors in other cottages. An interesting feature of the ten-day period will be the southwide stewardship declamation contest in which a representative from each of the southern states will give a five-minute talk on some phase of stewardship. The one most clearly explaining the meaning of stewardship will receive an award of $50. Miss Henrietta Whited, of Oakland City Baptist church, Atlanta, is to be Georgia's representative in this contest. More than 800 girls are expected to attend. Mission study classes will be taught and inspirational messages will be given by Christian leaders of the south and several foreign fields.

For those who are yet too young to enjoy this mountain-top experience, the B. W. M. U. of the state is promoting special plans. There will be at Bessie Tift College a state Girls' Auxiliary house party, July 13-18, for Baptist girls 13 through 15 years of age. This will be followed by a state Royal Ambassador conclave, July 20-25, for Baptist boys from 9 through 16 years of age. The state young people's secretary, Miss Miriam Robinson, will direct each of these, assisted by a faculty and counselors from various parts of the state. Missionaries and other out-of-state speakers appearing on the programs are: Scott Paterson, missionary from Africa; Mrs. Norman Williamson, missionary from Japan; Miss Emma Leachman and Joe Burton, of the home mission board; Mrs. Frank Burney, southern W. M. U. representative, and Miss Juliette Mather, southern W. M. U. Young People's secretary.

Happy and profitable vacation days are awaiting Baptist young people of the state and south!

Euclid Ave. W. M. S.

The W. M. S. of Euclid Avenue Baptist church met at the church Tuesday, with Mrs. Ione Jarrell, former president, presiding. The pastor, S. A. Cowan, led in the Bible study, taking as his subject, "Grace."

Mrs. J. H. Zachary, secretary of the third district of the Woman's Missionary Association, was speaker and gave a most inspiring talk on the "Fundamentals of the Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention" as a whole, and then stressed individual responsibility in the matter of "Service for the Lord."

Mrs. J. Ernest Williams, W. M. U. Young People's leader, was also a visitor and spoke of her experiences with the adolescent age, stating what a joy it was to work with young people. After the inspirational messages, a business session was held.

Jubilee Tea.

The W. M. S. of First Methodist church, Mrs. Edward G. Mackay, president, will entertain at a jubilee tea celebrating 50 years of home mission work on Tuesday at 4 o'clock. Mrs. Preston S. Arkwright has graciously opened her home and garden for this lovely affair. Friends of the church and hostess are invited.

Atlantan Sends Musical Library To University in Tokyo, Japan

The musical library of the late Mrs. Dora Duck Seidel has been sent to St. Paul's University, Tokyo, Japan, through the Church Periodical Club of the Woman's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity church, Decatur.

A letter from Karl Branstad, organist and choir master, to Miss Bertha Duck, donor of the library, says in part: "We have a large chapel and quite a good small Estey organ, a gift from the Woman's Auxiliary of the diocese of New York. For the past ten years I have been trying to develop a feeling for music and choral worship in the Nippon Sei-Kwokwai (the Episcopal church in Japan). I think I can fairly say that our university has made its influence in music felt throughout Japan.

"Beginning at scratch, we have built up two good choirs in the university which sing choral services four times a week. I have a course of music of the church which is offered to divinity school students and a flourishing guild of organists who are doing fine work in parish churches after they graduate from St. Paul's. The equipment for this work I have had to get together for myself as best I could. Much of our organ music is in manuscript and there is precious little of it—so you can imagine with what joy your sister's music was received and to what good use it will be put."

Mrs. Seidel was dean of the Atlanta chapter of the American Guild of Organists and organist at St. Luke's Episcopal church.

The Church Periodical Club aids the work of missionaries by sending books, magazines and music to them both of technical, religious and fiction quality. They also send church school material to outlying isolated districts and conduct correspondence church schools among some of the children living on homesteads, miles from the various churches. Shut-ins often help with this work, by phoning for magazines, books, victrola records and by writing the necessary notes to accompany the sending of packages.

Mrs. Springman, of Columbus, is diocesan chairman with Mrs. Stephen B. Ives, of Atlanta, as her assistant.

Story Telling Day.

Story Telling Day will be observed by the W. M. U. of the fifth district, beginning at 10 o'clock, Wednesday, at West End Baptist church. Miss Ida Rhodes and Mrs. H. C. Bagwell will be in charge. All juniors and intermediates of the fifth district are invited to attend. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock

Interesting Island.

NANTUCKET—THE FAR-AWAY ISLAND, by William O. Stevens, Dodd, Mead & Co., New York. 313 pp. $3.

This is a travel book about Nantucket, the most interesting island in America. It was known to the Indians, Mr. Stevens tells us, as "The Far-Away Island." And so it must have seemed to the original Americans, having only their canoes to navigate 30 miles of sea. The aborigines likewise had a tradition as to the origin, not only of Nantucket, but of a sister island, Martha's Vineyard. The giant who used Cape Cod for his bed, so the legend goes, found one night that his moccasins were full of sand, so he flung them into the sea, and the sand that was in them formed the islands.

The first half of the book deals with the background of history. Lord Sterling, who held the island under patent from the crown, disposed of Nantucket to Thomas Mayhem in 1641, who in turn sold it some 17 years later to nine purchasers for the "sum of 30 pounds in good merchantable pay . . . and two Beaver hatts." He specified that one of the hats should be for his wife.

Settled largely by Quakers in search of freedom and liberty of action denied them on the mainland, Nantucket soon took its place alongside the prosperous commercial centers of the immediate seaboard.

Here they built a high type of civilization. Peace and happiness, in spite of hardships that only stout-hearted men and women such as they were could stand, reigned in the island homes.

A century ago the island had its own manners and customs which differed in a number of ways from those of the "off-islanders." A list of the words and idioms peculiar to Nantucketers are given by the author. One of the unique institutions was the "Cent School," for young children; each child paying one cent a session for instruction in the three R's.

Turning to whaling for a living, the surrounding waters abounding with whales, afforded these fighting Quakers ample remuneration. In the course of time the skippers located the feeding grounds of the sperm whales, and we really enter the era of whaling; its rise and decline during 200 years is an interesting record. When it was in its prime the men-folk were away in the Pacific and other oceans on voyages lasting two and four years.

These 200 years of sea-faring furnish thrilling accounts of shipwrecks, mutinies, and wives who went to sea with their skipper husbands. The depths of depression and heights of prosperity left marks on the islanders during these 200 years.

The reign of the Quakers, to a considerable extent, is a story of the island under petticoat rule. While the men were at sea for several years at the time, the women-folk kept the "home fires burning." And even petticoats in that day were not awed by congress, as one would judge from a female satirist's couplet:

"And instead of congress to meet every fall,
We'll think it much better to have none at all."

The island architecture is individualistic. The houses have many unique features, such as the "widow's walk" along the ridgepole, a railed-in promenade where the wives could go and scan the sea for a returning sail.

Mr. Stevens tells us of the old houses, streets, wharves and the historic shrines; the village of Siasconset, its traditions and especially of the famous actor colony; the "moors" that cover the island; the inhabitants, "islanders" and "off-islanders."

The author has ornamented his book with upward of 50 pen and ink drawings, thus presenting to the mind and eye his delightful story about "The Little Grey Lady of the Sea." And of her we are reminded that "she still wears her burden of the years gracefully with a sort of lavender and old lace dignity. She sits on her low hills still looking out upon the sea from which her ships have long since vanished. Once the mistress of a great heroic industry, the sperm whale fishery, which reached the uttermost corners of the seven seas, she is now in 'reduced circumstances.' Like many another old lady of the old regime, she is now obliged to take in 'paying guests' for a living. But she has not forgotten her past, and she has actually gained in beauty. Indeed she is well worth knowing. . . ."

Pioneer Days.

"CLEARING IN THE WEST," by Nellie L. McClung. Flemming H. Revell Co., New York. 378 pp. $2.00.

"Clearing in the West" is a very interesting personal narrative of experiences in the life of the author, Mrs. McClung. It is a story of true pioneering from Ontario, Canada, west to the great prairie country in the 1880s. It might be termed a history of the northwest in the '80s; of the varied types and characters that made up the host of settlers who rushed into the virgin country during the most colorful era of its history; when huge herds of bison had ceased to roam the plains and the Indians had been forced into reservations when this new territory was thrown open to the public.

It was the desire for better homes that prompted the wagon trains to rumble over scarcely outlined trails, brave spirits that dared the wilderness and privations for the sake of a new civilization. Some succeeded while the less hardy fell by the wayside to be turned back, or be helped by the stronger. This dramatic drift of population from east to west will never loose its glamour to the real American as he realizes that such people as the writers' family were the real builders of empire, pushing their civilization before them until the vast Pacific was reached.

Such a book as "Clearing in the West" does much to restore confidence in us all, these full blown sketches of every day living instills new fight and courage in those of us who feel that at times we are beaten. The great free lands of the west are now a thing of the past, but when such a book as this comes forth it tends to make us wish that we might have had our chance to participate in the settling of the great western empire.

Mrs. McClung has won her place among contemporary novelists by her clear cut and interesting manner of registering her thoughts in appropriate words and correct phraseology. Her first novel, "Sowin' Seeds in Danny," was a superb western story which enjoyed a degree of popularity seldom experienced by first books of unknown writers.

Studies Course of Crime

Samuel Kahn, M.D., Ph.D., Atlanta scientist, whose crime researches at Sing Sing prison, form basis for an authorative revelation on development of criminal element.

Study of Crime.

SING SING CRIMINALS, by Samuel Kahn, M. D., Ph. D. Dorrance & Co., Philadelphia, 1936. Price, $2.60.

This book was written by an Atlanta resident, who is a psychiatrist. The two introductions to the book are by Professor P. R. Radosavlejevich, of New York University, who is one of the most outstanding educators and anthropologists, not only in this country but even abroad, and Professor R. E. Wager, of Emory University, who is foremost in the educational field in the south.

"Sing Sing Criminals" is written very clearly and scientifically. It is intended as a text or a library reference book. It is very compact, concise, and is fully illustrated with tables, diagrams, and charts. It is the only one, or one of the very few books, co-ordinating and correlating sociological, psychological, medical and mathematical factors in crime, all in one volume.

Although it is written more or less in the form of a thesis and in scientific form throughout, yet there are a number of paragraphs and even chapters, which may appeal to the average intelligent individual. After once reading this book with understanding, it will be impossible to entertain any further superstitions and misconceptions regarding crime. One can readily see by Dr. Kahn's deductions the relations between neurosis, psychosis and crime, in this book. In addition to a very clear glossary which defines most of the technical terms used in the book, there are also in the appendix several clear-cut histories, as well as the results of autopsies which have been performed following electrocution of murderers. An outstanding bibliography, systematically and numerically arranged, it at the end of the book.

The deductions show definitely the most accurate and scientific work, with numerous correlations and interpretations of important elements which have been carried out in the gathering of data and the conclusions which form the foundation of the book.

It is interesting to note that the mental ages of over 2,000 Sing Sing inmates approximate the mental ages of the United States army. The belief that highly educated people are at Sing Sing prison is disproven. The tables further show that American born criminals populate Sing Sing rather than foreign born. Many of the inmates had various school difficulties, and the absence or neglect, or ignorance on the part of their parents. This volume is recommended for the private libraries of all who are interested in humanity, and in view of the statement of J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal "G-Men" that crime is costing the United States $15,000,000,000 every year, Dr. Kahn's researches and findings form the basis for an attack on crime at its roots, rather than ceaseless, inefficient and discouraging efforts to trim its widespreading branches.

Instructive.

PROPAGANDA AND DICTATORSHIP, edited by H. S. Childs, Princeton University Press (1936). 153 pp. $1.50.

This is a collection of papers by six university professors. In 1934 a round table on the same topic was held at the sessions of the American Political Science Association at Chicago and the participants were requested later to prepare their papers for publication.

Among the essays in the book are "State Propaganda in Germany," by Fritz Morstein Marx, of Harvard University; "State Propaganda in Italy," by Arnold Zurcher, of New York University; "Political Propaganda in Soviet Russia," by B. W. Maxwell, of Washburn College; "The Ideologic Foundations of the Danubian Dictatorships," by Oscar Jaszi, of Oberlin College; "The Scope of Research on Propaganda and Dictatorship," by H. D. Lasswell, of the University of Chicago, and "Propaganda as a Function of Democratic Government," by G. E. G. Catlin, formerly of Cornell University. The means of propaganda in dictatorships, it is pointed out, are the radio, the press, moving pictures and textbooks.

In the past few years a considerable amount of study has been made of propaganda and with good results. This book is very interesting and instructive. It should make people in democratic countries more determined to guard against government control of certain public opinion agencies.

Circus Animals.

LIONS 'N' TIGERS 'N' EVERYTHING, by Courtney Ryley Cooper. Little, Brown & Company, Boston. 400 pp. Illustrated. $2.50.

Here is a big book of true stories about the animals in a circus, written by one of the best authorities on the subject—a man who as a boy of seven made his first visit to a circus, got a job as a peanut vendor, and was promptly rushed home. But at 16 he ran away and joined a circus, and for some years he was a "circus man." Later he became a newspaperman, and joining Buffalo Bill as press agent and secretary he went back to the circus business.

A gifted writer on various subjects, he tops them all when it comes to circus stories—fiction or fact. In this book you learn how animals are trained and cared for; how friendships develop between animals and their keepers, and circus lore that will make your next circus attendance more enjoyable.

Before the Mast.

JUJU, by Virgil Anthony Liberta. Naylor Co. San Antonio. 209 pp. $2.

"Juju" is a tale of true adventure on the high seas before the mast, bound for that glamorous, yet mysterious continent, Africa.

Young Victor Tassoni runs away from school to ship as a seaman on a freighter to the west coast of Africa, after having been warned against the brutal heat that would be encountered, as well as the mad customs of the natives and a crew of the worst cutthroats that could be recruited from the docks.

The book opens with smashing adventure and continues until the last chapter has been read. Seaport dives never visited by tourists, weird rites carried on in defiance of British and French law by savages who are civilized by day and cannibals by night.

The narrative is a happy medium of adventure, humor, pathos and satire, which go to make up a book that shall be hard to put aside until finished. Several of the illustrations are by the author who is also an accomplished artist.

Although this is Virgil Liberto's first novel, he commands a distinctive style of writing and a clear-cut facility of description, aided and abetted by a ready store of illuminated phrases. The book is to be highly recommended. —OLIN SNEED.

Informative Value.

SOUTHERN REGIONS OF THE UNITED STATES, By Howard W. Odom. University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill, N. C. 644 pp. $4.00.

Dr. Howard W. Odom needs no introduction to students and others interested in history and sociology. Since his graduation from Emory University in 1904, Dr. Odom has devoted himself to research more or less along social lines, especially studies of negro life and songs. President Roosevelt, shortly after his inauguration, appointed the author as a member of his "Commission on Social Trends." He has published several volumes to date on the result of his findings in this scarcely explored field, of which the present book is included. The research and compiling of the data, which resulted in "Southern Regions of the United States" in published form, was for "The Southern Regional Committee of the Social Science Research Council."

This work is one of the most comprehensible books ever published, utilizing more than 700 varied indices and some 600 maps, charts and tables, giving a realistic picturization of southern regional culture. This perspective, as a matter of course, is in relation to time-quality, to geographic factors as well as the cultural equipment and behavior of the native residents.

After analyzing the various trends one ultimately comes to the conclusion that this section of the nation is in the midst of a dramatic struggle for mastery over an environment capable of producing a much greater degree of civilization, but the fact of being confronted by a complex existence and cumulative handicaps make the nature of such future developments problematical.

Dr. Odom decisively contends that regardless of a convential social inventory the facts point toward a greater realization of inherent capacities of the southern regions.

"Southern Regions of the United States" is by far one of the best reference books ever to have been published on the culture, resources (both natural and industrial) history, wealth institution and folkways of the southern people. A bibliography of 16 pages accompanies the book, as well as a listing of the other sources from which the author drew his material. Anyone desiring a ready reference on conditions within the south should not hesitate to acquire this profound and scholarly work.

Indian History.

CHEROKEE MESSENGER, by Althea Bass. University of Oklahoma Press, Norman, Okla. 348 pp. $3.

Althea Bass, although a native of Illinois, went to Oklahoma with her parents at the age of 14. Her preparatory school education was received in that state, and after graduating from Fairmount College in Kansas, she obtained her master's degree from the University of Oklahoma. This volume of Mrs. Bass is one of two commemorating the Centennial of Printing and Publishing in Oklahoma, the observance of which was sponsored by the University of Oklahoma Press in October, 1935.

"Cherokee Messenger" is a biography of one of the greatest of Indian missionaries, Samuel Worcester, called by the Cherokees of Georgia and Tennessee, A-Tse-Nu-Sti, the messenger.

In 1825, a young minister and his younger bride left Boston heading south to the land of the Cherokees with but one thought uppermost in the minds of both—the propagation of the gospel of Jesus Christ to the unbelieving redman, willing to sacrifice their all in the glorious attempt. Worcester began to achieve success from the beginning by his straightforward manner and sympathetic understanding of his charges. It was this selfsame missionary who vitalized Sequoya's Cherokee alphabet by the means of the printing press in the original home of the Cherokees in the south and later in the territory set aside for them west of the Mississippi river.

In 1835, Samuel Worcester cleared a forest at Union Mission and Park Hill and in what is now Oklahoma, to set up presses from which were printed more than 13,000,000 newspapers, textbooks, almanacs and tracts from the Bible, typed in the language of the Cherokees, Creeks and Choctaws.

The reader is introduced to the life of the Indians in the south; the struggle against oppression fostered by the then governor of Georgia, Gilmer. They were a people who loved peace, were highly educated, and above all things else were a Christian nation. The reader follows the migration of the Cherokees over "The Trail of Tears" to the new western territory after having been forcibly driven from the lands of their fathers; the settlement of the new wilderness by the tribes; the organization of Indian government and the institutions established by them in the new land.

The book is an arresting chapter of the American Indian and the history and the development of the west. This is the twelfth volume of a series on the Civilization of the American Indian, published by the University of Oklahoma Press.

Reference Work.

THE NEW INTERNATIONAL YEARBOOK FOR 1935. Edited by Frank H. Vizetelly, Litt. D., LL.D. Cloth. 776 pp. Illustrated. $6.25. Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York.

Looking at the record of events in the year 1935, thoughtful persons are mostly likely to receive the impression that they have been given the unjointed pieces of a two-or-three-thousand-piece jigsaw puzzle. And also, after reading the entry of each and every event and piecing them together, that the puzzle somehow, after all, doesn't make sound sense.

If the events of this year are looked at merely as events and without any relation to certain principles, it would be hard to come to any other conclusion. Yet, in the light of certain definite principles these events take on a new significance and a new value.

It must be remembered that the principles around which the events of 1935 revolved and the events themselves have been and probably continue to be a subject of bitter controversy. Personal decisions of our citizenry do not seem to have fallen into very well-defined or distinct categories.

However, the editors of this volume are entirely without bias and without prejudice. Theirs is the task of recording these events and of relating them to other events and to principles so that the true significance of the year's happenings may be evident to all who seek satisfactory information regarding them.

Surely the activities of such a year as 1935 must be of vital interest to every one. So much occurred that was of immediate importance to large groups of people and the nation as a whole that the year may not be quickly forgotten. There were other occurrences, the results of which may weave themselves indelibly into the warp and woof of the distant future, not only of this country but of the world.

Unquestionably, this volume will prove indispensable as an addition to every library, and of immeasurable value to the individual who would base information on facts. The editors have provided in a single volume a greater wealth of information regarding the past year than is to be found in any other work of like scope and purpose published.

Royal Tragedy.

ROYAL WEDDING. By Florence Riddell, 315 pp. $2.00, J. B. Lippincott, Philadelphia.

Once in a great while some one writes a story that has the land of make-believe as the place of its happening. "Royal Wedding," by Florence Riddell is just such a story. Mythical Rusnya is the home of Tania the 16-year-old daughter of the unpopular king. Tania is the only one of the royal family to escape with her life when the revolting populance take over the government. She is forced to live among the peasant people, and has a trying time. Forced to marry to aid the country that has treated her so badly, Tania has a hard life; but the way she works out her own troubles, and the satisfactory ending makes this book good reading.

Interesting reading of a different sort. Story from the land of make-believe. Courts, castles, kings and queens, prince and princess, give this story a send-off that is much like a fairy story. Peculiarly delightful. Has that which makes the reading of imaginary stories interesting. Light in plot yet deep enough to create the desire to read every word. The life of a crown princess with all of its joy and sorrows, its fears and hardships are woven into this book.

Other books by Florence Riddell are "The Misty Pathway," "Kismst In Kenya."

JESSE R. PETTY

Clever Satire.

PATRIOTISM PREPAID, by Lewis J. Gorin. J. B. Lippincott, Philadelphia. $1.

A wise young college man, the founder of the Veterans of Future Wars, has seen his opportunity to put forth his doctrine and also to cash in on a strange hoax. Lewis J. Gorin, Princeton '36, wrote this amusing satire in about a week, which is just about the time that should have been spent upon it. Although it is clever and biting at times the whole program is so obviously a typical college boy reaction to the American Legion propaganda that it deserves little attention.

There is an undercurrent of bitterness which rings true to the undergraduate feeling in most colleges concerning wars and the masters of wars. There is a deal of figures and statistics on pensions and bonuses which show work on that field. On the whole it is an amusing book about a movement which seems to cause the Legion to defend the bonus. It's worth the hour spent reading it and worth perhaps a little more to those who have not heretofore considered the extreme humor in the government pension system.

Romantic Detective.

GUNSTON COTTON, Secret Service Agent, by Rupert Grayson. E. P. Dutton & Co. New York. 320 pp. $2.

This book introduces Gunston Cotton, who will vie with several other clever secret service agents for popularity in the minds and hearts of the country's mystery fans. This big-spirited, clever, gay, romantic detective leads the reader through romance, intrigue, adventure in a story that leads to breathless excitements.

The theme of the exciting story in secret service work is the existence of a mysterious treaty which binds the nations of Asia against the western world. The plot, explosive with intrigues and treachery, reaches an amazing climax at an old inn among the fens of eastern England.

Witty and clever, daring and gay, this swift-moving and intrepid hero makes his American debut in this book.

Outing Information.

WILDERNESS TRAIL BOOK, by "Deep River Jim." Open Road Publishing Company, Boston, Mass. 320 pp. Illustrated. Paper, 50 cents.

This little book is filled with interesting and practical information for men and boys—fishermen, campers, hikers, hunters, Boy Scouts—for everyone to whom outdoor life appeals. For years the author has fished the lakes and streams of the United States, hunted in its forests, climbed its mountains. His knowledge of outdoor life and sports is founded on long experience, and he tells his stories in an entertaining and instructive manner.

A resume of work accomplished during the year and discussion of activities planned formed the business session. The regent stated that the history award given annually to the pupil in high school making the highest average in American history was presented to Miss Virginia Hudson by Mrs. John S. Adams, state regent, at her graduation exercises. Good citizenship awards were presented to Nell Cochran and Tommy Baldwin, of junior high school, by Mrs. J. M. Courie.

Mrs. Wilbur Jones was welcomed as a new member and Miss Muriel Metts, Mesdames G. C. Partee and Shelby Goza were elected to membership, subject to the acceptance of their application papers. Mrs. John S. Adams, state regent, installed the following officers: Regent, Mrs. E. T. Barnes; first vice regent, Mrs. J. M. Courie; second vice regent, Mrs. M. A. Rogers; chaplain, Mrs. M. A. Shewmake; recording secretary, Mrs. A. T. Coleman; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. J. Guyton; treasurer, Miss Mamie Ramsey; historian, Mrs. A. J. Hargrove; registrar, Miss Katherine Chappell; genealogist, Mrs. A. J. Toole; librarian, Mrs. M. Z. Claxton; auditor, Mrs. Albert Geeslin; editor, Mrs. Roy Orr; custodian, Mrs. C. C. Crokett; curator, Mrs. S. M. Kellam.

As a token of appreciation of her two years of efficient service Mrs. Adams presented to Miss Chappell as a gift from the chapter an ex-regent's bar and ribbons. Papers on American patriots who were outstanding orators and statesmen during the Revolutionary were read by Mesdames H. G. Stevens and George Powers, and a reading from Alfred Tennyson by Miss Maryan Smith. Mesdames George Gordy, M. Z. Claxton, Earl Camp, Alice Brinson and Miss Leah Kittrell were social hour hostesses.

Nancy Hart Chapter met recently at the home of Mrs. J. L. Beeson, with Mesdames Howard Underwood, E. C. Seaman, Dixon Williams and Harris Yarbrough as hostesses and Mrs. George Tunnell, the regent, presiding. Vote authorized the state president of Georgia Society Children of the American Revolution, Miss Josephine Bone, to extend invitation to Mrs. Mark Smith, state director, to hold the state convention in Milledgeville in September. Officers installed by Miss Alice Napier were: Regent, Mrs. Charles L. Moore; first vice regent, Miss Elizabeth Ferguson; second vice regent, Mrs. Roy Alford; recording secretary, Mrs. Y. Harris Yarbrough; corresponding secretary, Mrs. M. H. Bland; treasurer, Mrs. L. P. Longino; auditor, Miss Martha Thomas; registrar, Mrs. J. I. Garrard; historian, Mrs. J. L. Beeson; chaplain, Mrs. S. W. Thornton; custodian, of flag, Miss Virginia McCraw; parliamentarian, Mrs. Guy Wells. A duet was rendered by Mrs. M. H. Bland and Miss Maggie Jenkins.

Briar Creek Chapter of Sylvania met at the home of Mrs. J. S. Powell with Mrs. W. B. Lovett co-hostess. Mesdames Lovett, Powell and C. D. Hollingsworth took part on the program. The following officers were installed: Regent, Mrs. T. J. Black; vice regent, Mrs. B. C. Burke; treasurer, Mrs. W. B. Lovett Jr.; recording secretary, Mrs. E. K. Overstreet; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. D. Hollingsworth; registrar, Mrs. W. E. Hudmon; historian, Mrs. J. S. Powell; chaplain, Mrs. J. C. Reddick; librarian, Mrs. Waile Perkins. Committees were appointed as follows: Program, Mesdames Spencer Powell and C. D. Hollingsworth; marking historic spots, Mesdames B. C. Burke, G. M. Hill and P. R. Kittles; park, Mrs. Wadie Perkins; patriotic defense through patriotic education, Mrs. W. B. Lovett Jr.; membership, Mrs. W. E. Hudmon; scrap book, Mesdames W. B. Lovett and R. E. Hollingsworth; conservation and thrift, Mesdames A. R. Roberts and Lewis Overstreet; genealogical research, Mrs. J. E. Hart; better films, Mesdames P. R. Kittles and W. B. Lovett Jr.

Savannah Chapter, D. A. R., met at the home of Mrs. Robert H. Roux and the annual reports of the officers were given. Thirteen new members were added during the year, three being Mesdames Edwin Maner, J. R. Maddock and Lindsey Henderson. Mrs. A. L. Patterson conducted the memorial service for Mesdames Margaret Walker and Ruby Freeman Arnold. Mrs. Harold L. Tuthill reported on the continental congress and told of the visit to the White House when Mrs. Daniel, the state regent, presented Mrs. Roosevelt with 12 service plates from Georgia D. A. R. Mrs. Phillip Morgan read a paper on Austin Dabney, a negro who rendered faithful services during the Revolutionary War.

Toccoa Chapter has the following new officers: Regent, Mrs. Viola Arnold White (H. L.); first vice regent, Mrs. Jenna Sue Milner (Tom); second vice regent, Mrs. Carter Schaefer Marks (J. W.); recording secretary, Mrs. Anna Lois Harris Allgood (L. L.); corresponding secretary, Mrs. Janie Lawrence Wilkersop (T. L.); treasurer, Miss Jewel Hayes; registrar, Mrs. Joe Lawrence Gross (Frank); historian, Mrs. Maude Gilmer (Swift); custodian, Mrs. Mary J. White; chaplain, Mrs. Laura Franklin (Rollo), and reporter, Mrs. Pauline Teasley (Olin).

William Marsh Chapter met at John B. Gordon hall, when the following officers were named: Regent, Mrs. D. W. Stiles; vice regent, Mrs. T. W. Lee; recording secretary, Mrs. F. M. Shaw; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. A. Puryear; treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Enloe; historian, Mrs. J. E. Patton, and chaplain, Mrs. E. A. Cooper. The 100th anniversary of the John B. Gordon Hall at Lafayette was celebrated on June 14 under the auspices of the William Marsh Chapter, when patriotic and civic organizations joined in the program. Mrs. D. W. Stiles presented the chapter with an iron mortar and pestle, which has been in the Park-Lane families for over 200 years and was used in making medicine for slaves. Mrs. T. W. Lee was in charge of the program, and taking part were Mesdames J. E. Patton, D. R. Thurman and Miss Robbie Graham.

Bainbridge Chapter met at the home of Mrs. Morrison P. Shingler, in Donalsonville with the regent, Mrs. Will O. Gaines, presiding. Ways and means committee reported that over $25 had been made on the benefit bridge recently. Mrs. T. R. Ramsey read an article on the Star Spangled Banner, followed by the singing of patriotic songs, accompanied by Mrs. Gordan Chason.

Miss Preetorius and Mr. Smith Will Wed in Statesboro, Ga.

STATESBORO, Ga., June 20.—Interest centers in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Charles Preetorius, of Statesboro, of their daughter, Miss Mary Little Preetorius, to Derward Smith, of Milledgeville and Detroit, the wedding to take place early in July.

Miss Preetorius, whose mother is the former Miss Emma Warnock, of Brooklet, is a descendant of one of the oldest families in Bullock county. She graduated from Brooklet High school and Southern Business University and is connected with Davison-Paxon.

Mr. Smith is the son of Mrs. Lucius D. Smith and the late Lucius D. Smith, of Milledgeville. He graduated at Georgia Military College and received his B. S. degree in commerce from Mercer University where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

After their marriage the bride and groom will make their home in Detroit where Mr. Smith is connected with one of the automobile manufacturing companies.

BRIDGE ACCORDING TO CULBERTSON

By ELY CULBERTSON.

THE NEW TWO-WAY THREE BID

LAST Sunday I discussed the need for a new type of preemptive bid that would have the vital shutout feature of the old type without sacrificing slam opportunities. I stated that at last a solution to this difficulty has been found in the form of the new "two-way three bid."

The Vexing Problem of Solid Suits.

Imagine that you hold:

♠ A K Q J 10 5 2, ♥ 6 3, ♦ A 5 3, ♣ 7.

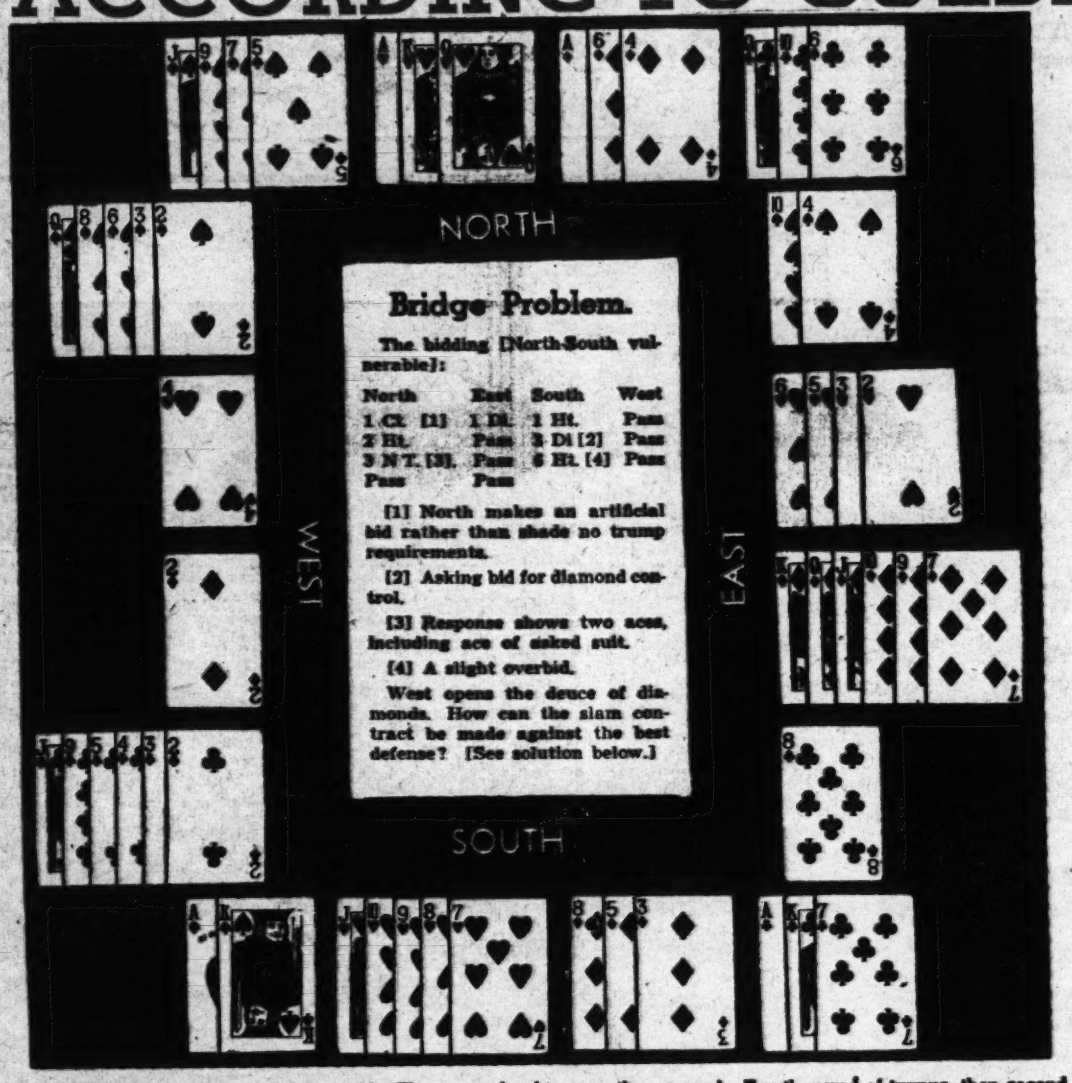

No matter what you bid, no matter how you bid, your partner will never believe, short of kicking him on the shin, that you really have a ready-made suit. And, because he will never believe you, he will either keep on pushing his suit across your way or he will drop you at the very first opportunity with a sigh of relief.

This family of ready-made suits is of extreme importance, constituting a large part of the swing hands. It is almost futile with such hands to start the bidding with a suit bid of one and then try to build up inferences. The more you bid your suit the more scared your partner becomes. For this reason it has been decided to reserve the level of the opening three bid for the ready-made or nearly solid suits, regardless of whether the hand contains outside honor strength or not. Partner is then enabled to recognize unmistakably a suit that needs no help and can concentrate his attention on defense (if the hand contains nothing but the long trump suit) or attack (if the hand contains outside honor strength).

Requirements for the Opening Two-Way Three Bid.

The minimum requirements for any opening three bid in a major or a minor suit are:

1. Honor Strength: The range of defensive winners varies from zero to about four and a half.

Bridge Problem.

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

North	East	South	West
1 Cl. [1]	1 Di.	1 Ht.	Pass
2 Ht.	Pass	3 Di [2]	Pass
3 N T. [3]	Pass	6 Ht. [4]	Pass
Pass	Pass

[1] North makes an artificial bid rather than shade no trump requirements.

[2] Asking bid for diamond control.

[3] Response shows two aces, including ace of asked suit.

[4] A slight overbid.

West opens the deuce of diamonds. How can the slam contract be made against the best defense? [See solution below.]

SOLUTION: Diamond ace wins first trick. Three rounds of trumps, then a spade. Fourth round of trumps, then second spade lead. East is now "counted" for six diamonds (from his bid and West's lead of deuce, which must have been singleton), four hearts, and two spades, therefore can have only one club. South leads the club ace and then club seven, winning in dummy with the ten spot. Leads spade jack and discards club king! West wins, but must return either spade or club into dummy's two established tricks, while declarer discards losing diamonds.

2. Total Winners: The range of total winners (including defensive winners) varies from seven sure winners to ten.

3. The Trump Suit: Either a ready-made six card or longer suit, or one containing not more than one possible loser.

Note 1. After partner has passed, the three bid can be made with a seven card or longer trump suit containing two possible losers.

Note 2. If not vulnerable and playing with a careful partner, a three bid in the position of third hand may be shaded to about six winners.

Note 3. Hands which meet the requirements for an opening two bid should, as a rule, be opened with two, regardless of the ready-made suit.

Note 4. The requirements are the same whether vulnerable or not vulnerable, except that if not vulnerable a slightly greater leeway is allowed.

As a rule, no hand which includes a ready-made suit or one containing but a single loser and which meets the other requirements of the three bid should be opened with a bid of one.

The three bid therefore carries the negative inference that if partner fails to open with a bid of three he very probably does not hold a ready-made or a nearly solid six card or longer suit; or, he has not seven winners.

The Crucial Question.

At this point the only question in the reader's mind is, "How can the opening bidder inform his partner without confusion whether he holds a weak (the shutout type) or a strong (the possible slam type) hand?" The answer is: By means of the signoff and the asking bid.

In the opening hand the signoff and asking bid levers operate as follows: No. 1. The weak (shutout) three bid

♠ 5, ♥ 3, ♦ K J 10 9 7 6 5, ♣ Q J 10 8.

No. 2. The strong (almost certain game) three bid

♠ A K Q J 4 3 2, ♥ 3, ♦ A Q 3 2, ♣ 5.

There is offered during the month of June a pair of stars for each of the first four Sundays, or a total of eight pictures for the month. The names of the stars are given in the coupon, and will likewise appear in future coupons for the month of June.

All eight pictures for the month of June are now available and can be secured on terms stated in the coupon to the left. The studio supplying us with these pictures can supply them only in groups of eight—four pairs—two for each of the first four Sundays in any one month. They will not supply them to us in any other way, and we are therefore compelled to offer them to the public in groups of eight as they are offered to us.

Orders sent for less than eight pictures specified in any one month cannot be filled. Cut out coupon No. 3-C, which is for June 21 and send to The Constitution with 16c for all eight pictures, if to go by mail, or present this coupon with 10c at The Constitution office, circulation department.

I Hate Being Sensible

by Margaret Sullavan

Margaret Sullavan: "I Don't Want to Keep My Feet on the Ground."

THE WORLD is full of critics and nobody can escape them. Least of all a motion picture player. I have been called a temperamental, mad will-o'-the-wisp, a person who flits through life like a butterfly, never getting her feet on the ground. Well, I am glad of it.

I don't want to keep my feet on the ground.

I would much rather float in the clouds, pamper my whims and cultivate my moods. Those are things which add zest to life, which take it out of humdrum monotony. And in my opinion, nothing is more deadly than to get caught in a whirlpool that goes 'round and round without getting anywhere.

I want excitement, suspense, the uncertainties seldom found in a sensible, well regulated life. I never could subscribe to the moth-eaten axioms that certain things are done and other things just aren't done. I like to feel that I can do anything which strikes my fancy at a particular moment. That, to me, is living.

I had a wonderful time characterizing the madcap Cherry Chester in my last picture "The Moon's Our Home." She was impulsive and temperamental; one moment warm and tremendously human the next. She didn't want to keep her feet on the ground; said "life should be swift, reckless' starting on the heights, leaping into the void — never knowing the end, never caring . . . breathless, defiant, exhilarating."

Of course, she was exaggerating. But at the same time she described the most beautiful life I can imagine.

MY PASSION for an irregular life, if that's what you want to call it, is the outgrowth of the fact that when I was a child I had to keep my feet very much on the ground. As a youngster I was frail. I spent my life in cotton-wool, and my diet was the sort of thing devised to punish children who misbehave. If I had a sweet tooth, I had no way of finding out about it. When lollypops and ice cream were passed out to other children, I had to grit my teeth, smile sweetly and say, "No, thank you." I had learned from sad experience that deviating from my special diet meant getting mighty sick.

Today, I enjoy perfect health. Physically there are no barriers to anything I might want to do. I'm taking advantage of that; have been taking advantage of it ever since, as a school girl, I was attending summer camps in New England. And even in those days I rebelled at the strict rules which we were assured are sensible and existed only for our own good.

NOW nobody can tell me what I can or can't do—although a lot of people try it. If I suddenly decide in the middle of the night that I want to drive to San Francisco, I get in my car and go. If I want to duck an afternoon tea in favor of a fishing trip, I go fishing.

For instance, one night just as I was finishing dinner I was struck with the urge to go somewhere. I was despondent, probably because I was lonely. I decided that a change of scenery would do me good. Two hours later I was driving along the beach road toward San Francisco.

About 1 a. m. I stopped at a coffee shop at Santa Maria. The ham and eggs and toast and coffee tasted better than anything I had eaten for days. No one recognized me, for I was wearing corduroy trousers, a polo coat and a felt hat which half-covered my face, and I had on absolutely no makeup, not even powder.

I was tired when I reached San Francisco—but I felt a hundred times better. My blues were gone. Long drives, particularly at night, always cheer me when I am despondent. Do I need any better reason for taking them?

I went to a hotel, ordered breakfast sent to my room, ate and then went to bed. It was nearly 6 p. m., when I awoke, feeling like a new person. I decided to explore Fisherman's Wharf, of which I had heard a great deal but which I had never seen. The little restaurants were intriguing and the food was delicious. Never in my life had I eaten so many kinds of seafood at one sitting.

After dinner I went for a ride on the ferry boat. On several of them, in fact—to Sausalito, Berkeley and Oakland. If you've never ridden on a ferry in San Francisco Bay, you don't know how much fun it can be.

The next morning I went back to Fisherman's Wharf for breakfast. Imagine eating nothing but seafood for breakfast! But that is exactly what I did. Then I started home. When I arrived, it seemed as though I had been away for a week, instead of two days. Two glorious days. On the entire trip I scarcely talked to anyone. I knew a few people in San Francisco but I didn't let them know I was there. Having dispelled the feeling of loneliness with which I started, I wanted to be alone—and nowhere can you be so much alone as in a big city.

ANOTHER time I decided while eating lunch to go to New York. I called the airport for reservations on the afternoon plane, and fortunately was able to get a seat. The next morning I was there, and stayed for nearly three weeks.

There was nothing unusual about that trip except my sudden decision to make it. I did the things I always do when I am in New York. And I am there quite a lot because I have more fun than in Hollywood. Most of my friends live there, and they always keep me busy. Another thing I love about New York is the theater, and the fact that I can go anywhere without attracting attention.

This is the sort of freedom that makes life worth living. But you would be surprised to know how many people think I shouldn't have it. A girl in pictures is constantly running into persons who think they should control her life—both professional and private.

IN HOLLYWOOD, in truth, I'm always being told I should do this or that because of my "position." And it drives me crazy. As if anybody outside of Hollywood cared! If people like me on the screen, it is for what I do on the screen, and not for the way I live when I am not working. I know that the picture-going public will think well of me only because I have good roles in good pictures, and do the best I know how with those roles. If I took myself so seriously as to think otherwise, I would be silly.

But imagine yourself a picture player. You work, say, for six weeks on a film. For six days of each of those weeks, you cannot have a hair out of place. Your makeup must be perfect—which means that it has to be repaired a dozen times a day. You are dressed up like a Christmas tree, if you are working in a costume or drawing room picture, and you can't even sit down comfortably for fear of getting one wrinkle in your gown.

What would you do in the time that is supposed to be your own? My guess is that you would get as comfortable as possible. I do. If I want to wear low heeled shoes, slacks and a sweater I can't think of a reason in the world why I shouldn't. I dress in any manner that suits my mood at the moment.

And I still don't like to keep my feet on the ground.

What Was Justice In This Case?

By PETER LEVINS.

FIFTEEN-YEAR-OLD Hester Jackson died in her farm home near Laurel, Miss., at about dusk on the evening of Monday, October 15, 1934. Her father, George Lois Jackson, first dashed to the home of his brother, Wiley, to report the tragic news that Hester had shot herself, then hastened to get a doctor. Within a few minutes a score or more overall-clad farmers and their womenfolk had gathered in the unpainted, clapboard dwelling.

Tom Anderson, a neighboring farmer, was the first to enter. He found the girl lying across a bed in her room, dead from a wound in the chest. She lay on her back, the left arm extended and the right foot touching the floor. Her legs were bare. A spot of blood stained her freshly laundered dress near the heart.

The weapon, a "Long-Tom" shotgun, so called because of the lengthy 36-inch barrel, rested on the other bed in the room. There was a discharged shell on the floor, although the gun had no ejector.

George Lois Jackson Jr., 21-year-old brother of the dead girl, said that his father, his mother, his younger brother Kermie, 13, and himself had assembled for supper, and when Hester failed to come to the table the mother called to her that the meal was ready. Hester replied that she did not want anything to eat, that she was going to take a bath.

"We finished supper and Kermie went out to get a bucket of water," George Jr. continued. "When he was coming back into the kitchen a few minutes later, we heard a shot. I ran to Hester's room and Kermie followed me. Hester was lying across the bed. I picked her head up and called to her but she didn't answer.

"Father asked if she was dead, and then he ran to call a doctor. I picked up the gun and examined it. I dropped the empty shell on the floor and laid the gun on the other bed."

Dr. E. W. Williamson arrived. He noticed at once that, although the girl's dress was bloodstained over the heart, the shotgun charge had not passed through the fabric. As he attempted to undo the buttons he discovered that they were merely ornaments, spaced about two inches apart, with openings between barely large enough to have permitted the insertion of the shotgun muzzle.

Slitting the cloth with a knife, Dr. Williamson beheld a gaping wound under the left breast. The charge had entered the body apparnetly at a right angle. The underclothes and bed were saturated with blood, yet there was only that small stain on the dress. Powder burns indicated that the shot had been fired at close range.

At the doctor's request, Miss Lona Gilbert and her father, John, turned the body over. Immediately they all observed a folded piece of paper, which read

"Goodbye, mother. I hate to leave you, but I'm going. Pray for me. Your daughter, Hester."

The death was adjudged a suicide and no inquest was ordered.

Idelle Knight, a friend of Hester, helped dress the body for the burial the next afternoon. She, too, noticed that there was no shotgun hole in the dress Hester had been wearing. Idelle had herself cut out this dress and Hester had sewed it herself.

The body was laid to rest in the little cemetery adjoining the Fair Ridge churchyard. Naturally, the neighbors talked.

Almost every one in the community knew that Hester had been keeping company with A. V. Clark, a young man of the hill country, and that her stern father had bitterly opposed the romance.

Only recently Hester's older sister, Ola, had eloped. Hester had known of her sister's intention but had kept the secret from her father.

Jackson, highly religious, held the reputation of ruling his family with an iron hand. He often proclaimed that he did not drink, smoke or use profane language. Every Sunday he led his brood to services at the Holiness church. He looked upon dances, as well as most other social affairs, as "activities of the devil." He particularly disapproved of young people keeping company when they were still nothing more than silly children.

He was considered an honest and upright citizen. It was his proud boast that, despite all the hard times, he had never sought government relief or asked aid from any one.

According to the gossipers, Farmer Jackson had whipped the vivacious, romantic Hester on several occasions when he had learned she had seen young Clark.

On Sunday evening, it was recalled, the girl had attended a church party. She had remarked that her father had refused her permission to go but her uncle had interceded for her, and the father had given his grudging consent. Hester had been in gay spirits. And on Monday, when she was picking peas all day, neighbors had heard her singing.

"We don't believe Hester Jackson killed herself," asserted the young people of the community. Before long their parents were beginning to doubt this, too. Not that the situation did not contain the germs of suicide, for many a young girl, thwarted and punished, has taken her life in a moment of overwhelming depression. But Hester's friends did not believe that this had happened.

The result of all the talk was that Constable I. N. Parker, who lived about five miles from the Jackson home, launched a thorough investigation.

Neighbors told Parker that George Jackson had, to their way of thinking, acted strangely immediately after the tragedy and at the funeral services. They had expected him to be grief stricken; instead, he had shown no signs of distress over the child's death.

Oree Knight, who lived a short distance from the Jacksons, said that on the evening Hester died he had heard loud talking, shouts and weeping just before the sound of the shot. The voices, he said, had been those of Hester and her father, but he had not been able to distinguish what was said.

Lester Grice, nearest neighbor of the Jackons, told Constable Parker a most extraordinary story. He said that about a month before Hester's death George Jackson had talked to him about notes left by suicide victims. Jackson had asked to what extent such cases were investigated, according to Grice.

Two weeks later, the neighbor continued, George had visited him again and said, "Lester, you're going to hear something bad in my family before Christmas. My family has got it in for me and I have got to get by it some way. You will hear about it between now and Christmas."

Jackson had not explained what he meant by these cryptic statements.

Coming to the late afternoon of the tragedy, Grice said

"I was working in my field only a shot distance from the Jackson home. I heard Hester crying, and I stopped to listen. I heard the girl say something about leaving, and Jackson shouted 'Oh, no, you won't!' Then I heard Hester say, 'I'll write it if it'll do you any good.' Jackson called to Hermie to bring him a pencil. A few minutes later I heard Hester cry out, and Mrs. Jackson screamed. Then I heard the shot.

"I started walking toward the house to find out what had happened. Then I heard Kermie say, 'I can't. I see somebody on top of the hill.' Jackson shouted angrily at the boy, and then everything became quiet. I decided that I'd better not interfere in the Jacksons' family affairs and went back to my work. But I heard some one in the house crying."

"Did any one come running out after the shot?" asked the officer.

Grice shook his head. "I was coming to that. It must have been 30 or 40 minutes before George Jackson came out of the house. He walked toward his brother Wiley's house."

* * *

Tom Anderson, who had been the first to reach the house after the shooting was reported, added another detail to the rapidly developing picture of the tragedy. He said that about two weeks before Hester's death her father had said to him that before he would see her married to Clark he would "shoot her heart out."

Anderson also remembered that when he entered the farm house after the shooting he heard the mother cry, "I knew it was going to be George or Hester, and it turned out to be Hester."

To Constable Parker's way of thinking, it would have been impossible for the girl to have held the long shotgun in her hands in such a manner as to fire a shot straight through her chest. She might have lain on the bed and pressed the trigger with her toe, but Parker considered this improbable.

Armed with all these suspicious details, Parker conferred with Sheriff J. C. Bassett at Bay Springs, with the result that on October 24, nine days after the tragedy, George Jackson, his wife and two sons were arrested and held for further investigation.

Jackson, asked to describe his daughter's activities on the day she died, said that he had aroused her early to aid in preparing breakfast. She poured his coffee, and when he started to drink it he noticed a "peculiar taste."

"I believe the coffee was poisoned," said the father. "It tasted bitter so I threw it out and ate some butter and grease as an antidote for poison. I asked her what was the matter with the coffee, and she said, 'I don't know. There doesn't seem to be anything wrong with anybody else's coffee.' I watched her closely but she didn't seem to be disturbed."

He said that recently he had used some strychnine to poison chicken hawks, and this poison had disappeared.

Mrs. Jackson said that her husband and older son were still seated at the supper table, and that Kermie was bringing a bucket of water when they heard the shot. George Jr. refused to talk, and Kermie told of going after the bucket of water.

Jackson and the older son, clad in their overalls, were taken to the Jones county jail at Laurel; Mrs. Jackson, wearing the sunbonnet typical of the hill country, was placed in jail at Ellisville, and young Kermie was taken to the Jasper county jail at Bay Springs.

Sheriff Bassett himself went with Kermie to Bay Springs. The officer was convinced that his best chance of learning the true story of Hester's death lay with Kermie, a typically shy, unassuming farm boy. Bassett treated him with the utmost kindness, allowed him the run of the jail, and won his confidence, religiously avoiding the all-important subject.

Within a week the lad's reserve had given way to friendliness, and he became talkative.

According to Sheriff Bassett, Ker-

Hollywood's Biggest Gambler

Producer Walter Wanger and his newest star, Madeleine Carroll, another proof of his wise "gambling," and who can now be seen in his "The Case Against Mrs. Ames."

By Clarke Wales

"YOU must talk to Walter Wanger," I was told. "There is a man—the biggest gambler in picture business."

I had been in Hollywood long enough to know that generalizations about personalities should be taken with a bag of salt; people here love to toss off phrases. So I said "Yes?" and waited. Then from half a dozen varied sources came the story:

"Absolutely, my boy. He's terrific. He gambles on players nobody else in town will touch. He makes pictures from stories that no other producer would consider. He—well, look:

"He signed Charles Boyer after Boyer had flopped like a soft tomato; he signed Madeleine Carroll after she had done the same thing; he signed Henry Fonda without a screen test.

"He made a picture in Technicolor after the fiasco of 'Becky Sharp' had scared the industry into a color-blind fever. Not only that; he made 'The Trail of the Lonesome Pine' in color when experts told him that a color picture couldn't be made outdoors. Is Walter Wanger a gambler? He'd make Bet-a-Million Gates look like a two-bit piker!"

So I went to talk to Walter Wanger, in his office on the second floor of the old Metropolitan Studio. And found that he does not look like a gambler and his office does not look like a gambler's office. It is small, about the size of a three-dollar room in a modern hotel. The walls are plaster. On one side of the room, with windows behind, is a flat-topped desk, a gift from his staff last Christmas. On the wall opposite the desk is a portrait in oils of his wife. He has had but one wife; he married her nearly 17 years ago.

WANGER was wearing a soft gray flannel suit, with a blue slip-over sweater instead of a vest. His hair, what I could see of it, is crinkly and sprinkled with gray. He had his hat on when I arrived, for he was about to leave for lunch. He did not take the hat off; neither did he hurry the interview. He said: "What can we sell you today?"

I told him, point by point, the stories I had heard, and asked what he thought of them. Here is his answer:

"The only question is whether it is gambling or just a matter of a man knowing his business. I have been in show business, the theater and pictures, for more than 20 years. I have worked in it and studied it in this country and Europe. I should know what the public wants and something about how to supply it.

"There's nothing mysterious about show business. It's just the old law of supply and demand at work. Color, for instance—ever since the World War there has been a tremendous growth of the importance of color in human life, in advertising, in magazines, in home decoration, in clothes. The world has become color-conscious, and people have been striving for color in every function of life.

"It was only natural that color should come into pictures. There was merely the question of how it would be used.

"When we got ready to make a color picture, we knew that we had to have a story with mass appeal, a story that would be a good picture if it were made in black and white. Then we had to put into the picture color that would look natural to audiences. The result was 'The Trail of the Lonesome Pine.'"

Another result which Wanger did not mention is the fact that the picture, according to present returns, will make him a million dollars before it is taken out of circulation. He continued:

"And it was no more a gamble when we signed Charles Boyer. True, he had made one picture in this country and it had flopped. But I had seen him in Europe. I knew what he could do, and I knew that he had sometning no one else had on the American screen.

"It was the same thing with Madeleine Carroll. The screen needed an actress who looks and acts like a lady. She fills the need.

"You can get the whole idea from the wording of our contracts with players and directors. They are hired for 'rare, unique and irreplaceable talents.' If they are not rare and unique, and if they can easily be replaced, what is the point of having them?

"I WOULDN'T try to top Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, because it can't be done. I'm not looking for another Clark Gable. But I signed Henry Fonda because I think he is different; he has something other actors do not have. It's simply a matter of supply and demand."

No doubt other producers understand this most fundamental of economic principles. But Walter Wanger is not the only one who is successful. Wanger is "rare, unique and irreplaceable" in this respect: most producers study the product of the picture industry with the view of duplicating great successes. They are always looking for "another Valentino," "another 'Birth of a Nation' or 'Cavalcade,'" "another 'It Happened One Night.'" They discover demands that have already been met.

Wanger studies the industry with the view of finding out what it lacks that it ought to have.

He made "The President Vanishes" in the face of general skepticism—politics are not a subject for the screen. But at the time he made that picture, the three biggest news stories of the day were (1) what was going on in the White House; (2) war scares in Europe and the Orient; (3) crime, particularly kidnaping, in the United States.

In the face of even greater skepticism he made "Private Worlds," a story laid in an insane asylum. But it requires only the most rudimentary sort of second-guessing to point out that the world has been deeply interested in psychiatry ever since Herr Freud made inhibition a common noun; that the subject acquired only deft handling, which it got, and a good boxoffice cast, which it also got. People went to see it because Claudette Colbert was starred; they told their friends to go because it was a swell picture.

Wanger has been typed as surely as any actor has been typed on the screen. Because he has made some unusual pictures, and because of the Boyers, the Carrolls and the Fondas, he is called a gambler. When he started to make "The Moon's Our Home." Hollywood overlooked the fact that he had finally found something to supply the demand for another "It Happened One Night." The town emphasized only the possibility that he was taking a chance by casting Margaret Sullavan opposite her ex-husband, Henry Fonda.

HOLLYWOOD also overlooks, or has forgotten, the fact that Wanger brought to pictures Claudette Colbert, the Marx Brothers, Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland, Miriam Hopkins and Kay Francis.

And Hollywood overlooks his own career—his varied education, his association with Granville Barker—his war record and his experience with Jesse Lasky and Paramount.

At luncheon, a few days after I talked to him, the conversation turned to producers. "Have you done a story on Walter Wanger?" a friend asked me. "Boy, there is a man—the biggest gambler in picture business."

Ginger Prepares for a Sunny Game.

Ginger Rogers' Sun-Tan Recipe

By Grace Grandville

EVERY girl to her taste. You know whether you want to finish the summer with a hue like a squaw, or just let yourself get mildly golden in color. But if you choose to sun-tan much or if you choose to sun-tan little, at least be reasonable about it, will you?

If you take my advice, you'll content yourself with a warm beige tint. Unbiased observers admit a lighter tan is more generally becoming. And it is infinitely better for the permanent beauty of the skin. Sun-browning carried to the advanced mahogany stage invitably thickens and coarsens anybody's epidemis. It has to, because nature is forced to put forth a tougher coating as protection against the continual frying.

Let yourself get a really dark burn and it will take you months of careful creaming and patting with lotions to get your skin back to its original refinement—if you ever do. Certainly, I'm trying to throw a scare into you. Listen:

Two things happen when you expose yourself to strong sunlight for any length of time. The pigment in your skin darkens, which is what you desire, supposedly, and there is a constant loss of moisture and oil, which, if you know what's good for you, you do not desire at all.

SOME climates intensify this drying out. It is worse in desert country, in the high mountains and in sea or lake-shore places where the heat is so great it evaporates all moisture from the air.

Some individuals suffer from it more than others. Oily-skinned persons can stand the gaff better than their thin-skinned sisters. But don't fool yourself that anybody escapes the parching effect of too much sun unless precaution is taken. The precaution consists of increasing external lubrication. Never attempt any degree of sun-tanning without using more oil or cream on the exposed skin than it normally requires. The deeper you insist upon having your sun-tan, the more you ought to lubricate. Catch on?

I watched Ginger Rogers play tennis last Sunday and decided she had precisely the right shade of pale golden tan to set off a pair of white tennis shorts. The color harmony was milk and honey. Her skin looked smooth and soft as ever, too. I happen to know that Ginger has the fair, thin and very sensitive type of skin which is most difficult to tan harmlessly. So I asked her how she did it.

"By taking my sun in gentle sips, not greedy gulps," she laughed. "I start in acquiring tan in the early spring so as to be ready for beach and bathing suit time, which is my favorite time of year. Looks like my beach going is to be mighty limited this summer the way I'm having to work. But the tan is O. K., isn't it?

"I START my spring sun-bathing with about five minutes' exposure the first day. Then I slowly increase the time. But I never get to the point where I can bake for hours. My skin simply won't stand that kind of treatment. It seems to me all beginning sun-bathers should beware of the strong relaxing influence. What I mean is, it is fatal to relax to the extent of going to sleep. Serious burns are contracted that way.

"If you ever let yourself burn to the point where you peel, 10 days are lost. It will take that long to make up the lost tan. So much better to go slow.

"I always oil the entire surface of skin that is to be exposed to the sun. Cocoa butter is good. So is olive oil. Or you can use one of the sweeter scented combinations of oils created by several cosmetic houses for sun-bathing purposes. A girl really has a wide choice.

"After I've taken the water bath which follows the sun bath, I dab a soothing lotion all over myself to do away with any possible harshness even such cautious exposure might have caused. Hand lotion is ideal for this.

"Another thing to remember is that the sun is at its hottest and most powerful from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. There may be slight variations in other climates. But that's approximate. Thin-skinned blonds like myself should avoid much exposure between those hours."

GINGER thinks girls make a mistake if they don't protect that little triangle of skin on the chest which gets so weathered from the wearing of open-throated dresses in the summer time. That patch often gets darker than the surrounding skin and shows up badly in bathing suits and evening clothes. Wear scarves tucked into the front of your sports dresses and blouses, says Ginger.

Maybe you've forgotten the recipe for a perfect sun-tanning lotion I gave you last year. Here it is again, and there's nothing better. I've consulted all the experts.

Make a solution of one part pure cider vinegar with two parts pure olive oil. Use it copiously. On the French Riviera many fashionable sun-bathers mix olive oil with strong tea and anoint themselves. Pretty smart, too. Tea has tannic acid in it and tannic acid solution is the best known treatment to counteract the effect of burns.

Gertrude Berg's Two Families

By June Aulick

IT ISN'T unusual these days to find radio stars who are also wives and mothers.

But it is unusual to find them facing the problem which Gertrude Berg faces —that of being mother to two families at the same time, one real and one imaginary.

You all know Gertrude Berg as the creator of The Goldbergs, that famous radio family whose tribulations are being aired now over the Columbia network.

Perhaps you have also read of her real household, of her husband who is a successful chemical engineer, her two children, Cherney Robert and Harriet, and her cozy pine-paneled duplex apartment.

But you'd never guess the complications that arise from Gertrude Berg's double life.

It's exacting enough making a household like hers run smoothly, even with benefit of efficient secretary, maid, cook and chauffeur, and finding time not only for writing but directing and acting in five shows a week.

What really makes it difficult for Gertrude Berg, however, is keeping track of the activities of her two families.

She never writes her scripts ahead, because that mixes her up. The Goldbergs have a day by day life with its little events and happenings, just as real to her as the life of the Bergs.

For example, there is the little matter of birthdays. Now let us say that July tenth is circled on the calendar as a birthday. But is it Sammy Goldberg's birthday, or that of her own son, Cherney?

And it is no simple matter to keep the demands of the two families from interfering with each other.

NOT long ago, for instance, Gertrude Berg was giving an important Friday night family dinner. There were to be 24 guests, with evening clothes the order of the day, gefulte fish, chicken and noodles, and all the trimmings.

Everything went off smoothly. Then, in the middle of dinner, the Goldbergs popped insistently into Gertrude Berg's mind. It was just a brief incident in the life of her imaginary family, but it was not to be denied.

Mrs. Berg excused herself and went into the library for a moment. Three hours later her family knocked on the door. She was still writing feverishly, and had forgotten all about the dinner party.

Sometimes a voice, a snatch of conversation, an incident in the lives of her servants starts her off. Immediately she retires to the library and starts to write in her hasty scrawling longhand. Only her husband can read her writing, so he transcribes it on the typewriter for her when several scripts have accumulated.

Mrs. Berg is not a woman who believes that her career is more important than a family. Her job of being a mother comes first. But sometimes the exigencies of business make it difficult for her to deal with her problem of discipline. She has worked out her own solution for combining the two.

Occasionally the shenanigans of the Berg children emerge on the air as the doing of the Goldbergs. And when Mrs. Berg comes home after a broadcast of misbehaving Goldbergs, she is likely to be greeted by fourteen-year-old Cherney with an anxious:

"Mother! Was that supposed to be me tonight, when Sammy spoke?"

And mother often has to admit that it was. But it would be hard to find a more effective way of showing Cherney just why he shouldn't do or say certain things.

IF THAT doesn't work, Gertrude Berg has another trick of making discipline take which has become something of a family joke by now. If Cherney or Harriet commits a youthful indiscretion, she looks at the culprit with sadness in her deep brown eyes, and says:

"I'm a failure. I'm a successful failure."

It almost always works.

As all Goldberg fans know, the mythical air family, having climbed to Park Ave., has met with reverses and is starting all over again on New York's East Side.

It is a life far removed from the circle in which Mrs. Berg moves on Central Park West. But she keeps in touch with it through her tremendous interest in people.

Gertrude Berg — Molly Goldberg on the radio — has plenty of trouble keeping things going smoothly in her own family, and also in that adopted one you hear about over the Columbia Broadcasting System. But she likes it.

Quite a while ago she started exploring. With her secretary—and constant companion—Mrs. Fannie Merrill, she would go off on jaunts, leaving Harriet and Cherney in charge of their governess.

All day long Mrs. Berg and Mrs. Merrill would explore New York, getting to know as many different kinds of people as they could.

Sometimes in the evening they would drop in on a Broadway dance emporium. The two women would sit down and watch the floor. Soon they would be talking to the hostesses. Now and then, the young ladies became suspicious of the questioners. They thought they were being high-hatted. And they would explain hastily:

"You see we really only do this at night. In the day time we go to college."

Mrs. Berg just smiled sympathetically. She didn't laugh because, behind the obvious white lie, she saw the very human desire to make a good impression. In the ladies' lounge she would watch the girls coming and going, their actions, their tone of voice, their coquetry, and their expert manner of applying makeup.

ONE night Mrs. Berg and her companion were walking along Eighth Ave. when their attention was attracted by a middle-aged woman, poorly dressed, who was staggering uncertainly across the street. Something about her prompted "Molly" to grab her friend by the arm and follow. The woman's destination was a telegraph office, where she asked the man at the counter to send a wire asking for money. When the telegram had been dispatched, the woman started out the door with Mrs. Berg and Mrs. Merrill close behind.

"Can we help you across the street?" they asked, noticing the woman's hesitancy.

She was glad to accept their offer—and then she asked if they would buy her a cup of coffee. Sitting in the restaurant, she told them of her start as a chorus girl in the Follies; about her daughter who had a good position but never came to see her mother any more. For all her sympathy, Gertrude Berg could understand how the daughter felt.

And the next time she wrote an address for "Molly's" Forum on the air, she was careful to point out that parents have duties to their children, as well as the other way around.

So from her own family, from dance halls, club meetings, from theater lobbies, smart restaurants, the homes of friends, public buildings, any spot in the world that Mrs. Berg visits, come the words and phrases, the characters and situations that she recreates for the Goldbergs. She just can't help listening to and observing the people around her.

ONE night recently I dined with Mrs. Berg in an expensive mid-town restaurant, noted for its exceptional food. The place was crowded, but I was impressed by the lack of clatter and chatter usually so disturbing in a popular dining spot.

"I think this room must be soundproof," I observed.

"I'm afraid it is," Mrs. Berg responded. "I haven't been able to get all of this conversation back of me."

But the next minute she was giving me a pretty complete account of all that the two girls had been saying. Her ears are so keenly attuned now that there isn't much she misses, and not much that she can't reproduce in accurate fashion.

Voices mean a great deal to her. Lately she has formed the habit of originating new characters after hearing a certain voice, on the stage, in a trolley car, in audition rooms. The voice often suggests a whole new series of situations and a change in plot.

While in a sense Mrs. Berg may be said to be working all the time, she doesn't stick to a hard and fast schedule. She can't—and go off on the rambling excursions that provide so much of the material and background for the Goldbergs.

Freddie Bartholomew's Latest R

Screen and Radio Reviews Vivid Tale of Family Strife

By J. D. Spiro

FREDERICK CECIL BARTHOLOMEW, whom film fans know better as Freddie, has been a star of the American cinema for 18 months or more, but none of the photoplays that scenarists have contrived for him has been so poignantly and honestly realistic as the off-screen drama in which this young English lad has been reluctantly starring since mid-April of this year.

Opening in London, the drama's scenes later moved to Southern California, where mostly in lawyers' offices and courtrooms its plot has been unfolding week by week.

As Screen and Radio Weekly goes to press, the last act of the play is apparently drawing to a close, with an announcement by Mrs. Bartholomew's lawyer that an agreement had been reached out of court.

Under the agreement, Freddie's salary would be divided in three portions: one to maintain him and his aunt; another, to establish a home for his parents in Hollywood; and the remainder to be set aside in a trust fund for the child actor.

The dramatis personae of this absorbing piece consists principally of the following:

Freddie, aged 12 years on Feb. 8 last.

Cecil Llewellyn Bartholomew, Freddie's father, a copying clerk in the English Civil Service, Bureau of Agriculture and Fisheries, who lives at No. 2 Wallorton Gardens, East Sheen, London, England.

Mrs. Lilian May Bartholomew, wife of Cecil and mother of Freddie, same address as her husband.

Miss Myllicent Mary Bartholomew, sister of Cecil, aunt of Freddie, who formerly lived at Warminster, 80 miles south of London, now resides in Beverly Hills, Calif.

Frederick Robert Bartholomew, father of Cecil, grandfather of Freddie; residence, Warminster, England.

Mrs. Emma Bartholomew, mother of Cecil, grandmother of Freddie, also of Warminster.

The story opens nine years ago in London. There in the crowded, smoky factory district of Harlesden lived the little family of a partly disabled World War veteran, Cecil Bartholomew. The household consisted of the father, the mother, Lilian May, and three children, Eileen, then 7 years of age; Hilda, 5, and the baby, Frederick Cecil, 3.

CECIL BARTHOLOMEW had served with Canadian forces in the great conflict, had been severely wounded and had come out of the war 84 per cent disabled (according to the standards of the British war office), and minus one leg. The Canadian Government had awarded him a pension and to this he managed to add a small sum by working as a copyist in the British Bureau of Agriculture and Fisheries.

At this same time, down in the pleasant countryside of Wilts, at Warminster, 80 miles south of London, lived Frederick Robert and Emma Bartholomew, the parents of Cecil, with their unmarried daughter, Myllicent Mary. The elder Bartholomew was a retired accountant.

Up to this moment little Frederick Cecil had known only the care of his father and mother, but late in 1927, for reasons which have been in dispute, he was taken from Harlesden to the home of his grandparents at Warminster. It was a fateful move for Freddie, for there he was given largely into the care of his aunt, Myllicent Mary, but for whose influence upon his childhood the drama now being played probably never would have been written.

Aunt Myllicent, who soon came to be known to the boy as "Aunt Cissie," took a fond and lively interest in her nephew. She soon discovered that he had far better than average mentality.

By the time he was 5 years old, Freddie, under the tutelage of Aunt Cissie, could recite many little poems and long passages of Shakespeare, which to him apparently seemed like music, for he is reported once to have remarked, "I don't know what they mean, but I love the sound."

Aunt Myllicent saw such promise in little Freddie that in 1929 she made an agreement with his father by which she was to look after his education, with the understanding that the boy was to be permitted to live at the grandparents' home. Under this agreement definite arrangements were made for the disposal of Freddie's future earnings. These provided that the aunt was to receive all of these up to $2,500 in any one year.

EARNINGS above that amount were to be divided, one-third to Aunt Myllicent, one-third to the grandparents and one-third to Freddie, to be placed in trust until he came of age.

As soon as he was old enough, Freddie was placed in Lord Weymouth's school at Warminster. One day his aunt decided that his talents deserved more than ordinary training, so she took him up to London to bring him to the attention of Italia Conti, well known in the city as a drama and dancing coach. To Conti, little Freddie made an instant appeal.

Not long thereafter British International Pictures was looking for a child to play a small bit in a filmplay, "Fascination," which was to star Madeleine Carroll, and Conti got Freddie an opportunity to meet the director and scenario editor of the picture at the film company's offices. When Aunt Cissie took the boy to see the motion picture executives, Freddie did a few recitations, also some dance steps.

Freddie got the part, and after this picture came another.

Then, in 1934, when Freddie was 10 years old, in Hollywood, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Studios began preparations to film "David Copperfield," and set about to find just the boy for the part. In the long search, David O. Selznick, the associate producer, and George Cukor, the director, crossed over to London, and by July of that year Freddie was in Hollywood, definitely selected for the role.

In "David Copperfield" Freddie was an instant hit. The picture swept him out of obscurity, made a film star out of him overnight.

Soon afterward he was cast in "Anna Karenina" as Garbo's son, later co-starred with Victor McLaglen in "Professional Soldier," then starred by his discoverer, Selznick, now producing independently, in "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

In the meantime, about mid-September, 1935, after Freddie had been in this country a little more than a year, his Aunt Myllicent applied to the courts of Los Angeles County for appointment as her nephew's guardian.

The guardianship was granted over protest of Freddie's parents, but with support of the grandparents, who sent an affidavit to Los Angeles declaring that Cecil's "mode of living and insobriety resulted in lack of care and attention to his wife and family."

This guardianship action set in motion a long train of events which began with the publishing in a London Sunday newspaper, under the name of Freddie's mother, of a series of six articles entitled "My Fight for Freddie." The instigator of these articles, it is said, was a London publicity man, and an arrangement is understood to have been made by which this publicity agent and Mrs. Bartholomew were to divide equally the sum of $1,500, the price agreed upon with the newspaper. This money, the mother said, she intended to use to enable her to cross the Atlantic to the United States and go personally to Los Angeles in order to make a legal fight for her son.

As subsequently stated by her after she arrived in California, Mrs. Bartholomew got little for her newspaper articles, for by the time she had paid the promoter and a firm of London solicitors which had drawn up an agreement, only a small sum was left. Certain persons in London, she says, then proposed that if she would go to New York, put herself in the hands of a lawyer in that city to be selected by them, and agree to supply through this lawyer newspaper stories which they said could be sold both in Manhattan and in Fleet Street, they would assist her in financing her trip to Los Angeles.

JUST what assistance was given is not divulged, but Mrs. Bartholomew crossed the Atlantic in the steerage, and later traveled tourist-class from New York to California. But at the suggestion, it is said, of a United States Navy intelligence officer and an officer of the United States Customs Service, whom she met en route, she changed her plans. These men urged her not to stop in New York but to hurry on to Los Angeles.

Soon after her arrival on the Pacific Coast, the mother began a series of attacks in the Los Angeles courts to upset the aunt's guardianship and obtain control of her son. In various affidavits, motions and answers filed on and subsequent to April 16, she averred that the reason she and her husband had sent Freddie to live with his grandparents when he was three and a half years of age was that the smoke and fog of the factory district in which the family was living was bad for his health, that doctors had advised her the boy should be taken to the country.

The Mother

Mrs. Lilian May Bartholomew, who sought to wrest custody from Freddie's aunt.

She also asserted that it was definitely understood that she and Freddie's father would maintain control of the boy and would provide for him. Payments, she said, were made to the grandparents from time to time and clothing and school fees provided. She and her husband and their two daughters also visited Freddie at Warminster from time to time and he likewise visited them, she asserts, in London.

Regarding the aunt, Mrs. Bartholomew sets forth that Miss Myllicent was doing the household work at Warminster and acting as nurse to Freddie, that the boy's father, seeking to help him, made arrangements with the aunt at her suggestion to manage his affairs. For this purpose, Freddie's father, she continues, allowed the lad to live with his grandparents.

Mrs. Bartholomew further charges that Miss Myllicent Mary Bartholomew failed to pay for Freddie's maintenance or schooling, and that she and her husband met all the bills presented to them including such as were rendered after Freddie had gone to the United States.

On July 15, 1934, Mrs. Bartholomew told the court Freddie's grandfather wrote his son that Miss Myllicent had been invited to take a holiday in New York State with friends and that other friends in Harrow, England, had paid her fare and had given her 60 pounds sterling. The letter so the mother stated further, quoted the aunt as saying that Freddie had no opportunity as an actor in England but by taking him to the United States she might be able to interest some American film company in him.

When Miss Myllicent Bartholomew and Freddie arrived in New York, the mother continued, Myllicent said her destination was Scarsdale, N. Y. where she intended to visit friends, but instead of going to Scarsdale, she and Freddie went directly to Hollywood "where she had previously arranged with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios for Freddie to work in 'David Copperfield.'"

Freddie, so the mother explained, had up to this time always written weekly letters to his parents, but now he ceased to do so. After he reached Hollywood, no word was received from him, she asserts, adding that he had been prevented from corresponding with his parents and sisters.

The mother's affidavit also sets forth that on Aug. 7, 1935, the aunt cabled an offer to pay Freddie's father $35 a week if he would consent to her appointment as guardian and asking his permission to make a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for Freddie at $1,000 a week.

This offer and request the mother says she and her husband refused.

Mrs. Bartholomew averred that neither she nor her husband had ever received any part of their son's earnings, that the agreement made in 1929 between aunt and father (which she asserts was entered into without her knowledge) was illegal and had never been kept by the aunt.

"The said Myllicent Mary Bartholomew," she continued, "has at all times intended to profit out of the earnings of said minor and is not a fit person to be his guardian."

MISS MYLLICENT MARY BARTHOLOMEW made no extended answer to Freddie's mother in the original court proceedings in California, but she did charge that Mrs. Bartholomew was engaged with a group of London newspapers to send stories to England and that she wanted to see Freddie only for publicity purposes. Then she added that "no normal mother having a real affection for her child would make the approach that has been made in this case."

Supporting her case, the grandparents filed separate affidavits in which they told of having gone from Warminster to London in October of 1935 to see their son and his wife and to try to put an end to the publicity which was being given to the controversy in the newspapers. At that time, so Mrs. Emma Bartholomew, the grandmother, says, Freddie's mother stated that she did not want to contest Miss Myllicent's guardianship.

IN CONCLUDING, the grandmother averred that Freddie's parents had abandoned him and that his mother was not a fit person to have his care and control.

When Mrs. Lilian May Bartholomew came to this country to wage her battle in the courts, she had the help and cooperation of her husband, Cecil, but shortly after she arrived in Los Angeles he had a change of heart. In a cablegram to the court which was to hear the guardianship dispute he said that criticism of the aunt by him had been based on misunderstanding, and that he now had complete confidence in her, "subject to her co-operating with deponent and to deponent having joint control when deponent is within jurisdiction."

The cable was received in Los Angeles on April 22. Just a day earlier the father filed a motion through lawyers acting separately from counsel for his wife to have the guardianship set aside and control of Freddie given to him.

The first round of legal battle went by quick decision to the aunt. The court refused to set aside the guardianship on the ground that Mrs. Bartholomew had delayed too long her steps to oppose it.

But the aunt's victory was short-lived. The mother then attacked her legal control as being no longer necessary, in view of the fact that one of the parents was now in Hollywood. To this plea the court gave sympathetic ear, and from the bench Judge Harry A Archbald announced that he would so order unless it were shown that Freddie's mother was not a fit person to have charge of him.

Lawyers for the aunt and counsel for the father pleaded for delay. The former said they would charge abandonment and that to do so they would have to obtain more evidence from England.

Miss Myllicent Mary Bartholomew, who fought in court to remain Freddie's guardian.

THEN, bringing the dramatis personae of the drama to its full strength, the father arrived in Hollywood and was quoted as saying that he either would seek to have Freddie left with his aunt or would accept joint custody with her.

In the controversy, each side had accused the other of an excessive interest in Freddie's earnings, which now amount to more than $40,000 a year. When Freddie started to work for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer his salary was $125 a week. By Sept. 18, 1935, Freddie had a new contract guaranteeing him $1,000 a week for 40 weeks.

Under the guardianship, Aunt Cissie was allowed $800 a month for the care and support of Freddie, and it is understood that she also receives $100 a week from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. The aunt's first accounting, as of May 1, showed that between Sept. 18, 1934, and March 31 1936, Freddie had earned approximately $30,000, while his expenses were approximately $15,000.

To the Screen and Radio Weekly representative, Mrs. Bartholomew confided that she had seen Freddie but once since arriving in California, and that this meeting had taken place in the presence of one of the aunt's lawyers, Felix Cunningham. At this meeting, it was later learned, Freddie spent most of the time trying to dissuade his mother from continuing her fight on his aunt, for whom he appears to have much affection.

The young star, although he is but 12 years old, is understood to have been profoundly moved and disturbed by the battle which has been going on over and about him.

Should Freddie's mother regain complete control of her child, she intends, so her lawyer says, to remain in Hollywood, where she will establish a home for both him and his two sisters.

A studio in Hollywood other than Metro, where Freddie is now under contract, has offered Mrs Bartholomew, it is reported, twice as much money for the boy as he is now making.

Unsung Expert on Stars

Gene Kornman, studio photographer, can — and does—tell you some inside stories about movie folk, including Shirley Temple, who must be amused when photographed.

By Grace Wilcox

UNHERALDED, unsung and unpublicized, one type of artist-technician in Hollywood knows more about beauty and glamour than any producer, director, supervisor or husband.

He can tell whether the right side of the face is more nearly perfect than the left; whether the eye-brow pencil-line is misplaced: the best side of the hair; the most graceful way of standing; whether the contours of the face are those of Greek symmetry or must be catalogued as interesting angles by the publicity department.

He is the studio portrait photographer.

And, poor chap, he has few, if any, illusions left

It's one thing to act before a camera, the results of which will bring in real coin of the realm, and quite another to pose before one, the result of which are problematical and at best will bring in no money whatever.

This is the time when the star or player really becomes himself or herself. Sometimes the experience is very enlightening, especially when one tries to catch a glorious creature without the pout, which she is not above wearing on these occasions.

Few film players like to have their pictures taken, believe it or not. Many of them feel that it is a wasted gesture until they see the results in the magazines and newspapers. There are so many things to do, my goodness. Dresses to be fitted, lines to learn, dates to be kept, social engagements — a continuous round of things to take up one's time.

Yesterday seemed a propitious occasion to look into this matter of photographing the lovely ladies and handsome men of the colony. After a hasty glance around the field I picked on Gene Kornman, of Twentieth Century-Fox. He always seems good natured, smiling and with enough bulk to stand the gaff. Besides, his stills lend themselves to color, which makes him my friend for life.

KORNMAN can take it. If you don't believe it, you should be a little mouse in the studio sometime when one of these adorable young things is in a hurry to meet the boy friend at the Brown Derby. Gene has to achieve photographic results while Miss Muffett bullies the life out of him, hurries him, says she doesn't feel like smiling, looks bored when asked to give him a pensive expression and generally makes a nuisance of herself.

He is a delightful companion, this Kornman. We sat long and merrily over a beef and cabbage luncheon in the Cafe de Paris on the studio lot the other day, while he recounted his adventures with a still camera.

"I had a good beginning," he began. "I was with Harold Lloyd for 11 years and it was a drag-out and knock-down fight to get Harold before my camera. He was interested in gags, in his new story, in the comedians who worked with him, but he didn't care a darn about helping me get him a few shots for publicity purposes. He has no more vanity than a ditch digger.

"One day I was trying to get him to pose for a still showing him taking some shoes down off high shelves and falling in the attempt. Asked politely two or three times, he must have got thoroughly fed up, for he suddenly turned around, looked at me and said: 'Gene, why don't you go on home? Go on down to the beach or something!'

"I turned away and found myself in a boiling rage. Here I was trying to do a good turn for Lloyd and he told me to go to the beach! All right; I would go to the beach! I did. I got into my car, picked up my wife and spent the day at Ocean Park.

"The next morning, the studio manager met me 'Where were you yesterday?' he wanted to know. I told him and he almost had apoplexy. 'We wanted you for some important shots a half dozen times,' he asserted belligerently. 'Lloyd told me to go,' I insisted. And Lloyd, looking sheepish, admitted it. 'But, Gene, I didn't think you'd do it,' he said, shaking his head, sadly."

NOW, Kornman has a swank studio fitted up with all the latest gadgets, cameras that move on oiled ball bearings, and two or three assistants. He remembers those early days when he had to do production stills as well as portraits and had no assistants at all and only set lights to help him out. Today he has two or three electricians on his staff, as well as the first and second technical helpers.

"When I first came over here," he continued, "they tried to tell me that Will Rogers was an easy subject. It didn't take me long to find out they were spoofing me. Rogers was a swell subject, except that he quite simply refused ever to pose at all. He wouldn't step a foot in the gallery and we had to fight him even for an outdoor informal.

"One day, I thought I'd get him along with some famous man who was visiting the studio. It was my ignoble intention to shoot them together and cut the visitor out. Rogers gave no indication that he was on to the plot, but he kept moving closer and closer to the guest and, with his arm linked tightly within that of his friend, what could I do?

"I snapped a few shots and finally Rogers looked at me very quizzically and grunted: 'You know, Gene, that there camera of yours had ought to be lassoed. I'll do it next time you bring it along.'"

We both glanced involuntarily to Roger's vacant place over in the corner. Only strangers ever sit in it. None of the studio people would think of doing so.

"Then there was the photographer who put one over on Rogers," Kornman recounted. "He was a new man on the lot and full of enthusiasm. He caught Rogers in an off-guard moment and Rogers consented to pose. The cameraman was delighted. He rushed off to get a spot and while he was gone Rogers stuffed the camera with paper. The man returned, saw what had happened, stuck his head under the curtain, removed the paper and began to shoot. Rogers posed, smirked, smiled and looked serious. In fact, he gave himself up to the joke in no uncertain manner.

"When the cameraman finished, he thanked him solemnly and walked off, with his camera over his shoulder. Rogers doubled up with laughter.

"Later he learned the joke was on him —especially whe. picture after picture appeared in all the papers, magazines, etc. In fact, these photographs were repeated until the plates were worn out. The new man got a raise at once."

KORNMAN is full of stories like this. When asked whom he considers the most beautiful woman he has ever photographed, he replies quickly: "Barbara LaMarr."

"She had an absolutely perfect face," he declares. "There wasn't a flaw in it. Every hair of her head seemed to be exactly where it belonged; her complexion was like cream and roses, her teeth literally like pearls. All a photographer had to do was to get his lights and position right; she had no bad angles, no blemishes of any sort; not even a good and bad side of the face."

After luncheon we drifted up to a temporary studio, where Kornman was due to photograph Alice Faye, Jack Haley and little Shirley Temple for their new picture, "Poor Little Rich Girl."

"Miss Temple has to be amused," he laughed. "We have a swell time when she poses. I catch her by placing my foot on the bulb and playing dolls with her. Sometimes I bark like a dog; sometimes I crow like a rooster; sometimes I promise her an ice cream cone if she gets through quickly. She likes to play and fool around. One day I told her we had just 11 minutes and we made a game of it. We beat our own time by a minute and Shirley won a bright new nickel."

ABOUT this time Shirley appeared with Haley, who pretended she was one of those ventriloquist dolls and put her on his knee. She fell into the spirit of the thing and they had a lot of fun, while Kornman got what he wanted.

Miss Faye turns her smiles on and off in an amusingly natural manner. I looked at her in amazement, remembering my own painful attempts to look pleased before the eye of a camera.

"It all depends on their dispositions," says Kornman. "For instance, I had a regular set arranged for Loretta Young. She was so impressed, she fell into one natural pose after another and the sitting was one of my most successful."

Kornman has watched budding romances flower into marriages. He was present when Mildred Davis and Harold Lloyd first began taking an interest in one another. He is very keen about Mrs. Lloyd and declares she is the same sweet girl today she was when she first came on the Lloyd lot.

When Jobyna Ralston and Richard Arlen began falling in love, Kornman noticed the sentimental glances and telltale blushes. It was no surprise to him when they announced their engagement, followed by their marriage.

Charles Farrell and Virginia Valli were two other young lovers on whom Kornman cast a fatherly eye, photographing them in the early stages of their attachment, which ended in marriage.

Shaking hands with me, the genial Kornman, who has been taking still pictures of the stars for the past 20 years, said modestly:

"If you should happen to want to put in anything about me, you might just say that I'm a grandfather at 38!"

Using the Mirrors for Smartness

By Sara Day

"A GIRL'S best friend is her mirror." Madge Evans and I were sitting in her dressing room on the M-G-M lot going very British with tea for two at four when she made this remark. She was resting between tests for a picture while sipping tea, a habit she developed while making pictures in England, she said.

"In this business you learn the value of your mirror," Madge said. "That is a lesson I've learned after years of facing the camera, whose evil eye catches you at every angle, good or bad."

"Oh, I'm a firm believer in mirrors, particularly triple ones, as an aid to beauty," I said, "but it seems to me that some of these gals would have better skin and figures if they got out and batted a tennis ball around instead of batting a powder puff on their already well enameled noses."

"Oh, no, you mistake my meaning," answered Madge. "I don't mean to use a mirror just in pursuit of physical beauty, although that is important, too. I'm speaking of using your mirror to improve your general appearance, to study your carriage, your lines and to see yourself as others see you. Every woman should have a full-length mirror some place in her house where she can see herself in a good light.

"Before she leaves the house she should take a long last look at herself to correct any details of her appearance that are not just right.

"TO illustrate my point further," continued Madge, pouring us another cup of tea, "I'll tell you a funny story on myself. You know how we girls go a bit daffy now and then on this clothes question. You see something that appeals to you and whether it is your type or not, you decide you want to look different and so you buy it.

"The saleswoman tells you it is the last word in style, and maybe it is for somebody else, as you learn to your regret. Well, that is what happened to me on my last trip to New York. I went on a buying spree."

"And what woman doesn't occasionally," I cut in, "provided she has the money and the time."

"Oh, but this was a bad one," Madge went on. "I went to a famous milliner in New York and she put a couple of confections on my head which she said were the last word on me and I believed her. The result was that I came away with a vampish big black bag decorated in lilies of the valley and—much, much worse—a pair of black suede gloves all fancied up with bows of cire ribbon and sprays of lilies of the valley which matched the hat.

"Hot cha! I said to myself. Won't this make the girls in Hollywood sit up and take notice! I got all dressed up in the hat and gloves one night to go out to dinner. And then I looked at myself in a full length mirror, took another good look, closeup, and burst right out laughing. 'Evans,' I said to myself, 'these trick clothes are not for you.'

"THAT was an expensive lesson, but it taught me one thing. That is, you might as well learn your type and then wear clothes accordingly. Now a really smart woman might have worn either of the hats I bought and been very chic in them. But I've come to the conclusion that homely women are the ones who really are smartest in their clothes. Somehow they set off, shall we say, the more extreme fashions to better effect than the merely pretty girl?"

"Come to think of it, Madge," I answered, "the women who look like a page from the fashion magazines usually aren't on the beautiful side.

"Now take me for example," Madge continued. "I'm just the average fairly attractive girl (no swelled ego here) and I've made up my mind that there is no use for me to try to be a smart dresser. It just doesn't suit my type. I look better in simple clothes and that is my platform from now on. And it was my mirror that convinced me of that."

"As a motion picture star with lots of attractive men around," I asked, "do you think that a man prefers to see a woman in what you call ultra-ultra clothes, or do you think they like women who dress inconspicuously?"

"Well," mused Madge after a moment, "I think that men like to see the women they go out with well dressed and well groomed, but I don't think they like extreme clothes. For instance, I know a young chap who, until recently, was going around with a certain motion picture actress who has a flair for very extreme styles. He told me that he stopped taking her out because it embarrassed him when people stopped to turn around and stare at her.

"'I felt like I was out with a circus horse,' he said. I think most men are like that. My experience has been that men like tailored suits.

"AN outfit that I have had several compliments on from men friends is a three-piece outfit, very simple and very tailored. It consists of an oxford gray jacket, a gray skirt with a white stripe and a Chesterfield overcoat with wide lapels. With this I wear a simple sports type brimmed hat with a navy band piped in red."

Madge Evans finds, from her mirror, that the tailored simplicity expressed by the above costume suits her better than the highly detailed ensemble which is shown at the left.

"Tell me about some of your new clothes," I asked.

"I really haven't many," Madge answered. "I've been resting since I finished 'Moonlight Murder,' my last picture, with Chester Morris. Now I'm just beginning to get a few summer things together.

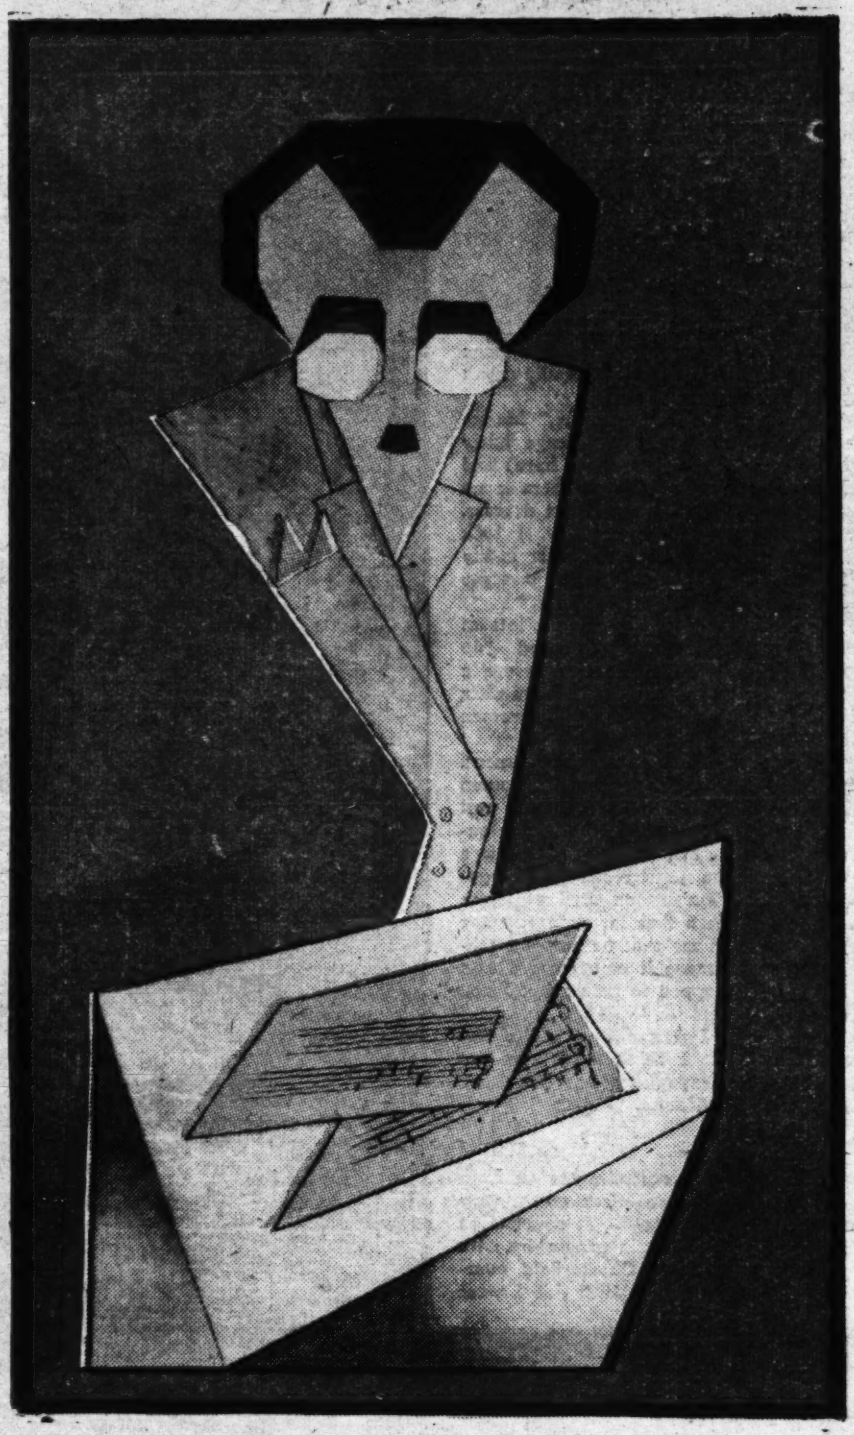

"One of my very favorites is a black and white pique suit which Irene designed for me. The hip-length coat and blouse vestee are white pique with scalloped lapels and pockets.

"I have two skirts to go with the coat. One is a perfectly plain tailored black pique and the other an accordion pleated black sheer. I also bought a navy blue crepe romaine afternoon dress. The tucking detail on the peplum blouse and sleeves makes this interesting. With this dress I wear navy blue kid bag, gloves and shoes.

"My hat is a natural colored chip straw sailor with streamers of navy blue ribbon and on the front of the flat crown is a nosegay of spring flowers."

Madge was called for her test then and as I left she was arranging her clothes and taking a final look in her triple mirror to see that her hair and gown were just right from every angle.

Madge's theory is a good one, don't you agree?

Sketch of Erno Rapee by Xavier Cugat.

RAPEE—Mighty Mite of Music

Musical Director of Radio City Music Hall Brings Many Rare Experiences to World of the Microphone

By Ruth Arell

THE mighty mite of music—the little guy with the big orchestras. That's the way musicians refer to Erno Rapee.

Whether in his shirt-sleeves at a rehearsal or in immaculate swallow tails and white tie at the public performance, this diminutive conductor is always direct and businesslike, galvanizing his men into action by the force of his personality.

But away from the podium and backstage in his office at New York's Music Hall Theater, of which he is musical director, he is an entirely different person. First his face seems to soften, then the tension of conducting goes out of his small frame, and in a little while he is completely relaxed. And ready for a "bout with laughter," as he calls it. He is witty and with an unusually delightful sense of humor, as you may judge from his own following thumbnail description of himself, which he insisted that I use. Here it is.

"I was born in Budapest, Hungary," he said, "where the hills have been frowning on the town ever since. My first name is not a typographical error on my passport, but is the result of an original idea of my mother, suggested by my father. On seeing me for the first time, my father was so flustered that he stammered to my mother, 'Shall we name it—yes or no?'

"'Erno!' replied mother, although I've often wondered if she didn't really mean to say 'Oh, no!' in response to father.

"When I was a little shaver, my parents insisted that my older sister take piano lessons. She tortured the instrument so cruelly that my father had the strings removed and converted it into a folding bed. The night the mortgage fell due, I was sound asleep inside and the piano movers shipped me off to the Budapest Conservatory of Music.

"Profiting by my hours of listening to my sister, I carried off high honors at the conservatory for playing the piano—by ear. This so surprised the teachers that in self-defense they took away the piano and put me to work assisting the conductor. I assisted him to and from the podium. Later I became recognized as a pianist with orchestras in Budapest, Vienna and Berlin. When they recognized me in one place, I would move on to the next. This went on for so long that the only place left was America.

"I WAS finger-printed on my entrance to New York, but was otherwise unrecognized. I got a job playing the piano in a restaurant, attracting patrons both in and out. This was such good boxoffice technique, that theater men soon ferreted me out and put me to work panicking the Broadway crowd. It has been said that I have created more theater panics than any man who ever escaped one.

"As a hobby, I'm raising my sons—both of them. One plays the piccolo and the other has mastered the motorcycle with equally devastating results."

And they call that kind of a man hard-boiled.

The truth is that while his extremely short stature may have made him a bit cocky, he is such a thorough musician that he has no patience with phonies. On the other hand, he is the soul of gentleness with young artists, quick to recognize their ability and the first to offer sympathy and understanding.

The theater world, of course, has always coupled the names of Rapee with the late Roxy. Rapee worked for many years with Roxy and they were together in many theaters. They were in the Rivoli, the Capitol, the Roxy, and in the Music Hall before Roxy resigned from the last. In all those years Roxy had always been exploited as the "discoverer" of such well known performers as Gladys Rice, Douglas Stanbury, Viola Philo, James Melton, Eugene Ormandy, Edwina Eustace, Robert Weede, Joseph Littau, David Mendoza, Frederick Fradkin and Frank Black, who is now general musical director at NBC.

IT WOULD be more accurate to say that Rapee was the first to discover their budding talents and called them to the attention of Roxy, who started the ballyhoo which brought them all fame and recognition. Having budding artists on your hands may be excellent for publicity purposes, but it means a lot of hard work to get these buds to bloom. It was Rapee who had to coach them—encourage them when they were blue; bully them into line when they got out of bounds.

Rapee is known, wherever musicians foregather, as the maestro who never loses his temper. His sense of dignity and fair play never deserts him.

"When an artist makes a mistake and works himself into a temperamental tantrum," he explained, "it is generally because he has become such a spoiled brat that he thinks he can bluster his way out. The sane thing, of course, would be to admit the error and start all over again. Unfortunately, temperament and sanity do not mix.

"This type of fool thinks he can wriggle out by becoming loud. That noise doesn't frighten anyone. It merely signifies a lack of control. I merely give him enough rope and he brays away. The louder he gets, the quieter I become. Finally, there comes a time—I've seen it happen countless times—when the stillness seems to exaggerate to him his own noise and he suddenly calms down.

"It is a rare sight to see, the expression on his face when he becomes aware of himself. One minute he is the height of arrogance and the next he is plunged into the depths of humility.

"When he reaches that stage, I quickly make an amusing remark to relieve the tension, and we start over, with the air considerably clearer."

RAPEE has considerable need for all his calm and clear-thinking faculties, for he has the responsibility of directing a number of vocalists who appear with the two great radio orchestras he conducts, all of which go to make Sunday a superb musical treat. The first orchestra and soloists broadcast from the Radio City Music Hall of the Air at 11:30 p. m., EST., over the NBC-WJZ network. Later on Sunday night he directs the seventy-piece General Motors Symphony Orchestra.

When you realize that this same man is responsible also for the weekly musical fare at the Music Hall Theater, you can well see why he insists upon strict discipline as the only way to get things done. He imposes no more restrictions on his men than he does on himself.

Although he now prefers to laugh it off, it once hurt unbearably to find out that after all the musical honors heaped upon him in Europe where he conducted the finest orchestras, the only job he could find in America was as piano pounder in a dinky little restaurant. From the gossip among musicians he heard of a man named Roxy who had ideas of installing a large orchestra in a movie house where he expected to present classical as well as modern music.

"Bah!" they said. "What sort of nonsense was this?"

Rapee listened to all of this and went into a huddle with himself. As a result of this self-communing, he sought out Roxy at the Rivoli Theater.

Roxy listened carefully as he explained, in his then uncertain English, just what he could do. After a minute of concentration, the showman thrust out a hand to the young musician and, whacking him on the back, said: "You'll do. Consider yourself hired." That started an association that endured for more than 20 years.

That occasion was important also because it was Rapee's first step toward the work that was to claim him its most valued participant—the musical field in motion picture presentation.

It did not take him long to see that, though the de luxe movie houses in big cities had orchestras to supply background music, the thousands of nickelodeons scattered all over the country sellydom had more than a piano or a very small orchestra. To help these people select the proper music for the movies, Rapee compiled a book entitled "Encyclopedia of Music for Pictures" for over 300 different situations on the screen. Published in 1922, this book was in wide use until the advent of the talkies which supplied its own mood music on the sound track.

RAPEE, incidentally, is the composer of those popular songs, "Charmaine," "Diane" and the unforgetable "Angela Mia."

The day I called to interview him, Mr. Rapee was holding auditions for singers. How would he treat them, I wondered.

All sorts of persons apply to him to be heard. Some are talented. Some are not. He sits at a little table and calls out their names. Usually, he is able to ascertain in the first bar or two that they sing all that he needs to know about a particular voice. One that I heard must have been very bad for even to my untrained ear she sounded pretty awful. But he let the singer finish.

"Why," I wanted to know of this man whom musicians call hard-boiled, "didn't you stop it? Do you really waste your time listening to the bitter end of such sour singing?"

To which the old softie replied, "I didn't want to hurt her feelings."

Reviews of New Films

By The Boulevardier

A scene from the film version of "The Green Pastures."

"Big Brown Eyes."

Joan Bennett looks beautiful and acts pleasingly, along with Cary Grant, in an entertaining search for a murder gang. A Walter Wanger production for Paramount. Recommended.

In an unusually good program picture, Joan Bennett abruptly deserts la-de-da society roles for the role of a glib and peppery manicurist. She gives a performance almost equal in excellence to her prettiness. As the heroine of "Big Brown Eyes," the youngest of the Bennett sisters indicates that her forte is the girl of spirit, plus a slight and not unattractive dash of the hard-boiled.

Working in a barber shop, Eve Fallon (Miss Bennett) notes the idiosyncracies of her customers; a fact which stands her in good stead when, with Danny Barr (Cary Grant), a detective, she sets out to trap the criminals who in pursuance of their career have killed a baby. The chase is exciting and by no means empty of humor. Of course, the handsome detective and the little manicurist are in love with each other, notwithstanding the interruption of their courtship by the jealousy aroused when flighty Mrs. Cole (Marjorie Gateson) insists on the detective staying to tea while he investigates a jewel robbery.

One of the barber shop customers, a newspaperman, thinks Eve would be a good columnist's assistant. Through one of those flukes of which scenarios are full, Eve gets to be about the most brilliant reporter ever employed by a certain metropolitan daily; reporting events before they happen, rattling forth paragraphs to a dictaphone, telling the managing editor where to get off, and otherwise behaving as unlike a real reporter as possible.

It is Eve's cleverness which finally traps an important member of the gang. It is Danny Barr's cleverness which saves him from a situation where death seems the only possibility. And there's a distinction aura of impending orange blossoms when the picture ends.

Despite the alternating comedy and tenseness of the scenes that feature the two principals, the most telling single scene is that in which Douglas Fowley, as a crook, begs to be readmitted to jail in order to escape the gang which he believes will shoot him if he appears on the street. The members of the gang are especially well played. Walter Pidgeon, after a considerable absence from the screen, portrays the smooth leader; Lloyd Nolan, Russ Cortig, a vicious killer, and Alan Baxter, Butler, his companion. Isabel Jewell does a small but distinctive piece of acting as a terrified witness.

"The Green Pastures."

Marc Connelly's fine stage production becomes even finer on the screen. An entertaining and inspiring picture. Recommended. Warner Bros.

Much rarer than the proverbial blue moon is a screen production which surpasses all expectations.

"The Green Pastures" was expected to be a great picture. Taken from Marc Connelly's play based on Roark Bradford's "Ol' Man Adam an' His Chillun," it was great screen material. But the results have amazed even the producers; "The Green Pastures" is a phenomenon in Hollywood, a well-night perfect picture.

The subject, the unlettered but reverent southern negro's concept of God, of Heaven and of the stories of the Bible, is simply but delicately handled. The picture has more laughs than an Edgar Kennedy comedy. Yet the prevalent tone of reverence is never broken.

The picture opens with the gathering of a Sunday school class, and the efforts of the teacher to answer his children's questions. Then come the stories of Creation, of the Garden of Eden, of Noah and the flood, of Moses and Ol' King Pharaoh, of Babylon. And through them all walks De Lawd, worrying over his people, trying to make things come out right on the world which he had created.

Done with any conventional Hollywood touch, the picture would have been grotesque. But no attempt was made to "do something" with the material. The picture merely materializes, as did the play, the mental images of a simple, sincere people.

Heaven is a place of shining glory, where angels go to a fish fry every day, where sublime music fills the air, where ten-cent seegars are always available and fishermen can cast their lines from over-stuffed cotton clouds.

Ol' King Pharaoh's court looks like an Octavus Roy Cohen lodge hall, with banners on the walls and magicians "doin' tricks."

Creation is brought about by a deficiency of firmament in the custard which De Lawd eats at a heavenly fish fry. He "r'ars back and passes a miracle," with the result that Heaven is overflowing with firmament. So he passes another miracle to provide a place for some of the firmament to "dreen off to," and thus the world begins. Also thus De Lawd discovers that "even bein' Lawd ain't no bed of roses."

The characters of the story are simple beings who might exist in the lives of plantation negroes. Noah is a forlorn preacher whose congregation has gone the ways of sin. Moses is what a southern field hand would expect him to be. Pharaoh is a cruel and garish boss who spends his time thinking up meanness.

There is no feeling that the players are acting, and the result is a collection of superb performances. Outstanding in the cast are Rex Ingram as De Lawd, Oscar Polk as Gabriel, Eddie Anderson as Noah, Frank Wilson as Moses. Ingram also appears as Adam and as Hezdrel, who explains to De Lawd at the close of the picture that the God of Vengeance no longer exists.

As notable as the story and the performances is the music of the Hall Johnson choir. Marc Connelly and William Keighley deserve great credit for the direction.

When De Lawd asks Noah what he would think if it were to rain for 40 days and 40 nights, Noah replied: "Lawd, that sho would be a complete rain."

And "The Green Pastures" is a complete picture.

"Fatal Lady."

A combination musical and murdery mystery which at last gives Mary Ellis a suitable vehicle for her talents. Recommended. Walter Wanger-Paramount.

Walter Wanger, as has been noted often before, seems to have a flair for taking talent which has been badly handled and making it into first class boxoffice attractions. He did this with Charles Boyer, and now he has done it with Mary Ellis.

Apparently "Fatal Lady" was drawn specifically to Miss Ellis' measure. She is a singer who started with the Metropolitan Opera Company and for whom the tremendously popular light opera "Rose Marie" was written. But unlike other singers who have been brought to the screen, she is also an actress, with several years of experience in straight dramatic roles.

So in "Fatal Lady" we have a role for an actress who can sing. The songs, a couple of them operatic, fit glove-like into the production. The story, which would have made a good picture without music, is never lost. The result is entertainment.

The story is of a girl with whom it is apparently fatal to fall in love. One by one her suitors are killed, and each murder drives her further in her wanderings. The mystery and suspense are sustained to the end of the picture.

Walter Pidgeon, another excellent stage player whom Wanger is trying to build to major proportions, plays the lead opposite Miss Ellis. John Halliday is exceptionally convincing as the No. 1 suspect, a South American whose hobby is the culture of orchids. Guy Bates Post gives a flawless performance as an opera director, and Edgar Kennedy (who has at last been "discovered") turns in one of those delightful comedy performances which have long been half-wasted in two-reelers.

Alan Mowbray, as an excessively wealthy South American, is the most interesting of the singer's admirers. Norman Foster is the most persistent.

Edward Ludwig directed expertly.

The Planets—Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

SUNDAY, JUNE 21—Before 8:32 a. m. favors affairs that require cordial relations and happy contacts. Travel should result pleasantly. Before 1:50 p. m. favors the usual Sunday interests. During the remainder of the day and evening your mind will be keen and you will be able to think quickly, but you should avoid a tendency toward over-activity. The entire day is more favorable for minor activities, or continuing along lines already established.

MONDAY, JUNE 22—Before 3 p. m. a great deal may be accomplished if routine is followed. Proceed deliberately, and do not take new action previous to this time. Between 3 p. m. and 6:24 p. m. is the most favorable part of the day, when you can deal advantageously with bankers, brokers, judges, philanthropists, financial interests and shipping. New affairs started after 6:24 p. m. are apt to meet with delays and disappointments, as this is not an auspicious time for affairs that require quick action for their consummation.

TUESDAY, JUNE 23—This is a most auspicious day to improve conditions around you, and to undertake work of a constructive nature. Changes and developments meet with co-operation from others, and aggressiveness on your part will be rewarded. This is a favorable day for general business activity, liquids, social matters, artistic affairs and domestic interests.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24—Before 8:53 a. m. many of your ideas will be worth putting to the test of experience, for you will be filled with considerable intuition as to what is the right thing to do. Between 8:53 a. m. and 1:45 p. m. your mind will be hasty and impulsive, and you should avoid erroneous reports and impressions. This is not a favorable time for dealing with agents, for written matter, short journeys and shipping. The remainder of the day you will have a keen appreciation for the beauties of nature and art or music. Work of an inspirational nature is also favored. Give more thought to your diet and to what you drink, however.

THURSDAY, JUNE 25—During the entire day and until 3:36 p. m. do not tolerate a disturbed and nervous feeling as a rebellious state of mind may cause you to do the unconventional thing or enter into speculative or risky ventures. This is a most unfavorable time for the commencement of anything new, for buying, selling or assuming heavy liabilities. Between 3:36 p. m. and 9:10 p. m. you should obtain gratifying results in affairs that require speed, skill and accuracy.

FRIDAY, JUNE 26—You and those around you will be keen and alert the entire day, but may find it difficult to hold this keenness in check or maintain an atmosphere of poise, for the influences culminating today have an inclination to cause you to do the impulsive thing or be too free with your speech. Therefore, more will be gained by giving your attention to details.

SATURDAY, JUNE 27—Before 9:44 a. m. and between 3:33 p. m. and midnight, do not allow yourself to be drawn into schemes which are not strictly moral or legitimate. Affairs will be involved, bringing confusion and chaos. Between 9:44 a. m. and 3:33 p. m. is the best part of the day, when you can attend to necessary business and make plans and decisions.

"Good-bye to that sick feeling—I spared 3 minutes of my time!"

Since I discovered the three-minute way, my troubles with constipation, with harsh "all-at-once" cathartics, are over. I can certainly spare three minutes of my time—three minutes chewing a delicious chewing gum like FEEN-A-MINT—when it makes such a difference. With FEEN-A-MINT there are no unpleasant after-effects, no cramping. I take it—my husband takes it—and how the children love it! FEEN-A-MINT—the three-minute way—is only 15c and 25c a box.

Tim and Irene: Slated for Jack Benny's summer spot.

With Planned and Impromptu Laughs, Jack Benny Prepares for a Vacation

Jack Benny's last program from New York a couple of weeks ago was a pretty hilarious affair and his last program of the summer, which you will hear from Hollywood next Sunday, is apt to be more hilarious still.

Jack adlibbed a lot of gags about leaving New York into the script. They came close to breaking up the show. The thing that finally did break it up, throwing the all-important timing completely off, was this:

Jack had one comedy spot in which he was supposed to be getting coffee in the Automat on Broadway. The sound effects man, to give the effect of coffee sloshing into a cup, used the paddle wheel that simulates the great paddle wheel of Lanny Ross' Show Boat each Wednesday evening over NBC. When Jack said he was going to drop the nickel into the slot, the sound effects man gave the paddle a vigorous turn. Water splashed merrily over him and over everyone in the first row of the audience, including several people in evening clothes. Johnny Green laughed the hardest, failing to get to the microphone on time for his next lines.

Speaking of laughter, if you heard the show (it was the repeat broadcast for the West Coast three weeks ago) you probably heard some giggling that was vaguely familiar. That was Eve Sully, of Block and Sully, sitting in the third row and giving out.

Block and Sully are two of Jack's closest friends. Jack's sponsors considered them carefully as they looked for someone to put on the program during the hot months. Don Wilson is replacing Jack as the star, and Don Voorhies is taking over for Johnny Green. The sponsors felt they needed a good comedy act to complete the summer show.

Ray Knight, Doc Rockwell, Joe Cook, Senator Fishface and George Beatty were among the half-hundred who were looked at and listened to. On the basis of an excellent audition, it is announced that Tim Ryan and Irene Noblette, two swell performers who were mishandled on the air last year, will be signed.

Morton Bowe will do the singing with Don Wilson and Tim and Irene, but don't let anyone tell you that means Kenny Baker is out. Kenny isn't. He'll return with Benny in the fall.

The lovely GoGo DeLys is singing these days for the Columbia Broadcasting System—a decided asset.

Backstage with Radio's Broadcasters: Even the Bare Walls Have Personalities

The programs you hear over the air don't originate from just any studio that happens to be available. Far from it.

Both CBS and NBC rehearse and broadcast about 35 programs a day from within their buildings here in New York. NBC does it from 26 studios; CBS, from 15. It means that Idelle Grindlay, who assigns studios at NBC, and Bob Ray, who does it for Columbia, have to do a lot of shuffling around each afternoon to see that the next day's broadcasts don't get all mixed up.

Their work could be mostly routine, Miss Grindlay and Mr. Ray say. They know who's going on the air, how much rehearsing they need, and when they're on—so they should be able to allot the studios and turn their attentions to something else. They do darn little attention-turning, though, because they have the temperaments of both stars and studios to deal with.

For example, some singers like one studio more than another, insisting that it does things for their voices. Though Kate Smith would just as soon broadcast from a cellar if someone told her to, she feels Studio 3 at the Columbia studios was just made for her. Accordingly, Bob Ray sees to it that Kate gets that studio.

On the other hand, some studios like some orchestras better than others. Tremendously big 8-H at Radio City makes Eddy Duchin sound best, while Leo Reisman and Paul Whiteman are both treated more favorably by the smaller 8-G.

CBS is a mite proud of the fact that its studios have personalities of their own. Benay Venuta, the blond lovely singing there these days, insists she is always glad to do a little item from the stage of Columbia Playhouse No. 2. Its very walls, she says, seem to ooze success and happiness. Ted Husing much prefers Playhouse No. 3. It's a laughy, intimate place, he says, where the audience is very apt to get jolly and take off its shoes.

On rare occasions, studio assignments get a little mixed up, like the time Miss Grindlay assigned a commercial symphony to the wrong studio and 70 musicians idled for almost an hour while she cleared out a studio large enough to hold them all. Then there's a spell of worrying. Miss Grindlay and Mr. Ray get a lot of laughs, so they figure they're even.

One of Miss Grindlay's laughs came just recently. A young man who had attended one of Lanny Ross' broadcasts from NBC's big 8-H came to her and said that if her proposition were attractive enough, he'd hire the studio for a dance to be given by his club. He was pretty surprised to learn that, unless you're pretty good with a piccolo or something, 8-H and the rest of the radio studios are among the unattainable things in a man's life.

Gracie Allen Tells How to Cow Mate

Just before Guy Lombardo left for Chicago, he told me he'd gotten from Gracie Allen the rules of her new Housewives' Guild.

"Here they are," he said. So here some of them are:

1—No wife can hold more than one membership — unless she's supporting more than one husband. In that event, she doesn't want a membership. She wants arsenic.

2—Even if you didn't have a first husband. tell your present husband what a swell guy he was. Why let him get a swelled head?

3—Wives cannot kick or hit their husbands unless their dues are paid up. On the other hand, a wife must never allow her husband to strike the last blow. That would spoil him, and the only way to properly spoil a man is with a rolling pin.

There are other rules, but I didn't get a chance to see them. Mrs. Guy Lombardo walked up then and Guy hid them away. He's afraid she'll find out about it and join Gracie's league.

Energetic Phil Lord Makes Some Reality

Not many weeks ago, Phil Lord used $150,000 worth of real diamonds for one measly little sound effect on his Gang Busters show over Columbia. Everyone was impressed by the gesture: There were guards and everything around, except Phil. He felt the man who owned the gems was a little too careful about rubbing them together and dropping them on the table. Phil would have liked a lot more clicking and clattering before the microphone.

In several weeks, Phil may make a similar importation for realism. This time he plans to have as a member of his cast a parrot that gave damaging testimony in a murder trial not long ago.

He's doing it in spite of the fact that the parrot will worry him far more than the jewels did. The parrot has a lurid vocabulary that is liable to slop over at any time.

NBC has just compiled figures on the amount of fan mail each of the programs it broadcasts has received during March.

One of the amazing facts that came to light was that daytime programs, generally conceded to be only pretty fair when it comes to drawing power, were way up on the list.

WHAT WAS JUSTICE IN THIS CASE?

e suddenly remarked one day, lester didn't kill herself. I killed r. Papa told me to do it."

Bassett listened to the boy's de-led account of the killing, then nfronted the father who pro-unced it a pack of lies. George still refused to talk. Mrs. Jack-n was not questioned at this time. The next day, October 30, all mbers of the family were ar-gned before County Judge Roy Noble at Laurel in Jones county a previously scheduled habeas rpus hearing. The hearing was ntinued until the following day, t the Jacksons failed to appear—ssett had removed them from nes county because he did not nt the case to continue in that risdiction. When Judge Noble rned this he cited the sheriff for ntempt of court and reset the aring for November 3.

Bassett gave in, the prisoners were urned to Jones county, and the aring opened on schedule. George kson denied on the witness stand t there had been any loud talk-g or shouting in his home before ster was shot. He said Hester d been stretched across the bed en he entered the room after aring the shot. He admitted that rmie, who had reached the room ead of him, had not sufficient ength to have lifted the body m the floor to the bed.

Judge Noble denied the petition release of the Jacksons, and ey were returned to jail to await the formal preliminary hearing at Bay Springs on November 6. In this hearing the defense declined to present any witnesses and forced the state to reveal its case.

Sheriff Bassett reconstructed the crime upon the basis of Kermie Jackson's alleged confession.

Soon after breakfast, said Bassett, Farmer Jackson had shown Kermie how to shoot the "Long-Tom" shotgun, and told him that he must shoot his sister before she had a chance to poison the entire family. Kermie, being very much in fear of his father, had agreed to carry out the demand.

Late in the afternoon Hester milked the cows, then came into the house and went directly to her room, declining to eat supper, Kermie saw his opportunity. Slipping away from the table, he picked up the shotgun, pushed open Hester's door, and entered. The girl was wearing only bloomers and a brassiere.

He raised the gun and pulled the trigger. As she fell forward, he pushed her back on the bed, then dropped the gun and fled, shouting, "Hester has shot herself."

According to the officer, the suicide note had apparently been written by Hester at her father's command. The freshly laundered dress had been placed on the body after the shooting.

At the conclusion of the testimony, George Jackson was ordered returned to jail, Mrs. Jackson was freed under $1,000 bond, George Jr. under $2,500 bond. Kermie was released without bond.

The freeing of the younger son caused District Attorney Homer Currie and County Attorney J. L. Thompson to hold a hurried conference, and they ordered his immediate rearrest on a murder charge. The defense attorneys protested, filing another petition for a habeas corpus hearing.

So there was another hearing. Kermie was released under $1,000 bond. And another petition was filed, seeking the release of the father. He, too, won freedom under $1,000 bond, the court ruling that no evidence of a conspiracy had been presented, and that since four persons were in the house, and none had been shown more guilty than any other, all should be treated alike.

"I am not sure this girl did not commit suicide," said the court. "It is possible that she placed the butt of the gun on the floor and the muzzle through an opening in her dress, and then pulled the trigger."

Late the following February indictments were returned charging George Sr. and Kermie with murder, the mother and other son as accessories. District Attorney Currie elected to bring the father to trial first and the proceedings opened before Judge Edgar M. Lane on February 28.

The prosecution declined to place Kermie Jackson on the stand, because he would have to incriminate himself. However, Currie worked in all the other circumstantial evidence to back up the state's version of the crime.

Mrs. Jackson and the older son testified for the defense. A cousin of the dead girl, Claud Jackson, swore that Hester had said to him, "I'm going to kill myself because I'm tired of living." The defense also demonstrated, with a girl two inches shorter than Hester, how she could have fired the shotgun herself.

On March 2 the jury reported that it had found Jackson guilty but could not agree upon the penalty. Judge Lane sentenced the prisoner to life imprisonment.

The defendant did not take the stand.

An appeal was filed immediately. The cases against the other defendants were continued, all being allowed their freedom under bond When the state supreme court had not ruled on the appeal by August, the cases were continued until the next term of court, in February, 1935.

The months passed, and then in December came the high court decision reversing the conviction.

Two of the judges held that the evidence had failed to prove whether Hester's death was murder or suicide, and the third held that the evidence proved murder but did not prove who did it.

Jackson went free under $2,500 bond and returned to his home.

Said District Attorney Currie:

"I will pass the case of George Jackson to the files when court convenes in February, and the cases against other members of the family will not be tried. In view of the supreme court's decision, the state would not be justified in pressing for another trial unless or until new evidence should be obtained."

With the No. 1 example: I open h three diamonds. Suppose partr responds with three no trump three hearts. I bid four diaonds, which is a signoff. A rebid four in the same suit by the openg bidder is a signoff.

With the No. 2 example: I open h three spades. Suppose partner sponds with three no trump, ich shows from one to three honr tricks. My next bid is four diaonds, which is an asking bid. The ening three bid automatically ts" the bid suit. Any bid in a w suit by the opening bidder is asking bid.

The important question of partr's correct responses to an openg two-way three bid will be disssed in next Sunday's article.

Too Modern for Him.

Four gentlemen attended a reion dinner at which liquids were ven a position of prominence. Aftwards they sat down to a rubber contract. Each player managed, the third or fourth effort, to asrt his cards without assistance, t the game broke up after the ding and before the play of the ry first hand.

North bid: One no trick.

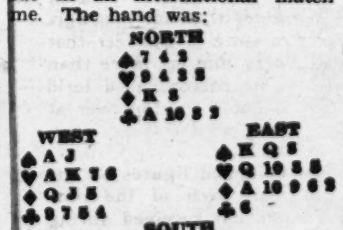

East overcalled: Two no bids.

South came in with: Three blind ce.

Whereupon West threw his cards the waste basket and said with eat dignity: "I'm not up on all ese modern conventions. You can t yourself another player!

Psychology.

The Belgian expert, E. P. Autne, writing in the British Bridge orld magazine, waxes enthusiastic er the merits of a psychic bid ade in an international match me. The hand was:

The bidding (East-West vulner-e):

South	West	North	East
1 heart	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	2 no trumps	Pass
Pass	Pass

Now to quote Mr. Autfenne: "Although I don't believe in opening psychic bids, I consider this one as a beauty. The crucial bid is North's two no trump over two spades. If he has bid three hearts, which would certainly have been doubled, the penalty incurred would have been catastrophic."

Which simply goes to prove that, on points of psychology particularly, there is ground for a vast difference of opinion. I myself feel that North's bidding was good, but more or less orthodox. It is with South's treatment of his own psychic that I must disagree, on this reasoning:

To have dropped the bidding when partner raised only from one to two hearts would not, of itself, have created the slightest suspicion in the opponents' minds. That sort of thing happens many times per session.

But when South bid two spades (thereby risking stronger bidding from his own partner) and followed up this "strong" bid by dropping partner's nonforced response of two no trump, he gave the show away completely! Holding either the East or the West hand, I would not be too eager about doubling a higher bid, such as three no trump, but would have pounced on two no trump with very little besides "suspicion."

Other climes, other reasoning.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS.

Question: May dummy warn declarer he is about to play from the wrong hand?

Answer: No.

Question: My right hand opponent, vulnerable, bid one spade. I was vulnerable also, and held ♠ 3, ♥ Q 8 6 3, ♦ A 10 5 2, ♣ K 9 6 3. I doubled for a takeout. Was that right or wrong?

Answer: Wrong. Your hand was far below the requirements for a takeout double.

You can learn full details on the economy and pleasure of modern air conditioning from any office of the Georgia Power Company or from your local dealer in any of these makes of air-conditioning equipment: Carrier, Frick, Frigidaire, General Electric, Ilg, Kelvinator, Westinghouse, York.

Joyful existence in the summer season no longer need be confined to the moments spent idling or exercising in the coolness of the mountains ... at the seashore ... in the swimming pool ... fishing on the shady banks of a spring-fed stream. Modern air conditioning spreads these delights to the scenes of our daily life---it makes every day a cool day, every night a night of comfort. For the home or the office, for a single room or an entire building, we can provide air-conditioning equipment that will bless you with the privilege of making your own invigorating weather. The coupon below, mailed on an ordinary one-cent post card, will bring you the full story in clear, graphic literature. Make summer the perfect season!

WEATHER AS YOU WANT IT— IN YOUR OFFICE OR AT HOME

Georgia Power Company

Georgia Power Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

Gentlemen: I would like to learn the full and true story of modern air conditioning. I am particularly interested in the classification checked below.

MR. AND MRS. EDWARD S. VINSON, of Milledgeville, parents, of Congressman Carl Vinson, dean of the Georgia delegation, who have celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary. Mrs. Vinson, who was Miss Annie Morris, member of one of Baldwin county's most prominent families, married Mr. Vinson in 1875. (Turner Hiers)

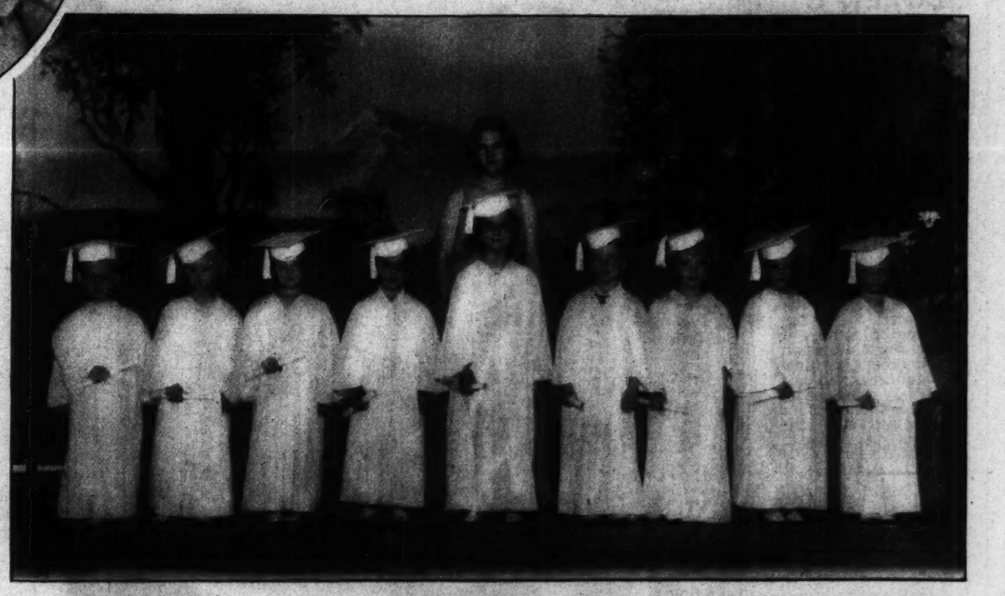

THE NEW LOOKOUT TOWER in Fort Mountain State park, near Chatsworth, which was officially dedicated recently. High tribute was paid to Ivan Allen, of Atlanta, who donated the land for the park to the State of Georgia. (George Cornett)

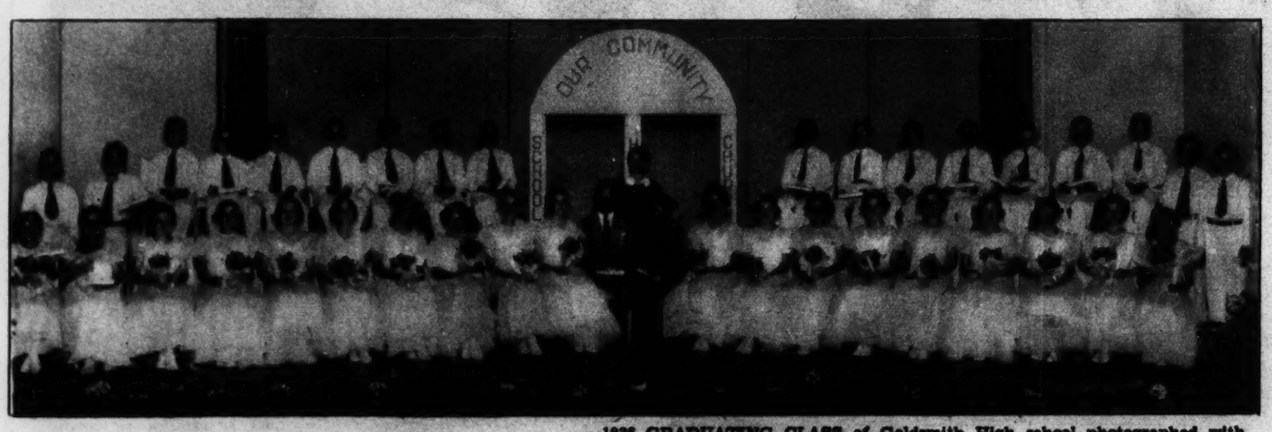

WHAT THE BEST-DRESSED WOMAN IS WEARING—The ideal traveling outfit is that worn by charming Lucille Ball, who was declared the "best-dressed girl in Hollywood" recently. The dress is of hunter green mohair taffeta. The three-quarter, short-sleeved coat is white sharkskin. Gloves are green suede and sandals are the same shade.

(Left) ANNE STRINGFELLOW ARKWRIGHT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright Jr., who recently unveiled a monument at Olustee, Fla., in honor of her great-grandfather, Alfred H. Colquitt.

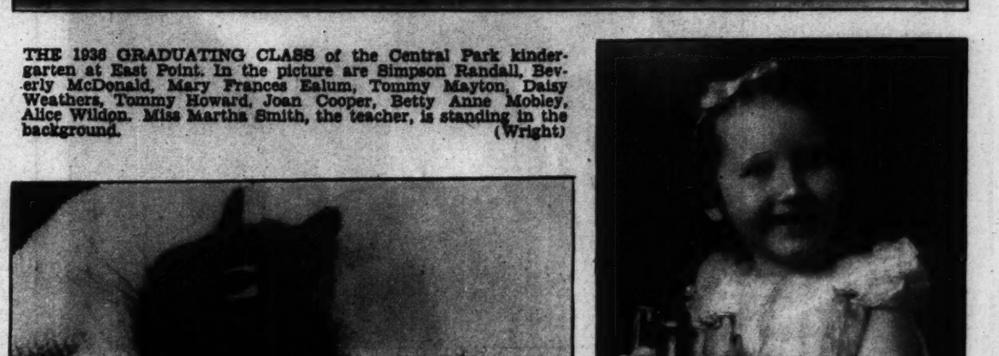

(Left) "DINNER FOR ONE, PLEASE, JAMES"—In accordance with the terms of a pact made by six follies girls 20 years ago, Katherine Lambert dines alone at a table set for six in a New York cafe. All except Miss Lambert are dead. Olive Thomas attained movie stardom, but committed suicide; Lilyan Tashman, movie star, died from overdieting; Martha Mansfield, movie star, was burned to death; Fifi Alsop married millions, but died destitute, and Bessie Poole died after a night club brawl.

DICK TRACY

TIME: ONE A.M. PLACE: CITY WAREHOUSE

YOU'RE RIGHT, BOB! THEY'VE COME TO ROB THE WAREHOUSE! THEY'VE BACKED THEIR TRUCK UP TO THE WAREHOUSE.

NOW LET'S GO OVER THIS AGAIN. MILLIGAN AND I ARE TO GO OUTSIDE AND LET THEM STICK US UP—WHILE YOU AND BOB REMAIN INSIDE.

RIGHT! THAT WAY THEY'LL THINK YOU TWO ARE THE ONLY GUARDS HERE.

NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS LET THEM GET THE BEST OF YOU! — BOB AND I WILL NAB THEM IN THE BUILDING.

IT'S GOING TO BE HARD LETTING THESE MUGS TAKE US WITHOUT A FIGHT, MILLIGAN, BUT WE'VE GOT TO DO IT. OH-OH!

RAISE 'EM UP AND KEEP 'EM UP—YOU TWO! UNDERSTAND!

MAKE THEM LIE DOWN ALONGSIDE THE PLATFORM, TRIGGER.

THIS IS THE ROOM NEXT TO THE PLATFORM. THEY'LL ENTER IT FIRST! THERE'S FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS WORTH OF CIGARS AND CIGARETTES IN HERE!

GOOD! NOW BOB, I'LL STAND JUST INSIDE THIS DOORWAY! YOU TAKE A POSITION BEHIND THAT—HEY, BOB! WHERE'D YOU GO?

WHAM

ALL RIGHT, MAKE IT SNAPPY, YOU MUGS! WE HAVEN'T GOT ALL NIGHT!

ONE HOUR LATER—

OH-OH— GREAT SCOTT!! WHAT IN—

I'VE BEEN OUT FOR AN HOUR! THE PLACE HAS BEEN ROBBED! OH BOB! WHERE ARE YOU, BOB?

CLICK

JUST WHERE IS BOB HONOR, THE REFORMED GANGSTER? WHO HIT TRACY ON THE HEAD?

LOST WORKS OF O. HENRY UNEARTHED IN STARTLING DISCOVERY

The Constitution rings the bell again—this time with a group of O. Henry stories that have remained hidden and forgotten for years. Now they've been brought to light and Constitution readers will be the first to enjoy them. "O. Henry Encore" is published every day on the feature page of The Constitution.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

TARZAN'S ILL FORTUNE

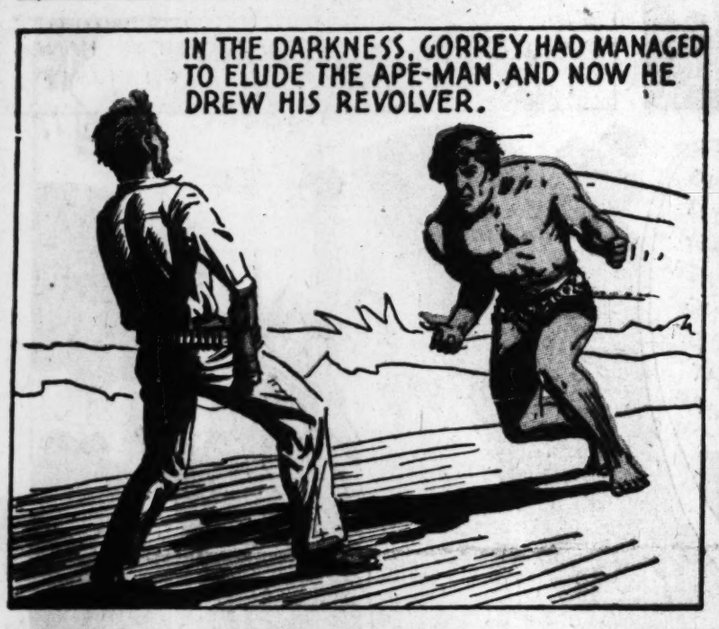

TARZAN KNEW THAT THE SPINNING PINWHEEL WAS THE SIGNAL FOR GORREY'S RUTHLESS ATTACK ON HIS HOSTS.

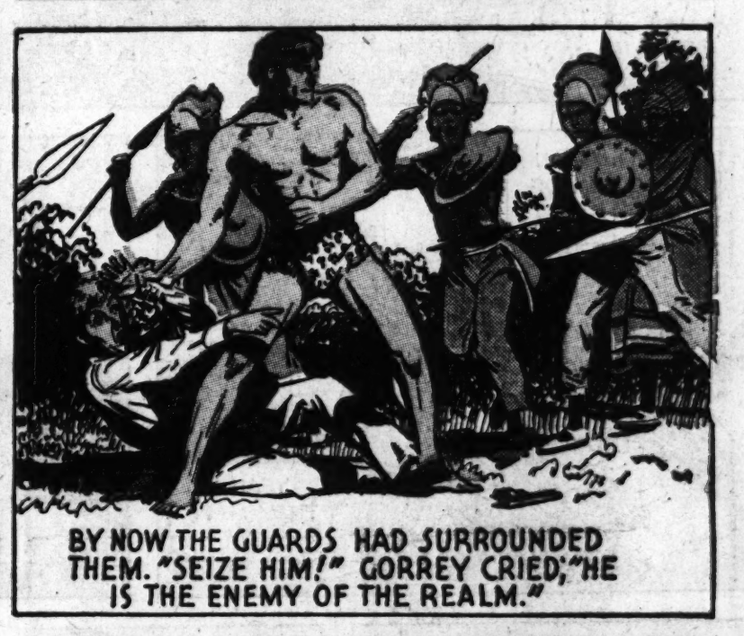

IMMEDIATELY THE ROYAL ASSEMBLAGE WAS IN AN UPROAR. EXCITED CRIES FILLED THE AIR. "LIGHTS! GUARDS!"

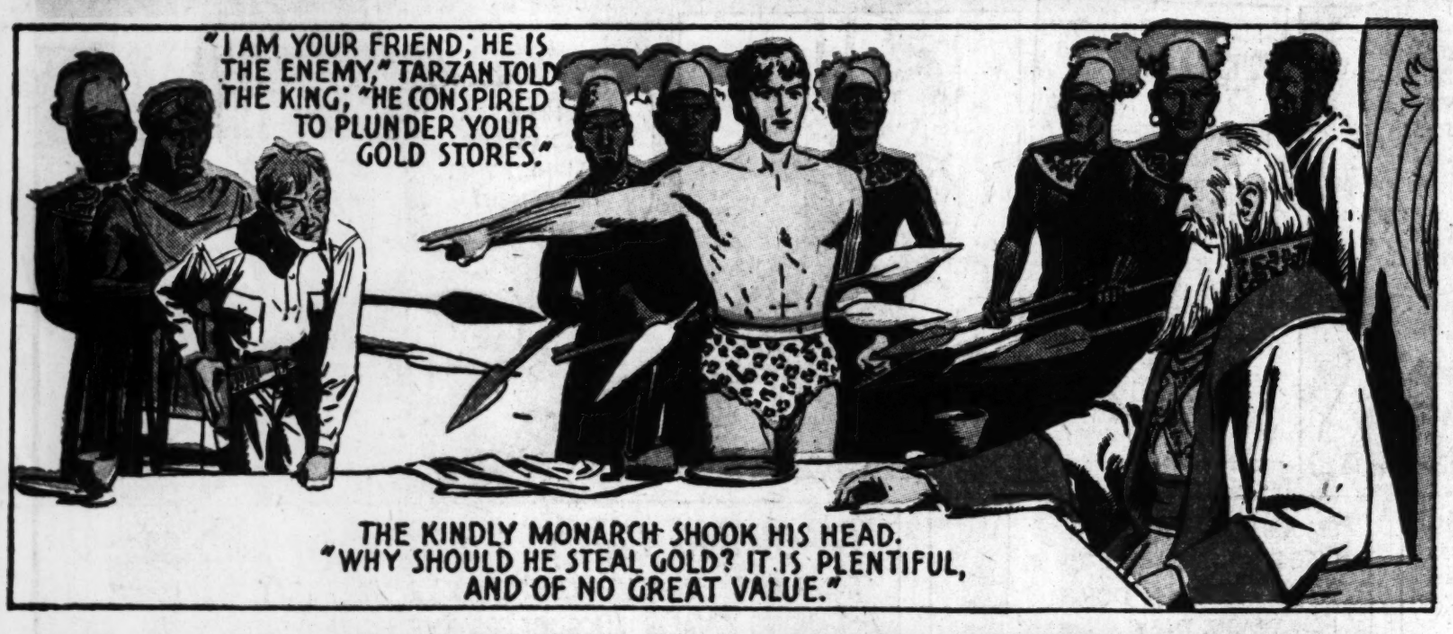

IN THE DARKNESS, GORREY HAD MANAGED TO ELUDE THE APE-MAN, AND NOW HE DREW HIS REVOLVER.

BUT BEFORE HE COULD FIRE TARZAN STRUCK THE REVOLVER FROM HIS HAND.

BY NOW THE GUARDS HAD SURROUNDED THEM. "SEIZE HIM!" GORREY CRIED; "HE IS THE ENEMY OF THE REALM."

"I AM YOUR FRIEND; HE IS THE ENEMY," TARZAN TOLD THE KING; "HE CONSPIRED TO PLUNDER YOUR GOLD STORES."

THE KINDLY MONARCH SHOOK HIS HEAD. "WHY SHOULD HE STEAL GOLD? IT IS PLENTIFUL, AND OF NO GREAT VALUE."

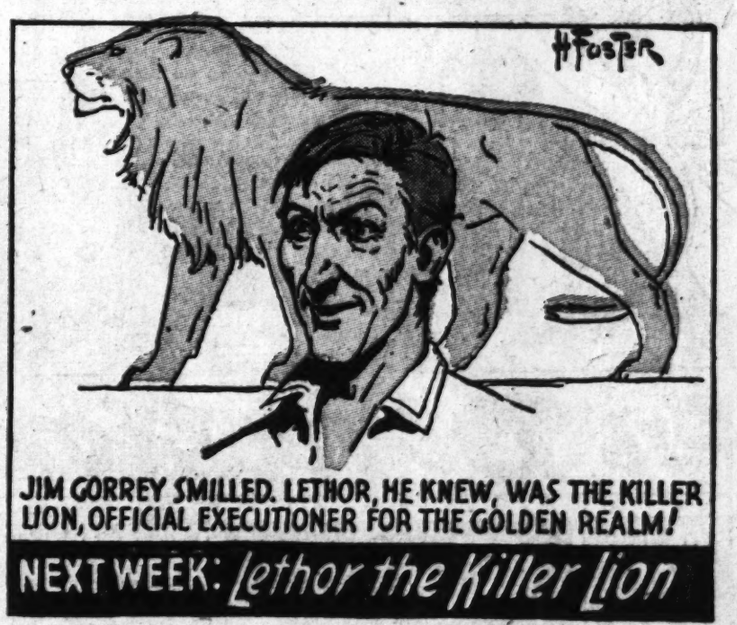

"YOU SEE HIS ACCOMPLICES THERE," TARZAN INSISTED. "THEY PLANNED TO SLAY YOUR MAJESTY AND THE PEERS OF THE REALM."

"NO," GORREY LIED; "THEY WERE TO PROTECT YOUR MAJESTY, FOR I KNEW THIS MURDEROUS SAVAGE WAS NEAR."

KING DALKON NODDED SADLY AT TARZAN: "IN ATTACKING OUR GUEST YOU COMMITTED THE GRAVEST CRIME. LETHOR WILL INFLICT PUNISHMENT."

JIM GORREY SMILLED. LETHOR, HE KNEW, WAS THE KILLER LION, OFFICIAL EXECUTIONER FOR THE GOLDEN REALM!

NEXT WEEK: Lethor the Killer Lion

HIGH SPOTS IN THE SPACE-DEFYING CAREER OF STEEPLEJACK

JOE BECK

WORKING AT DIZZY HEIGHT, JOE BECK NEEDS THE AGILITY OF A CAT, THE POISED BALANCE OF AN EAGLE, AND THE SURE RESPONSE OF NERVES AND MUSCLES THAT GOOD DIGESTION BRINGS. HERE'S JOE HIMSELF TALKING! "I SMOKE A LOT— CAMELS, OF COURSE. THEY'RE THE MILDEST CIGARETTE I'VE FOUND. I LIKE THEIR FLAVOR AND I KNOW THAT CAMELS DON'T INTERFERE WITH MY NERVES."

EXTRA

DIRIGIBLE TO MOOR AT MAST OF SKYSCRAPER

Steeplejack in Perilous Job

Joe Beck, the famous New York steeplejack, tackles the most hazardous feat of his long career today. Joe will be the key man when the dirigible swings her nose into the mooring mast of the Empire...

(LEFT) A TINY MOVING SPECK AGAINST THE VAST MASS OF THE EMPIRE STATE BUILDING, JOE BECK STANDS UNSUPPORTED ON THE PINNACLE OF THE MOORING TOWER, PITTING HIS SKILL AGAINST THE RISING WIND AND THE TERRIFYING HEIGHT. (RIGHT) MEANTIME, INSIDE THE DIRIGIBLE—

EASE HER INTO THE WIND, JIM. IF WE JUST GET THE TRAILING-LINE CLOSE TO BECK, WE'LL BE ALL SET

AYE, AYE, SIR— BUT IT'S BUMPY GOING. HOPE THE LINE DOESN'T FOUL

SLOWLY THE BLIMP EASES IN, TRAILING-LINE WHIPPING IN THE BREEZE. JOE LEANS 'WAY OUT, GRABS THE LINE —THEN—

A SUDDEN UP-GUST ALMOST LIFTS HIM OFF THE TOWER— BUT HE HANGS ON GRIMLY

BOY, WHAT AN EXHIBITION OF IRON NERVE!

YEAH, THEY MADE IT!

LIGHT UP THAT CAMEL, JOE, AND I'LL GET A CLOSE-UP

SEEING THE MARVELOUS WORK YOU DID TODAY GAVE ME THE IDEA OF WRITING A FEATURE ARTICLE ABOUT YOU, MR. BECK. TELL ME, HAVEN'T YOU EVER SLIPPED?

WELL, NOT EXACTLY, BUT ONCE I GOT A CLOSE CALL— WORKING ON THE STATUE OF LIBERTY

ALONG ABOUT MIDNIGHT THEY WERE TAKING A FLASH-LIGHT PICTURE

GET THAT FLASHLIGHT RIGHT OVER BECK!

O.K.

I WAS SWINGING FROM THE ARM. THE MAN WITH THE MAGNESIUM FLASH-LIGHT WAS STANDING ON THE TORCH. THERE WAS 300 FEET BETWEEN ME AND THE GROUND. SUDDENLY—

HEY, JOE, YOUR ROPE IS ON FIRE!

UNNOTICED, A WHITE-HOT SPARK FROM THE FLARE HAD STARTED MY ROPE SPUTTERING AND I COULDN'T REACH IT—

I HAD TO ACT FAST, REACH THE GROUND BEFORE THE ROPE GAVE WAY. I YANKED THE KNOT— AND WENT DOWN AT EXPRESS-ELEVATOR SPEED. FIVE FEET FROM THE BOTTOM, I CHECKED THE ROPE. THE WEAKENED LINE GAVE WAY. I LANDED ON THE CONCRETE LIKE A CAT, A LITTLE SCARED BUT SAFE

LOOK HOW FAR UP YOU WERE, JOE, WHEN THAT HAPPENED!

LET'S FORGET IT AND HAVE SOME CHOW. THEN I'LL COME BACK AND FINISH THE JOB

EVEN AFTER A CLOSE ONE LIKE THAT YOU STILL EAT HEARTY. I DON'T SEE HOW YOU DO IT!

FOOD ALWAYS LOOKS GOOD TO ME—BUT IT LOOKS BETTER IF I KNOW THERE'S A CAMEL HANDY. YOU SEE—

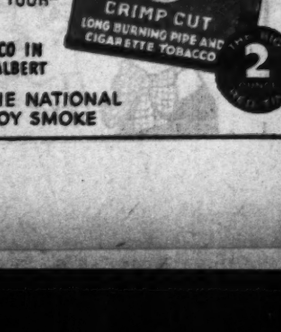

SMOKING CAMELS FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE IS JUST WHAT I'VE BEEN DOING FOR YEARS. THEY MAKE MY FOOD TASTE BETTER AND SET BETTER

Yours truly Joseph Beck

SMOKING CAMELS STIMULATES DIGESTION

SCIENTIFIC EVIDENCE CONFIRMS THE FACT THAT SMOKING CAMELS ENCOURAGES THE FLOW OF DIGESTIVE FLUIDS—ALKALINE DIGESTIVE FLUIDS—NECESSARY TO THE ENJOYMENT OF FOOD AND TO GOOD DIGESTION. ENJOY CAMELS YOURSELF. CAMELS ARE MADE FROM FINER, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS —TURKISH AND DOMESTIC— THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR BRAND.

NOW ALL I DO IS TAKE THIS FACE POWDER OF WINNIE'S, MIX IT WITH TWO CHEMICALS FROM MY SET AN' WE'LL HAVE GUNPOWDER !!

GOSH!

THEN WE CAN MAKE OUR OWN FIRECRACKERS

I THOUGHT THAT WAS PERRY'S VOICE AN' BY GOSH, HE'S GOT THAT BOX OF IMPORTED POWDER WINNIE HAS BEEN RAISIN' CAIN ABOUT !!

WINNIE'S BEEN HUNTIN' HIGH AN' LOW FOR THIS EXPENSIVE POWDER - AN' YOU KNOW IT — AN' YET YOU WENT RIGHT AHEAD AN' SWIPED IT — H'M'MM !!

I DIDN'T SWIPE IT, POP — I FOUND IT !!

YOU COME RIGHT HOME WITH ME AN' WHEN WINNIE GETS THROUGH SPANKING YOU, I'M GOIN' TO GIVE YOU A REAL LICKIN' !!

AW POP, YOU AIN'T GONNA TELL WINNIE, ARE YOU?

OH, I'M NOT, EH? YOU JUST WAIT AN' SEE !!!

YEAH? WELL, HOW ABOUT TH' TIME I SAW YOU TAKE A DOLLAR BILL OUT'A WINNIE'S PURSE?

DON'T GET SASSY, YOUNG FELLER !!

—AN' REMEMBER TH' TIME YOU LOST $40 PLAYIN' POKER AT TH' FIRE HOUSE?

S'POSIN' I DID! WHAT OF IT??

—AN' HOW ABOUT TH' TIME YOU BURNED A HOLE IN TH' LIVIN' ROOM RUG AN' BLAMED WINNIE'S BOY FRIEND'S CIGARET-

DON'T TRY TO CHANGE TH' SUBJECT —

AN' DON'T FORGET TH' TIME YOU BROKE TH' WINDOW IN TH' KITCHEN AN' SAID IT WAS TH' NEIGHBOR'S CAT —

NEVER MIND WHAT I DID - I'M LOTS OLDER THAN YOU AND - AND -

YEAH, BUT REMEMBER TH' TIME YOU TOLD SOME MEN MA GAVE YOU A PAIN IN YOUR NECK AN' THEY ALL LAUGHED?

NEVER MIND WHAT I SAID - ANYWAY, I'M YOUR FATHER - DON'T FORGET THAT !!

YES, SIR - AND OHH - REMEMBER ONLY LAST WEEK, TH' TIME I CAUGHT YOU —

JUNE 21-36

OH SHUT UP !!

HEY POP, YOU'RE GOIN' RIGHT PAST OUR HOUSE !! AIN'T YOU GOING IN AN' TELL ON ME?

DON'T BE SILLY, SON! I WAS ONLY HURRYING DOWN TO TH' CORNER TO BUY A COUPL'A BIG ICE CREAM SODAS !!
